It is not the purpose to reveal "State" secrets here, but one of the men who made that suggestion lost the appropriation for his armory, his loan shark bill was beaten in the Senate and he received a few other choice marks of consideration from the administration.

PURCHASING COMMISSION.

Another dainty dish is the State Purchasing Commission. This commission has been created for the purpose of lightening the labors of the Board of Control. The commissioners of this board are said to be badly overworked. When the Legislature relieved them of what was intended in the beginning to be practically the whole of their duties it gave them a salary increase of $1000 a year each, because they will now have more leisure time to spend it.

All State purchases will hereafter be made through the purchasing department. A glance at the pay roll of that department, beginning with a salary of $4000 a year, seems to indicate that, if it saves enough in a year to meet the department pay roll it will be prima facie evidence that there exists at the present time either graft or rank incompetence in a number of State institutions.

A statement issued from the Controller's offices places the number of State wards at 14,725, which is, to use the stock expression of Jack Neylan, "the greatest in the history of the State." One pessimistically inclined

COMMENT ON THE SITUATION.

The plight of the French and British on the Gallipoli Peninsula appears worse the more one learns of it in belated dispatches. Far from taking Constantinople, they occupy but ten square miles of territory in an out of the way angle of the peninsula and have to contend with desperate night attacks of the Turks. Thus the Dardanelles, once called the key to the war, has come to be the tragedy of it. The only way to get at Constantinople is via Bulgaria and the Bulgars, remembering the deal they received after conquering their foes in the last Balkan war, are standing back, doing nothing, saying little, permitting nothing to be done.

The debacle of Carranza appears to be nigh. He is hiding out, as it were, on an island near Vera Cruz reflecting about the ruins of his own little Carthage.

LONDON, June 19.—David A. Thomas, the Welsh coal magnate, the Exchange Telegraph Company says, has accepted an appointment from David Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, to go to the United States and Canada to supervise the making of munition contracts.

Mr. Thomas, a survivor of the Lusitania tragedy, presided on June 11 at one of Mr. Lloyd George's "speeding up munitions meetings" at Cardiff. He was reported to have said at that time he had been told by friends he must have been spared when the Lusitania sank that he might do for the government some work not yet accomplished.

RETALIATION BY THE FRENCH.

THREAT MADE BY THE GERMANS IS PROMPTLY MET.

Embassy Denies Charges of Illtreatment to Prisoners in Dahomey and will Send Teutons to Work in Swamps if Measure is Adopted by Berlin.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Announcement of Germany's intention to condemn French prisoners of war to labor in swamps, in retaliation for alleged mistreatment of German prisoners in French hands, has brought notice of retaliations by the French. At the French Embassy today this statement was issued:

"In accordance with a statement of the Overseas News Agency, 'the French government refuses to mitigate the brutal treatment being accorded German civil and military prisoners in tropical Africa. This is particularly true in Dahomey.' As a measure of retaliation the German government intends to compel French prisoners to cultivate swamps.'

"As a fact the mass of such German prisoners as have been sent to Africa is not in Dahomey but in Algeria, Tunis and Morocco. The two first regions have been recently visited by the delegates of the American Embassy in Paris and the other by Dr. De Marval, a Swiss citizen, and a delegate of the international committee of the Red Cross. The reports of these visitors testify to the favorable conditions as to food, clothing and work obtaining in those places.

"As for the few hundred of Germans kept in Dahomey, they were captured in the not remote colonies of Togo and Cameroun; they receive fair treatment; the statement that they were badly treated had been contradicted by the American Consul at Monrovia; their general health is good. On the coming, moreover, of the bad season, the French government has decided to move them to Northern Africa. If the German authorities follow their intentions concerning French prisoners, German ones in the same number will be similarly treated."

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Conditions in the Dardanelles reported in press dispatches today and indicating that Constantinople is in no immediate fear of occupation by the allies created a deep impression in Balkan diplomatic circles here. In this connection unofficial reports from Russia announcing that a change of the campaign against Constantinople was one of the requirements exacted by Greece for support of the allies were widely commented upon.

The Greek government, it was said, declared in a note to Russia that the approach along the Gallipoli Peninsula was impossible and that an overland attack through Bulgarian territory was the only means which the Greek General Staff would consider in case of Greek participation. In Bulgarian quarters it was said this probably would never be permitted unless the allies guaranteed sufficient territorial cession from Rumania, Greece and Servia.

Offers already reported in the press as having been made were declared to be hardly sufficient to shake Bulgarian neutrality. Any violation by the allies of Bulgarian territory, it was insisted, would force her to join the Teutonic allies.

TEDIOUS TRENCH WARFARE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, June 20.—A special correspondent at the Dardanelles for Reuter's Telegram Company, in a vivid dispatch describing the general assault on the Turkish lines on June 4, by which the allied forces scored gains heretofore recorded in official communications, devotes considerable space to the snugness of the Turkish position as indicative of the tedious trench warfare yet to ensue.

"The situation here tends more and more to resemble that with which we have become familiar in France," says the correspondent. "We have an enemy here less fertile in resources than the Germans, less well equipped, less vigorous in attack, but on the other hand, he has advantages which the Germans cannot claim. He has ideal defensive positions, with the narrow peninsula one flank and his left safe from attack by sea and both incapable of being turned by land, as they stretch down to the water's edge.

"Another advantage the Turks possess, or ought to possess, is a large supply of reserves quickly available for the fighting line. Though the Turk has no railways to feed the peninsula, he still has a far shorter distance to bring his reinforcements, even if they march from Constantinople, than we with all the resources of civilization at our command."

The correspondent adds that prisoners taken by the allies are ill-clad and sorry looking, but says that their hard luck stories must be taken with a grain of salt.

"Many captives," he says, "profess to be untrained, put in the ranks to fill gaps—statements at which the British officers smile."

BRITAIN IS PAYING FOR SEIZED COTTON

FIRST INSTALLMENT OF NEARLY A MILLION ON THE CARGO OF THE KINA.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

LONDON, June 19, 7 p.m.—The British government today made the first payment of £165,000 ($825,000) on the cotton cargo of the Danish steamer Kina, which sailed from Savannah, Ga., on April 15 for Rotterdam. The payment was made to A. G. Hayes, representing the American owners of the cargo.

The British government also has made partial payment for the cotton cargoes of the Danish steamer Livonia, the Swedish steamer Dicido and the American steamer Navajo.

The American steamers Portland from San Francisco to Stockholm and the Seaconnett from New York for Gothenburg have been taken into Kirkwall. The cargo of the latter vessel is being examined, but no action has yet been taken in the case of the former.

The customs authorities have ordered that 4560 tons of mixed grain, consigned from an American firm to Norwegian ports on the Norwegian ship Nordkyn, be discharged for prize court proceedings.

WEALTHY WIDOW DENIES REPORT.

MRS. WALSH DECLARES SHE HAS NOT WEDDED SECRETARY.

Rumor at Washington that Relict of the Famous Colorado Millionaire had Secretly Married Young and Handsome Employee has Stirred Capital Circles for Some Time.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PORTLAND (Or.) June 19.—Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, widow of the Colorado mining millionaire and grandmother of the famous Vincent Walsh McLean, heralded at his birth as the "$20,000,000 baby," passed through Portland today en route from the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco to her home via Seattle.

Mrs. Walsh's stay in Portland was brief, but it was sufficiently long to enable her to deny emphatically reports of her marriage to her young and handsome secretary, McCarthy, who accompanies her on the present trip.

"Indeed I am not married," was the wording of Mrs. Walsh's answer to a question asked of her in her drawing-room on the Pullman of the Shasta Limited as it paused at the Union Depot today.

"But a report from Washington, D. C., says that you and Mr. McCarthy, your secretary, have been secretly married and that this is your wedding tour," was suggested.

"Preposterous!' declared Mrs. Walsh. "That talk was started by some of my servants, whom I had discharged."

"Does Mr. McCarthy accompany you on your present trip?" was ventured.

Here Mrs. Walsh suddenly froze. "I refuse to discuss my private affairs," she said. "I have been to the exposition and I am en route home; that is sufficient information for the public."

It developed that Mr. McCarthy was on the car, however, and he was interviewed.

"How," he was asked, "do you suppose the news got abroad that you and Mrs. Walsh had been married?"

"Foolish talk; foolish talk," was Mr. McCarthy's explanation. "Nothing to it; nothing at all."

Besides Secretary McCarthy, Mrs. Walsh is accompanied on her trip by a maid. Her quarters on the Shasta Limited consisted of two drawing-rooms and a section in the Pullman.

Mrs. Walsh not long since was reported engaged to John Barrett, head of the Bureau of South American Republics.

PEACEMAKERS NOT WELCOME.

SELF-APPOINTED TYPE OBJECTIONABLE, SAYS GERMAN NEWSPAPER.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

BERLIN, June 19 (via London.)—The Morgen Post, commenting on a dispatch from Washington the Cologne Gazette, setting forth that the question of peace is being discussed, says that Americans know full well that the self-constituted peacemaker never is welcome; consequently he is not likely to force his advice where it is not wanted.

Dr. Ignaz Jastrow, professor of political economy in the University of Berlin, discusses in the Tageblatt the impossibility of accepting the United States as an arbiter so long as Americans deliver weapons to the opponents of Germany.

"Insomuch as every state can avoid the export of arms," the arbiter says, "we wonder how Americans can fail to see that this is prolonging the war, and how can they believe it is possible for them to act as peace mediators?"

BERLIN REPORTS THE U-29 SUNK BY MERCHANTMAN

German Convictions May have Important Bearing on Note to Washington.

London Issues a Belated Statement that Weddigen, the Father of Submarine Warfare, and His Famous Under-sea Boat Were Destroyed by One of His British Majesty's Warships.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, June 18 (via London, June 19, 7:42 p.m.)—A statement given out by the German Admiralty to the effect that the German submarine U-29 had been rammed and sunk by a British tank steamer after the vessel had been ordered to stop, is expected to have an important bearing on the German-American negotiations.

German naval officers and the public at large ask how it is possible for German submarines to treat merchantmen in the way requested by the United States or to take steps to ascertain the nationality of ships displaying neutral flags in the war zone so long as British captains adhere to the rules laid down by the Admiralty.

The announcement published by the German Admiralty regarding the fate of the U-29, which was made in a most positive form, and as if the German Admiralty had conclusive evidence upon which to base its statement will, in the opinion of well-informed persons here, make a deeper impression on the public mind than would almost any other possible event.

Capt. Weddigen, the commander of the U-29, was a popular hero in Germany, ranking in popular esteem with the army leader, Field Marshal Von Hindenburg. The loss of the German under-sea boat under the circumstances, prominent Germans say, undoubtedly will stiffen the nation in the belief that it is impossible to introduce any changes in submarine methods so long as Great Britain does not at least withdraw its instructions regarding neutral flags and attacks upon submarines.

ADMIRALTY STATEMENT.

Included in the news items given out today by the Overseas News Agency is the following:

"The German Admiralty has published a confirmation of the long-standing rumors that the submarine U-29 was destroyed by a British tank steamer, which, flying the Swedish flag at the time, rammed the submarine after it had been ordered to stop. Commenting on this, German newspapers say it is proof of the British abuse of neutral flags and that the illegal course followed by ships of commerce compels the commanders of German submarines to consid-

NEUTRAL PEACE MOVEMENT ENCOURAGED BY GERMANS.

Powerful Underground Steps Being Taken in Europe of Which President Wilson is Fully Cognizant — He will not Offer Services as Mediator Unless Requested to do so by One of Belligerent Nations.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, June 19.—That a powerful underground movement for the conclusion of peace in Europe is in progress is the prevailing opinion in official and diplomatic circles here.

The movement is being directed by the representatives of neutral European nations, aided by high officials of the German government. While not being actually opposed, it is not being encouraged by either Great Britain or Italy. Russia and France are maintaining a passive attitude in deference, perhaps, to the demeanor of England.

President Wilson is conversant with the steps being taken here and in Europe to organize an effective peace movement. [illegible]nation of the attitude of t[illegible]gerents and of the views of [illegible]ean neutral nations has been conveyed to him by American ambassadors and ministers abroad, by European diplomats in Washington, and by his personal friend, Col. E. M. House, who returned recently from a European tour during which he conferred with the chief officials of England, France, and Germany.

Altogether, the President is probably the most fully informed individual in the world on the possibilities of an early conclusion of peace. Mr. Wilson is keeping in close touch with the situation and is encouraging the peace propaganda in every way possible with the hope that sooner or later there will be definite developments warranting mediation proposals.

QUESTION OF MEDIATION.

It became known today that the President does not intend to offer his services as a mediator unless requested to do so by one or more of the belligerent powers. Although German officials in Berlin, Washington and the neutral capitals of Europe are promoting the peace move-

CLOSING IN ON LEMBERG; NEW AUSTRIAN VICTORY.

Grodek, Seventeen Miles to the West, and Komarno, Twenty Miles to the South of the Galician Capital, Taken by the Teutonic Allies — Triumphant Troops are Crossing the River Tanew.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, June 19, 10:46 p.m.—The strongly fortified Galician town of Grodek, where it was predicted the Russians would make a stubborn stand, has fallen before the Austro-German assault, according to tonight's Austrian official statement; the river Tanew, believed to be another strong barrier, has been crossed; Komarno, only a few miles south of Grodek, has been taken and the Austro-German forces are less than a day's march of Lemberg, capital of Galicia.

These claims were forecast in the German official statement from Berlin which preceded that from Vienna. The Berlin statement asserted that the Grodek positions were being attacked, the Russians to the north retreating as far as the Tanew line. The Austrians subsequently recorded the fall of Grodek and claimed that the south bank of the Tanew had been cleared of Russians.

Earlier in the day a resume of the Galician situation from Petrograd said that the then existing disposition of the Russian forces in the vicinity of Lemberg meant a crisis and that the holding or losing of the lines should determine the fate of the Galician capital.

AUSTRIA'S OFFICIAL VERSION.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

VIENNA (via London) June 19, 8:59 p.m.—Grodek, seventeen miles west of Lemberg, the Galician capital, and Komarno, twenty miles southwest of Lemberg, have been taken by the Teutonic allies, according to an Austrian official statement issued here tonight. The text of the statement follows:

"Russian war theater: The Galician battle is proceeding. Attacking combined Russian forces on and north of the Wereszyca river the Teutonic allied troops captured position after position.

"Grodek and Komarno are taken.

"On the north front, the south bank of the Tanew river has been cleared of the enemy. Ulano was occupied after severe fighting.

"South of the upper Dniester river our work is proceeding. The Eastern army under Gen. Pflanzer again has repulsed fresh, strong Russian attacks.

"Italian war theater: On the Isonzo front and on the Carinthian frontier quiet prevails after the last unsuccessful Italian attacks in, which they have suffered great loss. Friday afternoon a new enemy attack near Plava was checked in its inception by our artillery fire.

"In the Tyrolean frontier district Italian detachments which attempted to attack the mountain passes east of Fassa Valley were repulsed. The enemy have abandoned their unsuccessful attacks on the plateaus of Folgaria and Lavaronne."

How the British Troops Leaped into the German "Jaws of Death."

A First-hand Eyewitness's Account of a Battle Charge. First Narrative of the Kind to Reach the United States—Details of the Scramble up and Over the Front Trench Wall.

BY E. RICHARD SCHAYER.

(American newspaper man who enlisted in the British Army Service Corps and has been seven months on active service at the front in France. Mr. Schayer is the only trained American writer who took such a drastic step in order to obtain literary material, and the only correspondent to have seen at close range such incidents as described in the following story.)

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAILLEUL (France) May 2.—Today I saw 1000 men hurled to everlasting peace, violently and horribly, and fully 2000 more slashed and shattered wretches brought back in hideous torment. And yet, so strangely is the human spirit constituted, here I am, scribbling notes in my little loose-leaf diary from a New York department store, between bites at a thick slice of army bread spread with a glutinous, crimson jam whose very color should revolt my soul.

Hell broke loose in the trenches about 8 o'clock this lovely spring morning. The night had been ominously silent and the early dawn of this latitude found the men snugly asleep in their dug-outs, with here and there the watchers standing at their posts of observation, eyes steadfly fixed on the loopholes in the breastworks that reared well above their heads.

I had come down to the trenches in the night with motor-lorry loads of supplies. It was not my first visit to the actual firing line. Whenever my work with the A.S.C. brought me from base camp to the front I had tried, by volunteering for extra duty, to get down into the line. It was my aim to be present some day when the men should be ordered forward in a rush on the German strongholds. Today I got my wish. I shall never volunteer for trench work again.

IN THE FIRING TRENCH.

After assisting the cooks in the distribution of breakfast rations—cheese, jam, bread, biscuit and tea—I nosed around in the firing trench, chatting with the brawny young Highlanders, a battalion of Cameronians, who had occupied the position unrelieved for three days. I made the acquaintance of a strapping young corporal, from whom I received the first intimation that something was likely to happen to disturb the Sabbath-like peace of those early hours.

My acquaintance was sitting on the narrow wooden shelf that ran the length of the trench, a foot and a half above the bottom of the ditch, along the front wall. He had hauled his shabby kilt around and was stitching up a rent in the fabric with big, clumsy fingers.

"It's my opeenion that there'll be mair hell aroond here than is healthy for noncombatants like yersel'," he suggested. "When the guns begin y'ud better aboot march and get awa back t'tha base."

I assured him I had no desire to remain should the morning calm be broken. It hardly seemed possible that this joyous spring day was about to be desecrated in the fashion he described. So far the stillness had been shattered but once or twice by the crack of some sniper's rifle or the distant rumble of guns at some far part of the line.

But even as we talked distinct evidences of something special in the wind began to make themselves apparent. Officers hurried up and down the trench, diving into and out of the communicating lanes and saps. Groups of men gathered around the clusters of rifles resting on the trench itself. Card games and newspapers were abandoned and each man went to work upon his equipment, setting every detail to right.

TOWARD ENEMY'S LINES.

I had a desire to peek outward toward the enemy's lines before things became hot. The corporal permitted me to stand beside him on the shelf and peer through the chinks in the sandbags and sleepers. A narrow vista of an upward sloping meadow lengthened out before me. Here and there the field was pock-marked with shell craters, and near the extreme left-hand edge of the narrow picture a dead birch tree, broken by a shell, slanted its upper half to the ground. From the foreground all the way to where a line of straggly pines shut off the sky the plain was dotted with what looked like bundles of faded old clothes. Some were yellowish in tinge, but for the most part they were a bluish gray.

With the coming of the morning breeze I had detected in the trench a faint but horrible smell. As I looked out upon this little field the draught blew strongly through the loophole and brought with it the full force of that indescribably nauseating stench. The men below and beside me were used to it. I had, fortunately, only met it once or twice before. It drove me from my perch to take refuge in a dug-out used as a men's latrine.

In the comparatively delightful atmosphere of this creosote-sprinkled retreat I was reminded of what an old Italian ecclesiastic wrote of his feelings when he gazed upon the body of a feminine enthusiast, who, in her nunnery, had mutilated her body with red-hot pincers. "I gave thanks to God," he wrote, "and reverently vomited."

THE CAPTAIN'S ADDRESS.

When I scrambled back into the trench I found the men drawn up in line and the sergeants busy with the roll call. Each man's rifle bristled with the murderous knife bayonet, and there was something in the glitter of every pair of Scotch gray eyes and the tautness about every firm-lipped mouth that showed the tension of the moment. Close to me a huge young lieutenant, ruddy cheeked and with but the faintest of silky growths on his long upper lip, switched at his roughened bare knee with a little bamboo swagger cane. He seemed oblivious of the stinging force of the blows, with which he castigated his big, bare limb, blows that left the skin criss-crossed with lines, white and then red.

Roll call ended, the captain of the company spoke a few words to the men. He was a stalwart man of medium height, perhaps 40 years old. Across his forehead an angry-looking scar, obviously of recent origin, pulsated lividly with the beat of his blood. Like the lieutenant, he, too, wore his sword sheathed at his side and wielded a limber little bamboo to emphasize his words. These were short, simple and to the point.

"Men," he said, "there's a big rush on this morning. We will get our orders to advance after the guns have prepared the way. When it comes off I want every one of you to try to get as far forward as he can. We will be heavily supported, but many of us won't get through. Those who don't will have gone like men. They'll get a bit of their own back through those who follow us. Keep your head, obey every order you get and stick to it as long as you can. That's all."

THE PREPARATORY CANNONADE

As if to punctuate the officer's quietly-spoken address, there came one tremendous crash—the voice of the first big gun to speak in preparation for the scheduled event. Quickly the men took their appointed places along the trench. Again and again came that shocking blast of sound, the earth trembled and the very air seemed to quiver and tingle with electric energy.

In the mouth of one of the dugouts with a passageway leading back to the communicating trenches I took shelter, as though the very clamor of those British guns back of us was filled with danger. A couple of the cook's staff joined me, watching the steady, silent lines of Highland laddies waiting for the signal that would send them out into the open to face the hellish blast of steel hurled at them from the foemen's trenches.

Gun after gun joined in the preparatory cannonade. The staccato crashes became merged into one mighty, rumbling bellow—a very mountain of sound that beat down upon us in heavy blows, engulfed us, shook us from head to foot, made us reel and clutch at the vibrating timbers of the dugout to keep from falling. The imminence of the British batteries drowned all other sound. That the Germans were raking our trenches with rifle and machine-gun fire was obvious from the bits of stone, splinters of wood and showers of dust that blew down from the edge of the parapet. One bullet entered a timber just over my head. I was just able to detect the spiteful little smack with which it penetrated far into the hard, seasoned wood, leaving as neat and round a little hole as though it were drilled by an auger.

THE GRINNING GHURKAS.

A little way down the trench a young Scot, who had been whistling through his teeth at his observation loophole when I entered with breakfast, suddenly crumpled up and dropped from his post, falling headfirst into the bottom of the trench. Curiously the thought flashed through me that he must have hurt himself in the heavy fall. His face was turned toward us as he lay limply there in the ditch, and then I noticed a red trickle oozing from a hideous black spot in the center of his forehead.

I turned to shut out the sight and found myself looking straight at the point of a particularly well-sharpened bayonet and a malignant, copper countenance with slanting Mongolian eyes, surmounted by a wide-brimmed felt hat. Observing my involuntary start, the Ghurka relaxed into a flashing grin and lowered his bayonet point to my midriff, with a little gesture indicating how eagerly he was anticipating similar, but more deadly, exercises in the charge to come. Back of him swarmed his comrades, all short, copper-colored little devils, with those vicious slanting eyes and brilliant smiles.

They were waiting to follow up the Highlanders' charge, and if there is any moment dearer to the heart of one of these half-Hindu and half-Chinese hillmen from Northern India than waiting to be let loose on murder, it is in the actual accomplishment of said object. I spoke to the nearest Ghurka.

"Big noise," I shouted. "Much hell, you like?"

"Johnny like fight," he responded, using the name all Ghurkas give themselves in the army. "German damn. French damn. English good." By which he meant to convey that he bore no love for any white men save the English, for whom he would gladly fight at any time, any place; a sentiment probably religiously drilled into him in India.

Further conversation was impossible in that din, which by now had become more terrific through the sharper and still more staggering explosions near to hand from shells hurled upon us by the Germans. I stood in a daze, hanging as though for life itself to one of the supporting timbers. My thoughts and feelings were jumbled into a chaotic, indefinable mass. I remember only that I never in my life wanted more to be somewhere else than where I was. But there seemed no immediate escape. I could not go forward, and to force my way back along the communicating trench through that array of evil grins and shiny, slanting eyes seemed at the moment equally formidable. There was nothing to do but hang on and hope for the best.

THE SCRAMBLE.

Who gave the word or how it was given I don't know, but suddenly I saw the waiting Highlanders scrambling up and over the front wall of the trench. They leaped upon the little firing shelf, raised their right feet to wooden steps driven into the wall a little higher up and hurled themselves upward and over and out of sight. Standing low in the communicating sap, my last glimpse of those charging laddies was one of waving bare legs, flying kilts and funny little khaki trunks, like those worn by track athletes.

One pair of such legs remained directly in front of me, one foot on the shelf, the other raised to the little step higher up. Another man seemed to be trying to encourage those legs to draw themselves up and over the parapet. He pushed at them a moment and then pulled the right foot off the step to make room for himself, leaped forward and out of sight. The disturbed right foot dropped heavily and limply beside its mate. For a moment the two half-bare limbs dangled down the trench wall, then the knees bent and gave way, slowly, and a tattered kilt came into view, catching one edge in the wooden step driven in the wall. The upper half of the body dropped limply sideways. For a moment the kilt held to the peg; the man's arms swung aimlessly down to the ground and his head lolled about with the face towards us. That is, if one could call it a face, for half was missing and the other half was only a crimson blot. Then the kilt slipped from the peg and the thing that had been a man collapsed into the bottom of the ditch.

A moment later and I was almost swept outward and over the parapet myself by the rush of the Ghurka contingent. Slant eyes ablaze with the joy of combat and almost every face broadly agrin, these little bloodhounds of the Himalayan foothills swarmed and scrambled by me, up and over the trench wall, to face that driving rain of steel which swept the plain beyond.

THE HELL THE BRITISH FACED.

The roar of the British guns had dwindled. Came now mainly the frightful clatter and blast of the German fire. Their shrapnel shrieked and burst on every side, their rifles clamored in an incessant roar, and through it all came the long-drawn, rattling drum roll of the Maxims, spraying steel upon the charging Britons like so many deadly garden hoses.

Shells were bursting all about us, in and out of the trench. The cooks and I made our way backward through the saps and communicating ditches and dugouts, already filling with still another regiment of men going forward to take up the charge. These were Territorials, a London regiment, young chaps recruited from all the peaceful, prosaic ways of city life. But as they swept past us to gain the firing trench the unconquerable spirit of the Anglo-Saxon race shone in their eyes and lurked in the angles of their set jaws.

For more than an hour the cooks and myself hugged the walls of the communication trenches, while above and around us raged the conflict. How we were pressed into service to aid in loading the wounded into ambulances, what I saw and heard of the actual result of that assault, and my experiences in getting back to division headquarters, will be told in my next letter.

CALIFORNIAN WITH ALLIES GETS RAPID PROMOTION.

THE first uncensored letter written by their son since the outbreak of hostilities, when he enlisted in the motor division of the British army, was received yesterday by the parents of Raymond K. North, a Los Angeles boy. According to the letter, young North has arisen rapidly, and is now a noncommissioned officer, attached to the headquarters staff ammunition column, as motorcycle dispatcher bearer. He is well and happy and having the time of his life, he says.

Young North was in London, studying music at a conservatory there, when war broke out last August. The prospect of excitement was too much for him, and although an American by birth, he was among the first to enlist. As he had spent some time in the automobile business in this city and Chicago, it was natural he should be attached to the motor division. His ability to speak four languages and his natural wit soon drew the attention of those in authority. He was advanced rapidly, and is now one of the trusted dispatch bearers with the British expeditionary force in Belgium.

He left this city three years ago, for a tour around the world, working his way. Upon his arrival in London, he obtained an opportunity to work while attending a great conservatory of music. This he was doing when the call to arms came.

"Italia Irredenta."

BRILLIANT ACHIEVEMENT OF THE ALPINE TROOPS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, June 19, 10:35 p. m.—The Rome correspondent of the Havas agency, writing under today's date, says that "further details of the fighting at Monte Nero bring out the brilliant achievement of the Alpine troops," of the Italian army. The correspondent continues:

"The objective of the attack, the northern side of Monte Nero, has been strongly reinforced by the enemy. The Italian officers carefully surveyed the ground and decided that the only way presenting any chances of success was to scale the almost perpendicular rocks at night and take the enemy by surprise, attacking two sides at once.

"The Alpine soldiers took rifles with fixed bayonets and grenades. They were ordered not to fire if they possibly could help it, so as to avoid giving an alarm. Some detachments took off their shoes and wrapped their feet in cloths.

"Two columns, one operating on the Vrata slope of Monte Nero and the other to the northwest of Monte Potoce, at dawn got within six feet of the enemy's trenches without being observed. They leaped in and after a brief hand to hand encounter became masters of the first line of trenches. Then they carried the line behind, capturing two companies at the advance posts, and two others in support."

SACRAMENTO (Cal.,) June 19.—After cutting his wife's throat with a razor because, he says, he found she was untrue to him, Donato Cireillo walked to the police station and surrendered today. The officers rushed to the scene when the man told his story and found the woman dead.

Cireillo and his wife were married in Stockton last Wednesday. He said he knew she loved Emanuel Dandatto and when she asked to go to the latter's house he became suspicious. He said his wife told him to go downtown when they arrived at Dandatto's home. He left, but returned and watched all night. When Dandatto went to work Cireillo went to the bedroom where Mrs. Cireillo was sleeping and killed her.

"They have Stolen My Country," Decl the Beautiful Girl Ruler.

Only Interview with Her Since the Beginning of War—"Like so Many Thieves," She Protests, Germans Sneaked into Her Beautiful Land Over N and Destroyed Her Flower Gardens.

BY RETTA MELMBURG,

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LUXEMBURG, June 5.—"They have stolen my country. Like so many thieves, they sneaked into my beautiful land, and overnight they turned my flower gardens into open-air stables for the cavalry horses."

What a tragedy!

She is only 21 years of age, this beautiful girl ruler of Luxemburg, slender, handsome, unmarried, and with five younger sisters to take care of: the youngest, Sophie, is only 13 years old; next, Elizabeth, 14; Antoinette, 16; Hilda, 18, and Charlotte, 19.

Poor orphans!

Article XLII of the Nassau Pact of June 30, 1783, had this provision:

"That in the event of the extinction of males, the rights of succession pass to the daughter or nearest heiress of the last male."

And so it was, upon the extinction of the last male, she, Marie Adelaide, "The Unfortunate," inherited the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg. That was in 1905, and she only a little girl.

"I must see your pass, Madame," demanded the German officer guarding the Adolf Bridge.

"I have lived in this country during the last twelve years, and I am a permanent resident of this country," I responded, surprised.

"This country and its population, one and all, are amenable to the German military law," shouted the German officer.

"I have no pass," I responded.

Then a huge and heavily gloved hand grasped my shoulder, swung me round and pushed me back towards the head of the bridge on the Luxemburg side.

I returned to the Boulevard du Viaduc, passing the square called by the Luxemburgians the Place de la Constitution.

On the east of the Place Guillaume is seen the Palais Grand Ducal, a modest looking renaissance building with two windows, a memorial of the Spanish occupation. This tasteful building was originally erected to be the capitol for the Duchy, but later it became the administration building for the Grand Duchy.

Alongside of this medieval building (for it was erected in 1590) stands the Parliament Building, called the Chamber des Deputies.

Facing the Chamber des Deputies there is a handsome entrance to the Palais and there stand two Prussian guards. Whenever anyone approaches this entrance, unless one can produce a satisfactory parchment, he or she faces two sharp-edged bayonets.

"You must give me sufficient reason for your seeking an interview with Her Highness." A pair of blades were levelled at my breast.

"But I have been her tutor. I—"

Then a slender girl rushed out of the gate towards me, totally ignoring the presence of the two unwanted guards, and holding out her arms, cried:

"My dear old teacher! Do not allow these horrible creatures to frighten you." Saying this she took my arm and between the two bayonets we passed into the Palais, where in previous years I had the honor of teaching her little Highness her first French lessons.

I had scarcely seated myself beside her when she broke out, with tears running down her cheeks, now crying, now sobbing, sayings:

"They have stolen my country. Like so many thieves, they sneaked into my beautiful land, and overnight they turned my flower gardens into open-air stables for their cavalry horses.

"Not satisfied with destroying our beautiful scenery, they have also stolen our public buildings, our local government, our post, our educational establishments, and they have forcibly taken charge of our railroad, for which we have spent more than £15,000,000.

"They seized our telegraph system, and whenever my people protested too strongly, they arrested them and sent them to remote Prussian military prisons; more than 200 of my leading citizens have been sent out of their country to Germany.

"My people, my once happy and prosperous people, are today poor and at the verge of starvation.

"Even I have to receive a permit from a Prussian officer before I can drive my car on my own roads, in my own land. I must even get a permit from a Prussian officer before I can use the telephone which was established by our own funds.

"This is annexation; not annexation through conquest, but annexation through stealing.

"The people of Belgium have reason to be proud of their great achievements in fighting the arrogant conqueror, but we feel we weer robbed in the small hours of the night.

"Had we suspected the treaty-breaking intentions of the Prussians, we would have rushed to arms.

"If we had had forty-eight hours' notice we would have put at least 25,000 men on our eastern frontier.

"We are as big as Montenegro, and our country is as mountainous, but we had implicit faith in the international law, and we though we were immune.

"For all practical purposes my country is annexed, and the misery of my people is deeper than that of the Belgians; in addition we hang our head in shame before the world for not having fought the stealers of our country.

"I sincerely envy the Queen of the Belgians in her present position; for my present plight is more bitter than hers.

"They were cowards; for many years these Prussians have been plotting against my country in accordance with that general German plan.

"My country with its 300,000 population has been harboring hundreds of German spites, and when the appointed hour came these men turned out to be officers in the imperial German armies. Even my two German drivers were disguised officers, and when that fateful first of August night had arrived they appeared in [illegible] uniform.

"The Germans had [illegible] established everywhere in [illegible] try and my unsuspecting [illegible] always treated these [illegible] with the utmost [illegible]

"They have published [illegible] I have received the Iron [illegible] the German Emperor. It is [illegible] I have received a medal from [illegible] Cross officials.

"They have also published [illegible] imperial German [illegible] compensated my people for [illegible] age they have done to my [illegible] land. That is also false. [illegible] compensate for the damage [illegible] 000 Germans have done to [illegible] of my land, with money [illegible] then, they have only [illegible] sum of $100,000 for [illegible] dreds of buildings 'for [illegible] sons.' They seem to think [illegible] can commit every imaginable outrage for military [illegible] never mention the fact that [illegible] spent more than $100,000 [illegible] Cross in taking care of their [illegible] soldiers.

"And now my own people [illegible] starving, and they must buy [illegible] bread from the hands of [illegible] bers."

Ill-fated Belgium! A [illegible] times unfortunate Luxemburg! [illegible]

Her people are, indeed, as [illegible] her Highness charges; the [illegible] dustrious, prosperous people [illegible] all equally poor, cannot [illegible] their former belongings.

Many of the grand duchy's [illegible] citizens have been, [illegible] in their own country by the military government, while others have been sent [illegible] their native soil to [illegible] prisons.

Proud and once happy [illegible] their children can now be [illegible] in the avenues begging for [illegible] bread, whereas, only a short [illegible] they promenaded the [illegible] prosperous and care-free [illegible]

The working men, who were formerly employed in the [illegible] tilleries, breweries, and [illegible] are now working for the [illegible] their country; and [illegible] wages they used to receive [illegible] receive meal tickets [illegible] to "KK" bread, and, in [illegible] to "K" bread, which is [illegible] known as the "war bread." [illegible]

The "K" bread cons[illegible] cent. of rye, 30 per cent. [illegible] and 20 per cent. of bar[illegible] rice, while the "KK" [illegible] of 30 per cent. rye, 30 [illegible] and 40 per cent. pig's [illegible]

This is the compensation [illegible] people of Luxemburg are [illegible] ceiving for the wanton [illegible] their neutrality.

The entire grand duchy is [illegible] military camp, and every [illegible] therein is amenable to the [illegible] military chief.

I am at times tempted [illegible] that the German bring [illegible] wounded and sick to Luxem[illegible] appears that for every [illegible] meets on the streets, one [illegible] wounded soldiers.

These wounded German [illegible] are more difficult to please [illegible] healthy ones.

The wants of the military [illegible] above all, and what is left, if [illegible] anything left, may be utilized [illegible] civilians.

These things never happened [illegible] Luxemburg before the war.

In the Place de la Constitution [illegible] soldiers are receiving their [illegible] Here and there you observe [illegible] children and old men and [illegible] their trembling hands [illegible] for a piece of bread. A [illegible] derly comes along with a [illegible] in his hand. The inexperienced young as well as the feeble [illegible] gars, are whipped out of [illegible] they scattered along the [illegible]

Carranza has returned a polite "no" to all overtures thus far made to him and the prevailing opinion here has been that in this action he was supported by his Cabinet and Gen. Obregon.

WILSON IS WAITING.

President Wilson is waiting patiently for the situation in Mexico to develop itself more clearly before announcing his next move. His statement issued less than a month ago warning all factions that they must unite or some other means would be found to set up an orderly government in Mexico was the last pronouncement of policy.

The President expects to wait a few weeks more for the factions to try to get together, but in the event of failure the open active support of the United States will be given to an entirely new set of Mexicans—a coalition it is expected of the Villa-Zapata faction which has demonstrated its willingness to make peace, and other elements identified with the other factions or parties.

AGENCY STATEMENT.

"In view of insinuations from sources unfriendly to the convention cause that the desire of the convention leaders to negotiate towards a peaceable solution of the problems of Mexico has been inspired by weakness, General Villa has authorized Enrique C. Llorante, confidential agent of the convention government, to issue this formal declaration:

"Not only is the convention government willing to enter at this time into negotiations for the restoration of peace in Mexico but it wishes to place itself on record as promising that when Obregon is finally crushed, as the convention government firmly believes he will be, the offer to meet the unfriendly element upon a common ground will be renewed immediately as evidence of that sincere intentions of the convention leaders.

"Gov. Maytorena, in answer to a telegram from General Villa directing him to send troops to restore order and protect foreign lives and interests in the Yaqui Valley, states that he has sent 700 troops for the ordered purpose. The were expected to arrive at the scene of the disturbances yesterday. The message conveying this information to the confidential agency came from Diaz Lombardo, Secretary of State of Chihuahua, last night, and by instructions from him the news has been communicated to the State Department of the United States. This prompt action by General Villa undoubtedly will furnish an effective remedy to the difficulty."

FOR PEACE CONFAB IN MEXICO CITY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EL PASO (Tex.,) June 19.—Gen. Francisco Villa favors Mexico City as the place for holding a peace conference according to a statement issued at Aguascalientes.

Villa takes the position that Mexico's troubles are national; that to hold any conference outside the country would lessen the dignity of the nation; that no matter what troops may occupy Mexico City, the people of Mexico should settle their own affairs within their own country.

The report from Washington of a split in the Carranza Cabinet was the subject of a spirited comment in Mexican circles here, but pending further developments none would venture a predication as to its affect on Mexican affairs.

Firm Stand.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

...Howard, in command of the expedition now en route with relief for American settlers in the Yaqui Valley, has orders that are elastic; in fact, he has no orders to land a force. His instructions are to inform the chief of the raiding Indians that Americans and others must be permitted to come out of the district unmolested. If he finds it necessary to send a force ashore to protect lives he has wide discretionary powers to do so but he has been instructed to take no territory and the Mexican authorities have been advised from Washington.

Inasmuch as the Indians have also declared war on Maytorena's forces officials here think they may meet some opposition if they march to repulse the American forces. Maytorena heretofore has always obeyed the orders of Gen. Villa to whom the situation has been explained, and navy department officials do not expect trouble.

Landing Admiral Howard's force to rescue the colonists would in no sense be intervention. There are many precedents for such action.

One of the Accused at Annapolis Admits He Worked for Classmen Above Him, not Knowing it was the Actual Examination They Were to Take.

ANNAPOLIS (Md.) June 19.—The first appearance on the stand of a defendant midshipman marked today's session of the court of inquiry which is investigating the "cribbing" scandal at the Naval Academy. Midshipman A. C. Rogers was the witness, the regular routine having been broken to allow Rogers's counsel to be away the early part of next week.

Rogers was subjected to a searching cross-examination. It developed that Rogers, who was a member of the third class, had translated for upper classmen copies of advance information on the Spanish examination. When asked to explain how it was that two men in the classes ahead of him who had been at the academy three and four years, respectively, needed his assistance in passing their final examination, the witness said he was unable to do so.

Rogers said he first saw a copy of the "dope" when it was brought to him by Midshipman Price of the then second class and Midshipman (now ensign) Confer, both of whom are defendants in the present proceedings. The young man testified that he only made about three copies and after doing so he found, when he got into the examination-room, that what he had translated was practically the examination itself. He felt no responsibility resting upon him, he declared, to report the matter to the academy authorities.

The first testimony as to the existence of advance copies of the last examination in the modern language department was offered today. Midshipman Edward T. Jones told of seeing the paper on the desk of his room mate, T. W. Harrison, Jr., one of the midshipman defendants.

DEFINITE CRISIS REACHED IN GALICIAN CAMPAIGN.

Arrival of Austro-German Armies Before Grodek Positions Brings Them in Contact with Strongest Defenses Which Slavs Have Yet Interposed to Their Advance.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PETROGRAD, June 19 (via London.)—The arrival of the assembled Austro-German armies before the Grodek positions, to the west Lemberg and along the river Tanew which runs easterly across the southern part of the province of Lublin, has brought the Galician campaign to a definite crisis. The Russian ability to retain Lemberg and Eastern Galicia depends, it is generally agreed in Petrograd, upon this last strong line of defense which now alone protects Lemberg from the onward rush of the Germanic armies.

The Russian forces are strongly fortified on the heights of the east of the Grodek Lakes and the Austro-German assault on these positions will present greater difficulties than were encountered in breaking down the Russian defenses on the Dunajec and San Rivers, which yielded to the numbers and compactness of the new German formation that hacked a way through Galicia. The German forces farther north which crossed the Russian border are meeting with strong resistance on the part of Russian troops from the province of Lublin. Thus far the Germans appear to have been held at the Tanew River.

The Russian line in the Grodek region eighteen miles in length, is of such great strength by reason of the character of the country, that it is believed here a successful frontal attack would be impossible. South of this region, between Komarno and the Dniester marshes, the country allows an easier approach, but this passage is considered too narrow to be practicable. A conflict, therefore, is expected in the north where the Germans are advancing straight from the San towards Radrusz, thirty-five miles northwest of Lemberg.

BRITISH DENIAL.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, June 19.—The British Admiralty has announced officially that the German submarine U-29, which was sunk the latter part of March, fell a victim to a British warship, the name of which is not disclosed. The presumable reason for this tardy announcement became apparent only when a flood of Berlin editorials in which it was stated that the U-29 was sunk by a merchant ship flying the Swedish flag, reached London. This being accepted in Germany as a fact, it was argued editorially that Germany could not relax one whit her warfare against merchantmen which might ram and destroy submarines seeking to search them before firing a torpedo.

At the time the U-29 was sunk it was rumored in England that she was rammed and cut in two by a battleship or dreadnaught.

The British statement said:

"German newspaper editorials reaching London today are all based on the theory that a British merchantman and not a warship, as asserted by the British Admiralty, sank the German submarine."

AMERICAN NOTE AND WEDDIGEN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN (via London,) June 19, 7:35 p.m.—Under the headline of "Weddigen and the American note," the Kreuz Zeitung in a leading article today resumes consideration of submarine warfare. The newspaper declares that the fate of the U-29 as announced by the German Admiralty demonstrates the danger of first investigating and then sinking ships, and raises the assumption that the German successes would have been much greater if this consideration had been discarded.

"The incident further shows clearly," the newspaper continues, "what meaning America's demand has that submarines should not torpedo even enemy merchantmen without first halting and searching them. It would be a complete surrender of the advantage due to technical superiority of the German submarines, and that is not possible.

"We have all due respect for America's business interests, but we must reserve the right to try to keep American ammunition from our enemies without scruple and with all the means at our disposal, and to cause every conceivable damage to Great Britain in the war of destruction which is forced upon us.

"Therefore, the American demand to render ineffective our submarine war against every ship carrying American passengers is for us wholly impossible."

Count Reventlow, the naval critic, in a leading article along a similar vein, says:

"It is a moral duty to extract every possible advantage from the submarine weapon. Germany cannot let this weapon be shut up as in a cage whose bars are formed by threatening notes of the United States and by international regulations.

"Now is the time for Germany to inform the world clearly and sharply that it will not let limits and restrictions be drawn by other powers to govern the manner of using its submarines."

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, June 19.—Two more hotel managers and a number of saloonkeepers have promised to close their bars tomorrow as a result of activity of the Chicago Citizens' Committee. The Auditorium Hotel and the Saratoga will not operate their bars, according to Arthur B. McCoid, attorney for the committee.

The saloons which will close are those of Andred Gering, Railway Exchange Buffet; Edward Moore, No. 168 West Jackson boulevard; John M. Henry, No. 61 East Adams street; Lakeview Inn, No. 116 South Michigan avenue; Keg and Kettle, Otis Building; A. R. Costa, Chamber of Commerce.

Investigators will be out tomorrow gathering evidence against other violators and warrants will be sworn out Sunday.

The Chicago Citizens' Committee is organizing locals in each ward, Mr. McCoid said. Bars in hotels and saloons which have agreed to close on Sunday are: Blackstone Hotel, Great Northern Hotel, Palmer House, Grand Pacific, Hotel Windermere, Virginia Hotel, Hotel Majestic, Hotel Metropole, Windsor-Clifton Hotel, Emil Kuhns, No. 118 South Clark street; P. J. Thirodeux, No. 232 South La Salle street; B. C. Guder, No. 176 West Jackson boulevard.

Two charges each are pending against the Hotel La Salle, Sherman House and the Congress Hotel bars.

Neutral Peace Movement

ment with an activity that has attracted considerable attention, the German government has not requested the President to employ his good offices, or taken any other official step, so far as is known here, to bring about a peace parley.

The peace movement which is in progress leads in the direction of joint action by the neutral powers of the world to induce the belligerents to cease hostilities. The Netherlands, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, and Switzerland have been discussing the advisability of calling a conference of all neutral powers for the purpose of formulating a peace appeal to the belligerents and of bringing influences to bear to procure acceptance of the proposals.

This plan is still in a stage of discussion and apparently none of the neutral powers most directly concerned with the scheme has been sufficiently encouraged to call the proposed conference.

GERMANY WANTS PEACE.

Germany wants peace now, but so far has refused to admit it officially or to invoke mediation in any formal manner.

The general opinion here is that Germany fears a formal step in the direction of peace would be construed by its enemies as a confession of defeat.

Diplomats representing the neutral nations promoting the plan for a mediation conference say that this fear of confessing defeat is what prevents each of the belligerents from taking any definite steps to end the war. Hence, they argue there is all the greater need of a convention of neutrals to endeavor to put the belligerents into a different frame of mind, and help them to enter upon peace parleys without injury to their pride.

Germany wants peace now because Germany is victorious now. Germany occupies about all of Belgium and a large portion of Northern France, has driven the Russians out of East Prussia and is helping the Austrians push the Czar's armies out of Galicia. Germany has checkmated the utmost endeavors of the French and British armies on the western front. England and France are suffering from shortage of men and ammunition. Russia has plenty of men but insufficient equipment and ammunition.

Germany has plenty of men, ammunition, and equipment, plenty of food for the army and the noncombatant population, and an organization of military and naval resources that compels the admiration of the world.

ON GERMANY'S TERMS.

German officials here say that any peace made in the next six months will be on Germany's terms, but they admit that their country, hemmed in by enemies which may recruit still more aid, cannot hold out forever. They fear the tide will turn eventually if the allies hang together long enough to wear Germany out.

Consequently, Germany would like to end the war while the advantage is on its side. Berlin has high hopes of forcing Russia into a separate peace before the Czar can replenish his ammunition supplies. The Germans believe that one more victory equal to the capture of Przemysl will incapacitate the Russians for an offensive campaign for six months at least. The probability that France will be ready to quit by the time snow flies has been publicly discussed in England.

The German peace terms are well known. Berlin demands the Belgian Congo as compensation for the evacuation of Belgium and the cession of Morocco or other African territory as compensation for the relinquishment of Northern France. Berlin also demands the restoration of its African colonies taken by Great Britain. Germany is willing to let go its interests in the Orient captured by Japan and Great Britain.

might make capital out of the startling increase in the number of those who have either gone crazy or turned criminal during four years of "progressive" government in California. One amateur statistician has figured that, if the proportionate ratios continue, at the end of the third generation one-half of the population of California will be State employees, and the other half will either be in the penitentiary or the madhouse.

MARKETING COMMISSION.

Another choice viand is the new State Marketing Commission. This is a "progressive" device which is to decrease the present high cost of living by increasing the number of middlemen. A new statute has been enacted which empowers the State to open markets and go into the meat, fish, vegetable and produce business. The administration may now open markets in different parts of the State and go into competition with the private dealers. There is a provision by which the State can limit the minimum price for which certain articles can be sold, but no restriction is placed on the maximum; the roof is the limit. There is a new philosophy involved in this which only the highbrows understand; the philosophy of reducing the cost of fish and game in Los Angeles by charging more for them in San Francisco and Sacramento. Its proponents admit that it is only an experiment; but it is an experiment where its advocates draw nice fat salaries, win or lose, and the State pays the bills.

It is difficult for one on the outside to distinguish the difference between the bill creating new State employment bureaus and legalized graft. These bureaus are an extension of the present Bureau of Labor Statistics, which is in reality little more than a recruiting station for the labor unions. It is a part of the price which the administration pays with other people's money for the support of the walking delegates. It has an able ally in the Industrial Housing Commission. It is a fact well known to those on the inside that no one can get a place in one of these departments unless he is recommended by the union bosses. The bill passed by the last Legislature places more money and more authority in the hands of those running these departments. The following from Senate Bill No. 984 is a sample:

"There shall also be allowed a sum not to exceed $40,000 per annum for salaries of agents or assistants, for for traveling expenses and other contingent expenses of the Bureau."

BUREAU OF LABOR.

This refers to the so-called Bureau of Labor Statistics. It gives to the head of that department a right to employ as many "agents" as he likes and to put them at what work he likes. He is not limited even by the $40,000 provision, as a deficit in any department can easily be cared for during the next two years. There is $900,000 of velvet in this year's $35,000,000 general revenue bill. There are three or four of these labor, employment and housing commissions which are modeled after those of the East and Europe, in states that have slum conditions to consider. There are no slums and no tenement districts in California; yet the State spends $200,000 a year getting statistics ready for handling those conditions, in case they should develop with future generations.

Of course the increase in the inheritance tax rate necessitates an increase in the number of inheritance tax attorneys, stenographers and office employees. In this the administration seems to have learned a valuable lesson from the practice of the railroads before the advent of the Inter State Commerce Commission. The old rate-making plan was to increase the rate as the profit to the shipper increased. The administration plan is to increase the pay-roll of every department from which there is an increase in revenue. Only the experts on the inside can understand why three attorneys and four stenographers are necessary to collect an 8 per cent. tax in a department where a 5 per cent. tax was collected by one attorney and two stenographers.

RAILROAD COMMISSION.

Similar conditions exist in the Railroad Commission. There has been a marked increase in the rate which the railroads, banks and power companies are required to pay, and there is a proportionate increase in the appropriation for the Commission. This increase is a little more than $100,000. The commissioners are permitted to spend that as they like; they are not even restricted by civil service rules relating to the employment and dismissal of help.

"Sanitary engineers" will appear for the first time this year on the State pay roll. They are an adjunct to the department of health. The high-sounding title necessitates, of course, a suitable salary. Inquiry on the part of applicants, however, has revealed that a "sanitary engineer," as interpreted by the administration, is the ordinary basement variety of plumber on which is "grafted" the totem of the Plumbers' Union.

The Rural Credits Commission is still in the show case; it cannot go on the pie counter until the necessary enabling act is voted at the special election in October. It is interesting to note some of the attempts of the administration papers to advance this rural credits plan as "progressive" legislation. The plan outlined here follows that put in force by the Imperial Government of Germany. It is also somewhat similar to the system of tithes and land leasing established by the Mormon Church. In each instance it has been used as part of a general plan to build up a strong central government. It has been opposed by Socialists in Europe as tending to increase the despotism of wealth; they regard it as an unholy alliance with power just as the Prohibitionists regard licensing saloons as an unholy alliance with Demon Rum.

But the funds for the State Tax Commission are available, now, although the tax amendment cannot be voted before October. One of the brilliant ideas of the Legislature was to create such a commission and to appropriate $75,000 for its support before the act under which it can operate is approved by the voters of the State. The reason advanced is that it can have a plan all ready to present to a special session of the Legislature next January, in case the tax amendment carries in October. During the session it was urged that the commission should either prepare a plan and present it in a concrete form to be submitted to the voters as a constitutional amendment, or that the commission should not be appointed until the tax amendment now presented is voted upon. One cannot fail to see that if the constitutional amendment is beaten in October, the $75,000 spent by the tax commission will have been simply thrown away. To one on the outside it looks like a case where the tax-eaters were so hungry they simply couldn't wait.

These are just a few of the more succulent dishes added to the bill of fare on the State pie counter; that $2,300,000 current expense increase, like the mantle of charity, is broad enough to cover a multitude of sins. For the new places the selections are all "emergency" appointments, as no civil service lists are yet available. This enables a patriot to receive his reward without any unnecessary delay. The examination can be tempered later, like the wind to the shorn lamb.

THE "BLUE BOOK."

There is only one fly in the honey, that is the "Blue Book" shortly to be issued by the Secretary of State. The State law provides that this shall be prepared and issued by that official, and an unsympathetic electorate filled the position of Secretary of State last year with a rank Philistine in the person of Frank Jordan. The book is printed in the State Printing Office and from that source proofs are available for the lieutenants of the administration. Some of the statistical tables now being prepared have created consternation in official circles. The Secretary of State has been hewing to the line in showing the increases in department expense, and he doesn't seem to care in whose eye a chip lands, so long as it is not in his own.

From the inside of the Board of Control comes a report that it may be possible to abolish the "Blue Book" this year by shutting off the appropriation therefor; there seems to be a technical question about an expiring time limit when the money is available. Most anything is regarded as preferable to having those tables spread broadcast through this and other States, as they would be if the book issues.

How Mrs. Harrod Got Rid of Her Stomach Trouble.

"I suffered with stomach trouble for years and tried everything I heard of, but the only relief I got was temporary until last spring I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and procured a bottle of them at our drug store. I got immediate relief from that dreadful heaviness after eating and from pain in the stomach," writes Mrs. Linda Harrod, Fort Wayne, Ind. Obtainable everywhere.—[Advertisement.

PRESIDENT WILSON advises Mexican leaders to compose their differences. The end of the trouble in Mexico is now in sight. Disturbed conditions of the past have made it possible to tie up what promises to be one of the greatest mines in the Republic; a mountain of Lead-Zinc ore, located near the United States border.

Options run until one year after a Government in Mexico is recognized by the United States. I am organizing a syndicate to take over option and do necessary work to keep it alive and prove ore with depth. A small amount of money will get you a substantial interest. If you cannot afford to take a chance do not join, but if you can afford to take a chance, come in and let me tell you about the possibility of making ten thousand dollars for every hundred invested.

Gentlemen:

I came to Delta in Pahvant Valley three years ago the 13th of January. I came here all alone, starting operations without my family. I am proud to say that I have 240 acres fenced hog tight. Last year I harvested 50 bushels to the acre of fall grain from 53 acres. I have 225 head of fine hogs and I believe this is an exceptionally fine hog country. Fine crops of high-grade sugar beets are raised here and it is my belief that this land will double in value when a sugar beet factory is completed. I resided last in Southern California, and I have farmed in the Sacramento Valley. I believe there are great chances for a man to succeed here who has a little money to start, say about $2000 or $3000. The water and climatic conditions are of the very best.

(Signed) ISAAC JACOBS.

State of Utah
County of Millard } ss.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 18th day of December, 1914. A. M. McPherson, Notary Public. My commission expires November 9th, 1918.

Pahvant Valley is on the main line of the Salt Lake Railroad in Southwestern Utah under $1,000,000 irrigation system. Estimated annual cost of maintenance from 40 to 50 cents per acre.

$70 Per Acre for Land and Perpetual (Gravity) Water Right. $25 An Acre Down. Balance in 10 Years.

You've read many wonderful things about Pahvant Valley. You've undoubtedly read many letters from Pahvant Valley farmers. Perhaps you've also read what a great agricultural expert said recently about these fertile lands under a $1,000,000 gravity irrigation system.

If you are in the market for the last low-priced land with cheap water, join our next excursion party. Go and see the actual evidence of what these lands will do—right now at harvest time. See thousands of acres of wheat that will average close to 45 bushels to the acre, probably the greatest average wheat yield ever made in any district in the United States. Field after field will yield over 50 bushels to the acre! This statement seems unbelievable and we would not dare to make it if the evidence were not there to prove it. Go and see for yourself. Talk direct to the farmers. Obtain the real facts. Find out why this land and water sells itself—on sight!

But get ready and go now! Don't wait until the last acre is gone. Go and compare this land and water offering with anything you've seen or heard about elsewhere in the entire West. Go and see why Pahvant Valley lands measure up to everything that has been said about them.

Don't wait until next week or the week after—pack your grip and go NOW! The most convincing land booklet you've ever read will be mailed upon request.

INTERCEPTED AS RECRUITS.

But the Warrants for Their Arrests are not Served.

Federal Sleuths Scent a Plot Against Neutrality.

Britain has Station on Pacific Coast, it is Said.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, June 19.—Federal officials today intercepted a squad of twenty-six recruits for the British army bound from San Francisco to New York. They were headed by Lieut. Kenneth Croft, who said he is on the way back to England to join his regiment. The recruits are all Englishmen. They arrived over the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad at the Union Station at 9:15 o'clock in the morning. Agents of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, headed by Chief Hinton G. Clabaugh, had been at the depot waiting for them for several hours, a tip having been received from the West that the men were on the way east.

The Federal agents were armed with thirty-five warrants issued by United States Commissioner Lewis F. Mason, charging violation of neutrality laws by enlistment in the army of a belligerent nation. The government sleuths waited until the men gathered around a bus ready to be transferred to the Michigan Central station.

Lieut. Croft and his assistants were taken by surprise when Chief Clabaugh stepped up and told them they would be detained by the government. Instead of being taken to the Michigan Central station, the Englishmen were taken to the Federal Building and subjected to a grilling examination for several hours and then released.

It is understood Lieut. Croft agreed to remain in Chicago pending an investigation of alleged recruiting activities on the Pacific Coast.

Three of the men dropped off the train en route to Chicago and two got away when the Federal officials collared the crowd at the Union Depot. The remaining twenty started east on a Michigan Central train at 3 o'clock this afternoon. All the men denied they had enlisted and the government had no evidence to the contrary. For that reason the warrants were not served. Their admissions, however, will be made the basis of a searching investigation by the government.

This is the first crowd of alleged recruits captured in Chicago. A shipment of men for England was detained in New York a week ago. That crowd also passed through Chicago on the way from San Francisco. Government agents have been stationed at every railroad station in Chicago for ninety days.

Edward Qualtrough of Liverpool, a Manxman originally, was one of the men. He told the government officials that a British society in San Francisco is conducting the shipping of men to England.

Federal officials regard the entire proceeding with suspicion. Particularly significant, they hold, is the payment of money and the physical examination required before the men are accepted.

INVESTIGATION IN SAN FRANCISCO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—Agents of the Department of Justice are investigating alleged recruiting in California for the allies in the European war, it was learned today. Franz Bopp, Consul-General for Germany at San Francisco, it was said, made complaint to John W. Preston, United States District Attorney, and gave the location of the main office of the alleged recruiting agents in San Francisco.

Mr. Bopp said today he called on Mr. Preston, but did not make such a complaint.

Mr. Preston declined to discuss the matter.

Several agents of the Department of Justice, it was said, enlisted with the recruiting agents. Others have been detailed to several California cities. It was said the recruiting system was widespread and that many enlistments had been obtained. The address given as the central office of the foreign agents is a printing office.

CRACKS COW'S TAIL IN RAGE.

NOW DAIRY HAND MUST GO TO JAIL BECAUSE BOSSY SWITCHED HIM.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, June 19.—Because, in a fit of anger he broke the tail of the cow which he was milking, F. J. Kelley, a dairy hand, until recently employed by W. H. Mutcher at the Iowa Meadows ranch to the south of this city, was today sentenced to serve twenty-five days in the County Jail.

Kelley was arrested by local officers on a ranch near Long Beach, whither he is said to have gone in an effort to escape punishment.

He was charged with cruelty to animals and tried this morning before Judge George R. Crane, sitting in Judge J. R. Pollock's court.

Kelley declared that he had not intended to break the animal's tail, but had seized it in a fit of rage after "bossy" had switched him smartly in the face.

VISITS EXPOSITION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, June 19.—Former Senator W. A. Clark, president of the Salt Lake Railroad, spent the day at the exposition in company with President Davidson. Senator Clark would say nothing regarding the question of the proposed road from Utah, which so interests San Diegoans, but said he was here to see the Montana Building and for a day of general pleasure, and that he might have some business in view.

YUCAIPA ANNUAL PICNIC.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

YUCAIPA, June 19.—This was the day of days in the Yucaipa Valley, being the annual picnic day. The big event was held at Wildwood Park and there were people from all sections here for the fun. The excitement started this morning with several races for the boys and girls. At noon a big dinner was spread under the oak trees and this was the main feature of the day. In the afternoon P. B. Hasbrouck, president of the Apple Association, delivered a short address of welcome. Short talks were also made by Rev. L. O. Bostwick and Rev. D. D. Mitchell. C. H. Smith made the main address of the afternoon, his subject being "Yucaipa and What We Can Make of It". He made an appeal for loyalty to Yucaipa and pointed out methods for advertising the valley. There was also a ball game and sports in the afternoon.

AUTO BURNS UP.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, June 19.—A new 1915 Pathfinder, worth $3500 was burned beside the road several miles south of Laguna Beach yesterday afternoon. A man and woman were in the machine when it backed off a grade. When an attempt was made to start it, the machine caught afire and was destroyed. A passer-by took the man and woman into his machine and went with them to San Diego. No one at Laguna Beach knows who owned the car.

FIRST OVER ROAD.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CRAFTON, June 19.—W. L. Thornquest, who holds the record between Redlands and Pine Knot Hotel in Bear Valley for automobiles, having made the trip in two hours and seven minutes, was the first man to drive over the Santa Ana canyon road into the valley this year. Thornquest made the trip Friday and although the road is not in the best of shape he made it in two hours and fifty-five minutes.

TO MEET FLOOD IN KANSAS CITY.

Residents of Lower Sections Making Preparations.

Weather Bureau Warns the Bottoms Dwellers.

All Rivers in Missouri are Reported on the Rise.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) June 19.—Residents of the lower sections of Kansas City tonight were preparing to meet flood conditions, which, according to the government weather bureau, may prevail within forty-eight hours.

In the big wholesale and packing-house district of the west bottoms hundreds of men were at work carrying goods to second floors and every precaution was being taken to prevent such losses as occurred seven years ago when the Kansas River swept across the lowlands and ran into first floors of many buildings.

Most of the foreign labor employees of the packing-houses live in the bottoms. The district also contains many of the big wholesale houses.

PREDICTS FLOODS.

P. Connor, weather observer, said he expected flood conditions to prevail in the districts by Monday. The principal business and residence districts of the city, he said, will not be affected.

A new storm era extending all over Kansas and Western Missouri prevailed last night and early today. The heaviest precipitations were in the northeastern part of Kansas and amounted to about two inches.

Rain was falling today at Kansas City and Topeka.

All rivers in Kansas were reported rising this morning. The Kansas at Topeka was eight feet higher than Friday.

The Missouri River reading at Kansas City this morning was 23.9 feet, a rise of 1.6 feet over night. The danger point is 21 feet. A further rise of five or six feet is expected.

KANSAS RIVER BOILING.

The Kansas River was boiling just three feet below the low Kansas City Southern Railway bridge in the west bottoms this morning. Wagon loads of sand bags were hurried to the spot in preparation for breaches in the dikes on either side of the river. The bridge is under the control of the Kaw Valley Drainage Board. Gov. Capper of Kansas ordered the board to blow it up if necessary to save the bottoms from a flood.

Charles L. Haydock, 31 years old, as assistant civil engineer in the employ of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, was drowned today at Leavenworth Junction on the Missouri River.

TORNADO IN MISSOURI.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SPRINGFIELD (Mo.) June 19.—A tornado struck Lamar, Mo., razing buildings and cutting the city off from wire communication at noon today. The storm was going southeast through Barton, Dade and Christian counties. No details have been received here.

Reports from Lamar late today were that the public square was flooded with three feet of water and every store was damaged.

FLOOD CAUSES FAMINE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SPRINGFIELD (Ill.) June 19.—Famine conditions along the Illinois bank of the Mississippi River resulting from floods which washed out the growing crops are to be relieved by the State. Adj.-Gen. Frank S. Dickson left here today with a carload of provisions which will be taken to Kaskasia where conditions are worse.

BRITISH STEAMER STOPPED BY SHOT.

FAILS TO SHOW HER SIGNAL LETTERS PASSING OUT OF QUARANTINE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 19.—The British steamer Mottisfont, while passing out of quarantine late today, did not show her signal letters. The torpedo-boat destroyer Parker, on neutrality duty at quarantine, ordered the steamer to heave to, but she kept on going. The Parker then fired one blank shot and the steamer stopped. The navy tug Powhatan went alongside and found the vessel's clearance proper and allowed her to proceed.

MASONS HOSTS AT RECEPTION.

LOS ANGELES LODGES HONOR THEIR STATE CHIEF.

Four Thousand Persons Attend Notable Meeting of the Order at Get-together Session in Shrine Auditorium—Grand Master Bids Many Merrymakers Welcome.

One of the most interesting Masonic events of recent years was the reception and get-together party in honor of Judge B. F. Bledsoe, Grand Master of the Masons in California, given under the auspices of the twenty-five Masonic lodges of Los Angeles last evening at Shrine Auditorium. A democratic gathering of about 4000 was present. Frank C. Prescott was master of ceremonies.

"I feel that I am receiving this not so much because of myself but because of the office which I hold," Judge Bledsoe said in a brief address preceding a programme by the children of the Masonic Home at San Gabriel and the dancing. "I feel that you are honoring the office much more than me personally.

"I rejoice tonight that the Masonry of Los Angeles is such a united brotherhood. In the name of the Grand Lodge of California, whose chief officer I am, and in the name of the order which began centuries ago and will last through all time, I bid you welcome on this occasion."

Motley H. Flint was chairman of the Committee on Arrangements. The other members were E. B. Spencer, F. B. Comfort, H. R. MacLaferty, Dr. S. E. Burke, H. W. Reynolds, C. E. Boag, D. A. Schweitzer, F. M. Parker, and R. H. Morse.

The programme given by the children of the Masonic Home, was received with much appreciation. It included selections by the Girls' Mandolin Club, a drill by the boys, tambour drill by the older girls and a "fire-fly dance" by the little girls of the home. Dancing began at 9:30 o'clock. Refreshments were served in the balcony.

ROUTED BY BEES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EAST HIGHLANDS, June 19.—A swarm of bees, stirred up and made angry by a team of horses driven by Robert Stoutsenberg here, attacked the driver and the horses and completely routed them. Stoutsenberger ran and jumped in an irrigation ditch filled with water. One of the horses was stung so badly that it will probably have to be killed. Frank Sewall, the retired ship owner, who has a home here, lost a valuable horse a few weeks ago under similar circumstances. Stoutsenberg was using the team to furrow out in the orchard of William Lytle so that irrigation could be done. The horses brushed the bees off the limb of a tree and then things began to happen. The horses ran for the barn, but were unable to escape the bees, although the honeymakers confined their attentions largely to one horse.

FRENCH TAKE PRISONERS IN FOND DE BUVAL FIG

Heights are Carried by Assault After Spirited gle and Troops are Holding the Ground Last German Trenches—British Airmen Power Station at La Bassee.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, June 19.—The following official statement was issued by the War Office tonight:

"In the sector to the north of Arras we have continued our action and on several points gathered the fruits of the favorable engagements of the last few days.

"After a very spirited struggle the Fond de Buval, obstinately defended by the enemy since May 9, was completely invested and carried by assault. There we captured some machine guns and a few prisoners, a dozen of whom remain in our hands, the resistance of the Germans having been desperate.

"On the slopes extending to the east of Lorette in the direction of Souchez, we have carried several trenches and made 300 prisoners, about ten of whom are German officers.

"We hold the slopes of hill 119, where our troops are maintaining themselves, clinging to the ground beyond the last German trenches, notwithstanding counter-attacks by the enemy. To the south of these slopes our front has been carried forward to the northeast of the 'labyrinth.'

"The enemy by a counter-attack of extreme violence retook from us last night one part of the great passageway which we had previously occupied; we regained it during the course of the day and we have repulsed all the attempts of the enemy.

"In the entire sector the artillery engagement, which has been intense, continues. In the outskirts of the forest of Le Pretre the enemy attempted to attack, but was not able to debouch.

"At Embermenil a German battalion captured last night two of our small posts, but we immediately counter-attacked and, although with forces inferior in number, reoccupied all of our positions and drove to flight.

BIG MYSTERY AT LAUNCHING.

Wine Bottle Breaks, Water Flask Remains Whole.

Superdreadnaught Arizona is Floating in East River.

Progress of Navy Lauded by Daniels in a Speech.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, June 19.—Who padded the water bottle? Discover that and you will have disclosed the navy's latest and greatest mystery. This bottle was one of two with which the superdreadnaught Arizona, today launched from the New York navy yard, was to have been christened, one containing wine and the other, as a concession to the prohibitionists, containing water.

The wine bottle broke, but the other didn't. Then after it was all over, there were whispers that judicious padding had saved the water bottle. So it was to the great joy of the seamen and the equally great chagrin of the prohibitionists that the giantess went overboard christened in the old way.

An unbiased hand, that of young Miss Esther Ross of Prescott, Ariz., swung the two bottles laced together against the bow of the giant vessel as it began its majestic glide down the ways. So vigorous was the swing from the western maid that the champagne bubbled and frothed over a square yard or so of the boat.

As one bottle went in peace and the other in pieces, pandemonium broke loose among the 60,000 gathered to see the launching of America's most powerful ship of war.

THE LAUNCHING IS IMPRESSIVE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 19.—The launching of the Arizona today was an impressive sight.

From the navy yard, black with a holiday throng from the spans of the Brooklyn and Williamsburg bridges, from the docks and piers along the Manhattan and Brooklyn water fronts, from scores of craft hugging the far shore of the East River and from every vantage point of windows and housetops in the vicinity, many tens of thousands saw the newest of American battleships glide down the greased ways.

Bishop Atwood of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Arizona, in the invocation, prayed the Arizona might be "a terror to doers of evil." Three blasts from a whistle announced that the moment of preparedness had come. The signal was echoed from almost every steamer in the harbor till the groaning of the six navy bands was lost in the din.

The bands united in playing "The Star Spangled Banner;" the ship trembled and moved; the sponsor swung her bottles. A deafening cheer went up from the crowd and in a few moments the battleship's stern was cleaving the waters of the East River. She settled gracefully in the water and, carried forward by the weight of her 12,000 tons, swung far over in the river toward the Williamsburg bridge. A fleet of little navy tugs drew alongside, made fast and started back with the unwieldy captive toward the navy yard docks.

From the grandstand the christening was witnessed by Secretary of the Navy Daniels, army and navy officials and representatives of the city of New York, including Mayor Mitchell. After the launching Secretary Daniels was the guest at a banquet at the navy yard.

Gov. Hunt of Arizanoa, United States Senator Henry F. Ashurst and members of the official party which represented the State of Arizona at the launching, also were present at the luncheon.

FROM DANIELS' REMARKS.

That Navy Department experts are now experimenting with devices by which it is hoped to protect future American dreadnaughts against submarine torpedo attacks was revealed here today by Secretary Daniels in his speech at the banquet.

After describing the work done on five of the five dreadnaughts authorized for the navy by the last Congress, the secretary said:

"The experts are at present considering the best general type for the two remaining authorized dreadnaughts, while experiments are being made with a view to their protection under the water against the submarine torpedo, which has proved so deadly in the present European war.

"The launching of this big dreadnaught," Mr. Daniels added, "is an event which tells better than can be spoken by any words the steady and orderly growth of the navy. Within the last year I have had the pleasure of witnessing at Quincy the launching of the Nevada; at Camden of the Oklahoma, and at Newport News of the Pennsylvania and now today of the Arizona. This follows close upon the completion of our two latest dreadnaughts, the New York and the

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

UPPER SANDUSKY (O.) June 19.—Harvey O. Dysinger, a wealthy Hardin county farmer, today shot and probably fatally injured his wife, killed his daughter, Esther, 15 years old; wounded his son, Herbert, 16, and committed suicide at his home near Forest. Dysinger was 40 years old. No motive for his act is known. The only member of the family to escape unscathed was the youngest child, Kenneth, aged 11, who was rescued by Herbert. The latter is not seriously hurt.

Using a rifle, Dysinger shot his wife through the head as she lay asleep. Then he went to the room of his daughter, whom he shot through the head as she slept. Herbert, in an adjoining room was climbing out of bed to investigate when Dysinger entered and fired at him. The bullet wounded him in the head. The boy grappled with his father and finally disarmed him.

Herbert then pulled his younger brother Kenneth from bed and ran to a neighbor for help. Dysinger then obtained a revolver and lying down beside his wife shot himself through the heart.

JOHN BURKE AGAIN INDICTED.

FORMER PANAMA AGENT TO BE TRIED IN INDIANAPOLIS.

Bill Declares He Collected More than $55,000 Unlawfully While He was Acting as Manager of Railroad on the Isthmus—Former Governor is Also Involved.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) June 19.—John Burke of this city, former manager of the commissary department of the Panama railroad, is charged with accepting graft amounting to more than $55,000 in two indictments returned by the Federal grand jury and made public here today.

Ricardo Bermudez, said to have been a former Governor of Colon, Panama, and Pascal Canavaggio, a former merchant of Panama, both now living in New York, were indicted with Burke, all of whom, with Jacob L. Selas, have been indicted previously in New York. Federal Judge Francis Wright of Danville, Ill., received the indictments and fixed Burke's bond at $5000 and Bermudez's and Canavaggio's at $10,000. All of the men are under bonds on similar indictments returned in New York but it is understood they will be brought here for trial, since the Federal grand jury was called in special session at the request of the Department of Justice to make the investigations.

In the indictment voted today it is charged that Burke collected $28,000 from Bermudez, who had large contracts to furnish supplies to the commissary department of the railroad departments.

The other indictment alleges that Canavaggio sold $70,000 worth of wines and maccaroni to the railroad and then Burke collected $6000 on the deal, which was deposited to Burke's credit in Indianapolis banks. It is also stated in the indictment that Burke collected about $22,000 from Salas on tobacco contracts.

LANDIS IMPOSES TWO-CENT FINE.

FARMER WHO RESISTED AGENT IS ASSESSED.

Judge Who Ordered Standard Oil Company to Pay Twenty-nine Million Dollars Deals Leniently with Horny-handed Son of Toil Brought up Before Him in Chicago.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

CHICAGO, June 19.—Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis of the United States District Court, who once assessed a fine of $29,240,000 against the Standard Oil Company, imposed one of 2 cents against Henry Johnson of Barrington, Ill., today. Johnson, with a shot gun, drove a government agent off his premises when the agent was looking for cases of foot and mouth disease.

"The fact is that this defendant is a farmer who rents from another man; that at the time of this offense there was a large number of men going about the country doing things to other people's cattle," said Judge Landis.

"One of these, armed with a squirt gun and other paraphernalia, came to Johnson and was going to do something to his cows. The building of a dairy business is not an overnight job. Johnson armed himself with a shotgun, a Gatling gun, a howitzer, or whatever it was, and drove off the intruder.

"Now besides the facts in the case, the court must consider what manner of criminal it has to deal with. I looked at the hands of this man; they were covered with large knots, acquired in working sixteen to eighteen hours a day. He had worked for twenty-eight years to care for himself and family and had acquired a herd of twenty cattle. Still he resisted a government official charged with a certain duty and this court must uphold the honor and dignity of the United States government.

"It is the duty of this court to impose such a stinging fine that the defendant and men like him will never commit the offense again.

"It is the judgment and sentence of this court that the defendant be fined two cents without costs."

Those in court listened to the judge's concluding remarks with open mouths. Johnson was not present and a bailiff and a newspaper reporter split the fine between them.

TRUCKEE'S "ICE PALACE" IS DESTROYED BY FIRE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TRUCKEE (Cal.) June 19.—Truckee's huge "Ice Palace" and toboggan slides, the theater for the famous winter carnivals annually held here, were destroyed by fire late today. All sleighs, toboggan sleds, skiis and skates housed in the palace were burned. The loss is estimated at more than $20,000.

The cause of the fire has not been discovered, but it is believed to have been started by the carelessness of tramps who were camping in the outer sheds. A number of buildings outside the ice carnival enclosure were burned, causing an additional loss estimated at $2000.

Scores of fraternal and outing excursions had been coming to Truckee for years for the winter carnivals, and it was in the festivities here that thousands of Californians had their first experience with ice and snow.

Financial Review.

EUROPE'S DIFFICULTIES TO PAY AMERICA'S BILLS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 19.—The new level for virtually all forms of foreign exchange at New York, in spite of inflow of gold in unprecedented volume, shows the difficulties of this country's debtors in meeting their obligations to us. The gold replenishment coupled with the moderate demands on the domestic money market, brings up the bank reserves of local clearinghouse institutions to $200,000,000 in excess of the legal requirements, with the Federal rediscount but slightly encroached upon.

Wise employment of this prodigious mass of credits is the foremost financial problem to be met. The needs of our foreign debtors evidently are most pressing, involving also continuance of trade advantages which the war's necessities have brought to us. A plan favored by American bankers and proposed by French and English government authorities looks to the deposit here as collateral for a loan to them by American bankers of American securities now held in Europe.

Superiority of this collateral over war bonds is emphasized by Great Britain's proposal for additional issue of $1,750,000,000 and by statistics of the huge total aggregate of such bonds in all countries. The depressing influence on prices of the liquidations of these American securities would also be avoided. Definite details dealing with these phases of the situation are looked for in the coming week.

The repressive effect of the unsettled dispute with Germany was manifest to some extent, largely in curtailed market operations. Railroad dividends came into question in view of exhibits of earnings. A fall in September wheat to $1 modified western cheerfulness. Shading of copper and lead prices induced reactions in that group. Loss of the government's criminal suit against the National Cash Register Company, following the United States Steel decision, was the occasion of speculative inferences regarding other suits and of the final interpretation of the Sherman law.

BELGIAN HARE EXPERT TO GIVE FREE LECTURE

Mr. F. P. Caldwell, who will deliver a free illustrated lecture Tuesday evening, June 22nd, in the large ground floor lecture hall of the Angeles Mesa Land Company at 433 South Hill street, is one of the best known breeders of Belgian hares on the Pacific Coast. Mr. Caldwell owns and operates the famous Royal Red Rabbit Ranch, one of the show places of Southern California.

The lecturer's talk has to do largely with the Belgian hare industry as a practical, money-making proposition—being illustrated by a series of interesting pictures that have been prepared from photographs taken on Mr. Caldwell's ranch. Admission is absolutely free. The lecture is given under the auspices of the Angeles Mesa Land Company, owners of San Fernando Mission Lands at the mouth of the $30,000,000 aqueduct. Sales of these lands have approximated over $200,000 in the last three months. The lecture begins promptly at 7:45 p.m.

The Governor and Attorney-General.

LOS ANGELES, June 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The eleventh-hour decision of the Attorney-General that the so-called Antivivisection Bill is unconstitutional is certainly a remarkable opinion in the face of certain facts. If this amended bill is unconstitutional it is indeed a fine tribute to the supposed ability and efficiency of the Attorney-General's office, where it was drawn up, passed upon and pronounced absolutely legal and constitutional in every respect before being finally submitted to the Legislature.

This complete somersault and reversal of opinion most decidedly calls for a public answer to the questions, "Which opinion is correct?" and "What is the matter with the Attorney-General's office?" Is it ignorance or duplicity? Under which banner do they prefer to take their stand?

However, Gov. Johnson saw fit to announce that, even if it were constitutional, he did not approve of it. No one familiar with Johnson's record supposed for one moment that he would approve of it, but it was hoped that, in view of its almost unanimous passage through both houses of the Legislature, showing clearly that the great majority of the public desired its enactment, and the splendid support accorded it by both press and prominent people, he would not oppose their wishes.

If it were not for his constantly-reiterated and oft-proclaimed slogan, "Let the People Rule," we should certainly be pardoned for thinking, in view of this incident and numerous others, that we had once again met our old acquaintance, "The Public be D——!"

This is a plain showing of how "the people rule," and the "fair treatment" accorded Senate bill No. 102 in official headquarters. Furthermore, Gov. Johnson makes the absurd statement that the present laws are entirely adequate to cover the class of cruelty aimed at. As a lawyer, no one should know better than he that this is not true, as the various provisions and exemptions of the law now render such a thing impossible. Under these circumstances his assertion that "there can be no excuse for those who insist cruelties are practiced upon animals for permitting these cruelties to continue" amounts to little less than an affront.

If any one man, clothed with a little brief authority, is allowed the absolute power of dictatorship, so as to completely nullify the wishes of the people, no matter how emphatically and unanimously expressed through their representatives in the Legislature, the question naturally arises, "Why is a Governor?" or else "Why is a Legislature?" Common sense would suggest that either one or the other should be dispensed with.

If the people prefer the dictator, as it amounts to under the present system, why not pass it up to him at once and do away with the useless expense of a superfluous Legislature?

The present prevailing idea that "the people rule" is nothing but a pleasing little piece of fiction.

No Governor of the State of California ever exercised this power of dictatorship more arbitrarily than Hiram W. Johnson, who at the same time makes the Welkin ring with his vociferous assertions about respecting the wishes of the people.

It would seem that we might at least be spared a little of this hypocrisy and adding of insult to injury.

Bogus Auctions.

LOS ANGELES, June 18.—[To the Editor of Times:] Permit me to draw the attention of the public through the medium of your columns to a gross swindle that is perpetrated daily on an unsuspecting public in the city, namely, the bogus auction business, that is allowed to go on daily on the principal streets of this city. To say it is a wanton steal is putting it very mildly. It is a shame and a disgrace that the public is systematically fleeced by crooks, who call themselves auctioneers, selling brass for gold, and fleecing the poor of their hard-earnings. From a conversation I had today with a policeman, who said he was powerless to prevent this swindle, I was told these crooks after they have worked the city for all it was worth hike themselves to the beach towns of Ocean Park and Venice and Long Beach and rob the people with bogus Japanese wares. The "bronze" they sell is iron lacquered over, absolutely worthless; the linen goods they sell are cotton, and the worst kind of junk peddled out to poor suckers. It is about time a stop was put to it. Surely there must be a law to prevent such highway robbery.

CHARLES L. SHERMAN.

Just Before Bismarck Fell.

[London Chronicle:] Bismarck's dismissal from office, which many have regarded as one of the great mistakes of the Kaiser's life, seems to have taken the Iron Chancellor by surprise, but he might well have taken warning from a little incident, recorded by Grant Duff, which occurred just before his fall.

Going to see the Emperor one morning he was requested to wait, which he did in an antechamber, where the little Crown Prince and his brothers were amusing themselves, says the London Chronicle. They wished him to dance with them, and on his declaring himself too old, insisted on his playing the piano while they danced. He sat down to the instrument and played until the Kaiser entered. "So," was the royal greeting, "here is the fourth generation of the Hohenzollern which has to dance to your playing!"

Ancient Concrete.

[Chicago Journal:] The statement that reinforced concrete has been found in French buildings erected in the sixteenth century will surprise no one who has even a superficial knowledge of architecture. Concrete in some form is a very ancient building material indeed.

Some of the lesser pyramids were built of a puddled mixture, which is a fairly close relative of our modern sand-cement-crushed-rock compound. The dome of the Pantheon at Rome, built nearly nineteen centuries ago, is made of puzzolan concrete, a volcanic ash being the binding material. It is not reinforced, or rather, there is no record that it is reinforced. But the supporting columns of Santa Sophia, built five centuries later, are strengthened with lead rods, and medieval builders used iron cramps to bind their courses of natural stone. Why should not the architects of the renaissance use the same reinforcement for artificial stone?

Modern civilization, even in its industrial aspects, is not a wholly new thing. It has roots deep in the past.

THE CHECKERBOARD OF THE WAR.

BY HARRY CARR.

NEWPORT (R.I.) June 19.—In New York one comes in almost direct contact with the European war. It is easy to meet officers of all nations who have either gone to the front themselves or are in direct touch with the front. I find that none of these military men have the slightest confidence in the tentative peace movement now under way. On the contrary all the officers I have met are firmly convinced that the war must drag on for at least two years more.

The obstacle to peace is the ownership of Belgium. After all the lives and treasure it has cost, the German public will not now hear of any plan for peace which involves surrendering Belgian soil. England, on the other hand, must drive the Germans out of Belgium. The military safety of the British Empire would be imperiled if the German military machine were allowed to remain just across the channel. The very badly mussed up prestige of Great Britain also demands that England make good her promise to restore Belgium at whatever cost.

THE CRUEL MILITARY VIEW.

Aside from these considerations, most of the military men, although they deplore its horror, think it would be unfortunate to have the war come to an end this summer. Nothing would have been accomplished. The war would surely be followed on the part of all the nations by the building of new machines of war; then another and a worse war would break out.

Terrible as the fighting is, army men think it would be better now to go on until one or the other side is crushed beyond hope of future military activities.

The German officers state very frankly that from now on the Austro-German-Turkish forces will be compelled to fight on the defensive; that they will not again resume the offensive during the war. They feel that it will be impossible, however, for the allies to break down the German defense in any theater of operations.

A German officer, just returned from Constantinople, brings news of the actual conditions there. He says the allies are only battering the outermost rim of the Turkish defenses and that they haven't any chance whatever of ever taking the Turkish capital. He denies, however, that the British assault upon the Dardanelles was a stupid blunder, as the world seems to believe. At the time it was undertaken the Turks were in the midst of a menacing attack upon Egypt. He says this march of twenty thousand Turkish troops across the Arabian desert was one of the most remarkable campaigns in the military history of the world.

DID NOT REGISTER.

This campaign was expected to be in conjunction with a rebellion in Egypt which failed to develop properly. The Turks, however, had succeeded in sinking three British warships in the Suez (news of which was suppressed by the censor) and were able to deliver a severe blow at Egypt when the attack upon Constantinople compelled the abandonment of the campaign.

As to Russia, the Germans believe that the Russian army is absolutely through for the present. If it were possible for the German army to drive through and capture Petrograd, the Russian army would be completely eliminated for the rest of the war. This of course is not possible on account of Germany's other foes. The general belief is that if the war lasts two or three years, the Russians will come back again in great force.

ON THE ITALIAN SIDE.

The next great activity will be seen on the Italian side. No special effort has been made thus far to check the Italian advance. The intention has been to allow the Italian army to advance to the edge of the Austrian zone of trenches. This point has about been reached. German officers have no respect for Italian military prowess. The feeling is that the Italian troops are temperamentally unable to stand the intense nervous strain of heavy shell fire. Uncensored letters to some of the New York papers state that the Italian soldiers do not obey their officers, that the unrest of Italian Socialism has spread to the army.

On the western frontier, it is contended by the Germans that they have so thoroughly fortified all the ground that a million Italian soldiers thrown in to help the French would not turn the tide.

Most of these facts are admitted by the allies who rely on a long, wearing siege to exhaust Germany financially, industrially and as to the supply of soldiers.

Centennial.

GEN. FRENCH RECEIVED IN A HOLLOW SQUARE.

BY FREDERICK PALMER.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS OF THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, June 18 (via London, June 19, 9:05 p.m.)—On the centennial anniversary of the battle of Waterloo, Field Marshal Sir John French, the British commander, visited a cavalry division not long out of the trenches. By brigades, those who had survived the shells and asphyxiating gas of the second battle of Ypres, were awaiting his coming in a field near their quarters, their khaki melting into the green of the grass where they lay resting and bathing themselves in the genial sun of a mild June day.

When the automobile appeared with the little British flag which only the commander-in-chief's car flies, they formed a hollow square.

The absolute simplicity of this meeting of leader and men and the thought of all they went through made the scene a most affecting one, the sturdy white-haired soldier carrying the customary walking stick which every British officer affects, with a little blaze of colors of his many campaigns on his breast.

The general stood in the center of the square before the Tenth Hussars, once his own regiment, and before the famous First Life Guards, whose sentries, in shiny cuirasses and plumed helmets at Whitehall attract tourists, now tanned, trench-hardened warriors on foot, with no brass except the regimental insignia on their shoulders. With them were other regiments that had won glory at Waterloo.

Sir John did not make a speech, but spoke as soldier to soldier, hesitating for words at times in his emotion. The men were actually seeing their commander-in-chief, who, in the complicated immensity of modern war, is only a name to them.

While Wellington personally encouraged his soldiers in a battle a century ago, which occupied hardly the front of a brigade in the present trenches, this was the only way a modern commander could make his men feel that he was a human leader and not a machine. As a cavalryman he said:

"I knew what you were capable of and you have shown that you are equal to any work required of a soldier. It requires more dogged tenacity, more courage, to stand for many days in the trenches than to make one brave charge.

"Against that dastardly attack at Ypres with a weapon against all usages, when the cloud of gas rolled over your trenches, gasping, blinded and in darkness, you stood your ground with a determination which prevented any disaster."

But Others Might.

[Chicago News:] The manager of a vaudeville house was testing the abilities of a few candidates for stage honors one day recently and this is how he let down one of the would-be funny men:

"Your songs won't do for me. I can't allow any profanity in my theater," said he.

"But I don't use profanity," was the reply.

"No," said the manager, "but the audience would."

STORIES OF THE CONTEST OFFICE.

INTERESTING DOINGS OF MANY OF THE CANDIDATES.

Their Activities in Bringing in Credits and Those of Their Friends Proves that There is Much Prosperity in and Around the City of Los Angeles.

The entire population of Los Angeles must be living solely on flour—or the "by-products" of flour—if the A1 sacks we cancel at the Prosperity and Trade Contest office is any indication. Or is it just possible that a mine of flour sacks has been discovered somewhere, a regular El Dorado kind of a mine, where nice, clean, brand new A1 flour sacks can be had for the picking up.

At first there was only one flour specialist, but recently, several have sprung up. Margaret Young and Mrs. V. T. Reuter are two of the most successful flour specialists, with the odds in favor of Mrs. Reuter. Ola Reavis is a close third in the A1 race, but favors the ten and twenty-four-pound sacks while the other two ladies are more partial to forty-nine- and ninety-eight-pound sacks.

Violet Brand Shortening is in high favor also, these days. Only yesterday a contestant—that same Margaret Young, by the way—sent in five fifty-pound Violet Brand Shortening pails, and later in the day Florence Doty came in with seven—in an automobile, if you please—and just before closing time Virginia Porter came all the way up from the harbor with nine of these most desirable "tin credits."

Speaking of cans, we must not overlook the almost ridiculously large load of Ben Hur cans brought in on Thursday by an out-of-town contestant. They were all neatly packed in pillow cases, seven cases in all—Ben Hur cinnamon, Ben Hur cloves, Ben Hur ginger, Ben Hur pepper, again Ben Hur pepper, and once more Ben Hur pepper. It makes us sneeze even to think of those pepper cans.

In all, there were 214 pepper and 171 cans of assorted Ben Hur spices. In answer to our inquiry as to where such a large number of cans had been obtained, the contestant explained that she went to a number of her friends and induced them each to buy from a half dozen to two dozen cans of Ben Hur spices, "and," she said, "it does seem funny, but most of them were in need of pepper, so bought that, emptied it into large glass jars and gave the cans to me."

Miller's programmes are coming in, in ones and twos and dozens and skads and oodles. It looks as though some of the contestants spend the entire day going in and out of Miller's Theater—just so they can receive a programme when they come out. One little girl whose big sister is a Trade contestant, told naively the other day of her adventures in collecting Miller's programmes.

"Sister and I went to Miller's—we go there most every day, 'cause we just love their shows—and when we came out a girl gave us each a programme. I asked sister if I could not stand outside a while and ask some of the people for their programmes as they came out. Sister didn't want me to, but I coaxed her and so she went across to an ice cream parlor and waited for me—she gave me an ice cream cone, too. Some people were awful nice to me, but one man was awful cross. When I asked him for the programme and told him it would be good for 150 credits for my sister, he said, just as snappy as could be, 'Well, if it is that valuable, I guess I will keep it myself.' Wasn't he mean?"

Mrs. Kress is doing good work for the New Method Laundry and the Balloon Dye Works, and Ida Gossage is doing good work for a great many of the co-operating merchants. In fact, Ida Gossage has won the proud distinction of never having had any of her credits "turned down" at the contest office.

From South Pasadena comes an interesting and pathetic little story. The very first contestant on our ledger pages is Mrs. Ernest Ahlert, No. 1119 El Centro street, South Pasadena. Although Mrs. Ahlert is the first contestant, the contest office has never been favored with a visit from her. Her credits were always brought in by a kindly-faced man with a decidedly Teutonic accent, who, we soon learned, was Mr. Ahlert. Week after week he came and still Mrs. Ahlert did not come with him. Recently the credits have grown more rapidly and several times little packages have come by mail, enclosed with a slip of paper reading, "Please credit Mrs. Ernest Ahlert." As the major portion of the office force are women, we became curious and yesterday when Mr. Ahlert called we just came right out and asked him why Mrs. Ahlert did not come with him some times. Then the grave Teuton face lighted up with a wonderfully tender expression, the kindly Teuton voice trembled a little as he told us that Mrs. Ahlert "had not made a step in four years out of doors," but sat all day in a chair by the window, "and," he continued, "she will be so happy if she should win, even ever so little a thing, for then she will feel that she is still a part of the big world." So now we know why Mrs. Ahlert did not come and we all hope from the bottom of our hearts that she will win, "even some little thing."

GREETED WITH CHEERS.

Mr. Bryan, who arrived at Carnegie Hall shortly after the meeting had started, was greeted with prolonged cheering by the large crowd that filled the hall. After reading his prepared speech the former secretary of the state continued for some minutes extemporaneously.

"In a paper this morning, the losses for the first six months of the war were given as 2,146,000 killed and 4,931,000 wounded," he said "No man in Europe today knows from the lips of the ruler what they are fighting about. Ten months have passed and we find increasing suffering, increasing destruction and increasing devastation. They have not only killed themselves, but they have disturbed all the neutral countries in the world. They have kept us busy spending money to keep out of war.

"If war does nothing else it will teach that peace is the normal state, and when it is over we will have some laws that will protect neutral nations. The time will come and it is not far off, when offer of mediation will be in order. This is the natural nation to offer mediation. Every one of these nations fighting have descendants in this country and our sympathy is with all. Every soldier boy that dies over there makes us sad.

"Isn't it bad enough to have hatred preached over there, without having it preached here? The American people should stand to a man against war and for peace.

"I believe it possible to prevent war. If the plans proposed here tonight for the government to take over all the plants manufacturing arms were adopted it would be a great help to prevent war.

"Nothing has surprised me more in my official connection than that great metropolitan papers are more interested in headlines than they are in the people. They are trying to determine the policy of a nation and take its affairs out of the hands of the officials.

"As a private citizen I am going to use my influence to crystallize the peace sentiment, so that when the jingoes tell the President what to do, the peace-loving people will tell him what the real sentiment is. If a vote were taken in this country, ninety-nine out of every 100 citizens would vote that an American owes it to his country that he should not go into the danger zone."

AS TO MEXICO.

"The majority of people are willing to investigate," continued Mr. Bryan, who was heckled by someone in the gallery with "how about Mexico?"

"We have been investigating in Mexico for two years and three months, and we are investigating yet. Why can't we investigate in a Christian spirit for one year on any question no matter what it is. A year's time will allow us to reach an amicable arrangement. The European countries are under a great strain now. This calm country can afford to consider the other nations' condition."

Mr. Bryan spoke of the many treaties that have been negotiated with European and other countries that call for a year's investigation of all grievances.

"We can afford," he continued, "to say not only to Germany, but to every country in the world, 'We will give time to investigate.' Now is the time to set the world an example and instead of following in the wake of the old nations, show them a better way."

J. P. Holland of the International Brotherhood of Firemen was chairman of the meeting. Joseph D. Cannon of the Western Federation of Miners, Meyer London, Socialist member of Congress, and Congressman Frank Buchanan of Illinois were other speakers.

A resolution that the patent rights for the manufacture of firearms and other implements of war be taken from "the international capitalists who are promoting jealousy and prejudice" and turned over to the government, was adopted unanimously. The resolution called for an extra session of Congress to accomplish this and other changes in the law for the benefit of the people.

THIS SMUGGLER REAPS A HARVEST.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

ROTTERDAM (The Netherlands) June 5.—The romantic smuggler waiting for a dark night to run his lugger ashore in a cove and then bury his bales and barrels in the sand, has disappeared, but the trade still flourishes, and probably brings more profit than ever, especially just now in Holland. The modern smuggler, however, is chiefly interested in getting contraband out of the country, rather than bringing it in.

A visitor to an up-to-date smuggler's den, of which a number exist in the center of Rotterdam, would probably find a middle-aged clerkly German dressed in a well-cut business suit at a desk. In front of him small heaps of spices, grains of various specie, oil cake and raw rubber and sample bottles of burning and lubricating oils. From time to time the smuggler chief takes the telephone receiver down, calls a number and bargains in terse phrases over the prices of job lots of the articles, samples of which lie before him, sent for his approval by merchants and dealers who held stocks more or less extensive before the new and strict government regulations calling for an inventory were issued.

Then follow other telephone calls on shippers or their skippers. The smuggler chief is trying to arrange for the transport of his illicit exports across the border line into Germany or Belgium. Freights for this trade are high, and the smuggler's efforts are directed toward beating down the shipper to as low a figure as possible; but the shipper holds out, for he knows smuggled goods bring high rates when safely brought to their destination.

RICH RETURNS SURE.

Torture would not force the smugglers to disclose the methods by which they manage to forward the contraband beyond the closely-guarded frontier. It is hinted, however, that many railroad cars ostensibly conveying freight from Holland to Denmark and from Denmark to Holland, are mysteriously uncoupled and disappear while passing over the intervening German territory. Dutch fishing boats, too, are often seized off the coast by German patrol boats and taken into German ports, whence they are released after their cargoes have been unloaded to the evident satisfaction of the skippers. Dozens of Rhine lighters pass daily up and down the river whose course runs through Germany and Holland, and occasionally one is held up because of the presence of illicit cargo; but it is possible that for each one stopped, a number of others pass muster with forbidden goods on board and are received with welcome by the German authorities. From numerous points along the frontier, closely guarded though it is by Dutch troops, come reports of cattle and horses being driven across into German territory, where the lines of sentinels are thin or woods prevent a clear view.

The gains to be secured by the running of contraband are so tempting that the efforts of the authorities have been rendered futile. Practically half the Dutch troops now mobilized are engaged in guarding the frontiers, not against foreigners, but against Dutchmen trying to pass contraband. It is difficult, however, to guard every yard of the border line, and if the attention of a sentry can be distracted for only a few minutes this gives the wily smuggler a chance to get across with his goods.

SOLDIERS REWARDED.

The Dutch soldier, himself until recently a civilian, naturally dislikes shooting at his own countrymen, even when they are observed in the act of evading the law. The government has heretofore been compelled to offer some inducement to augment his alertness in putting a stop to this profitable trade, whose success brings the government into many difficulties with the belligerent powers; who accuse the Dutch of acts not in accord with strict neutrality. A reward amounting to 10 per cent. of the value of goods seized in illegal transit is now offered to the soldiers, and this has had such effect on their watchfulness that captures of smugglers are becoming more frequent daily. On several occasions recently soldiers have shot and killed smugglers who have defied their summons to halt while engaged in contraband running. One soldier is reported to have received $400 as his share of the reward for stopping a large parcel of smuggled goods just as it was about to be taken across the border.

JAPANESE PLAN TO TAKE CHINA.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

TOKIO, May 10.—If China had declined to meet the demands of the recent ultimatum by Japan, the Japanese programme would have been to capture Peking, which would have been "a matter before breakfast," and to have effected a military occupation of other centers of political power and wealth, according to semi-official newspapers.

The Japan Times, a journal printed in English, but controlled by representatice and influential Japanese, which is usually believed to have good authority for its utterances, undertook to outline the course Japan would take, even before the diplomatic crisis with China had been passed.

In most quarters its publications of these details, customarily forbidden before the outbreak of war, was regarded as officially inspired, very likely with the object of convincing China that Japan was determined and would brook no delay.

The article made it clear that the "independent" action which Japan in her ultimatum said she would take if China was obdurate, would not necessarily be war. It would be better styled, perhaps, a military and naval occupation of China pending acceptance of the Japanese demands. Neverless, it would be effectively an execution of the demands by force of arms.

STRENGTH OF JAPAN.

The General Staff has estimated the military force of China at forty-seven divisions, including 300,000 troops of modern training and 150,000 men of the old school. However, as these troops were scattered all over the Chinese Empire, their mobilization and concentration would be difficult.

Japan's military base would be established at Tientsin. A fundamental necessity being the control of the principal means of communication, the Tientsin-Pukow and Peking-Mukden railroads would have to be captured. Their occupation would firmly establish a Japanese foothold in China. The troops stationed at Tsingtau would be able to "occupy Tsinanfua in a minute." The northern part of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway, that is, the line between Tientsin and Tsinan, could easily be occupied, and with Tientsin the base of operation, Japanese soldiers would soon be seen marching on Peking. In Peking there was stationed one company of infantry, while in Tietsin were two companies, with machine guns. The soldiers in Peking would act as escort for Minister Hioki to Tientsin, where he would embark in a warship and proceed to Japan.

The account declared that in the south moves would have to be made jointly by army and navy, and then the better part of China would be under Japanese sway. Special care would be taken to protect Japanese and other foreign residents.

FROM THE JOURNAL.

"When the centers of China are guarded by a garrison, the soldiers will be disbanded. Then all places will be put under the control of our army; peace and order are to be maintained by our military administration. If the Chinese army offers no resistance, things will be carried out in peace; but when they show any resistance our soldiers will be obliged to fire upon them. And it is to be feared that engagements will take place between the Chinese and Japanese troops here and there, as the land of China is so extensive that peace cannot be established at a moment's notice."

In Manchuria, the programme continues, the two divisions under Lieut.-Gens. Hungo and Ando would be concentrated in Mukden and marshalled against the Seventeenth, Eighteenth and Twentieth divisions of the Chinese Army. The two Chinese generals, Chan Tso-lin and Feng Lin-ko, who command these divisions, would soon surrender when informed of the real situation. The northern part of the Peking-Mukden Railway would be captured by Japanese troops. Great forces would then be landed at some points in the province of Chihli; Peking would be seized immediately. Indeed, the fall of Peking, as stated, would be a "matter before breakfast."

The outline concluded:

"In the south the power of our navy will soon tell. The Chinese ships can immediately be swept from the coast, and our land forces can be disembarked without any difficulty. The British troops garrisoned in Hongkong may be asked to co-operate with our soldiers in this part of the country. Thus our troops will carry all before them wherever they go in the land."

Eighty-Acre Ranch Tract Near Hemet Sold—Buyer Will Plant Walnuts and Alfalfa.

The Monarch Realty Company reports having closed a deal for the sale of eighty acres of the Rose ranch, two and a half miles west of Hemet, to a local investor, at a given consideration of $200 an acre. The buyer, it is announced, will plant walnuts and alfalfa.

The same firm reports the exchange of a flat building on West Adams street, this city, owned by Cora E. Smith, for thirty-three acres, known as the Sanders ranch, near San Jacinto, the total consideration being given at $30,000.

WORK OF YEAR IS OUTLINED.

Efficiency Commission Upon Accomplishments.

Critics Receive Reports in Extensive Detail.

Hundred Thousand Per Year Estimated Value.

Investigation of the Efficiency Commission by the special committee yesterday brought forth a report from the Commission estimating the value to the community of the first year's results of the efficiency programme at $100,000 per annum. A general summary of the work of the Commission was presented by Director Burks, who produced a wagon load of data and reports from which he offered to verify any of the statements presented.

Councilmen Roberts, chairman of the committee, presided and besides Mr. Betkouski and Mr. Bryant, the other members of the committee, there were present the members of the Efficiency Commission, several members of the Board of Freeholders, Councilmen and representatives of various civic organizations. Director Burks made only a beginning yesterday in outlining the work of the commission. The investigation will be continued tomorrow evening, when various city officials and heads of departments will be asked to attend.

Members of the investigating committee censured the Efficiency Commission for having failed to report from time to time to the Council all its activities and they asserted they had received no intimation of many of the investigations carried on by the Commission.

POLICE DEPARTMENT.

The work done for the Police Department was cited by Director Burks as a case where publicity would have hampered the commission. In this instance, he said, Chief Sebastian came to the commission and asked assistance in reorganizing the work of the department. This has been accomplished quietly and thoroughly, Mr. Burks told the committee, and there has been no criticism of the department and no friction. He said the results of the work with the police department were checked by one of the greatest experts on police organization who volunteered the statement that the Efficiency Commission report on the police department is the greatest and best report of its kind in existence.

The Efficiency Commission has assumed there are five important factors in municipal efficiency, said Mr. Burks.

"The first is a municipal programme in accordance with which public service may be intelligently directed; the second is an effective organization providing for the distribution and coordination of duties and functions necessary to carry out the municipal programme; the third is to bring about administrative procedure that will insure economy and efficiency in the performance of each function or activity; the fourth is an efficiency personnel, by which is meant a body of municipal employees of ability, training and loyalty, permanently employed and intelligently directed.

"Last, but not least," Mr. Burks said, "is to have an informed, active and exacting citizenship which will intelligently support or effectively criticize the programme, organization, management and personnel of the government.

"As a rough measure of value, the first year's results of the efficiency programme in Los Angeles may conservatively be estimated as worth $100,000 a year to the community," said Mr. Burks.

"Do you figure in that amount the $40,000 a year that may be received by loaning the city's cash on hand under the plan suggested?" asked President Whiffen.

"Yes, that may be considered as a part of the value of the Efficiency Commission's work, but there are other benefits that it is impossible to measure today in straight dollars and cents," said Mr. Burks. "The attention of the officials and citizens has been more sharply focused upon facts as opposed to unsupported opinions. Higher expectations, stronger demands and keener appreciation for business standards in public business have been stimulated."

Some of the more important activities of the Efficiency Commission during the year were outlined to the committee as follows:

Organization of the city—Data collected from all departments showing for the first time in simple, graphic form the distribution of duties and lines of authority in the city organization as a whole and in the several departments individually. Served to fix the attention of officials and citizens on definite problems of organization and thus to enlist active co-operation of a large number of individuals in the working out of a systematic plan of reorganization.

Definite criticism of the organization submitted to the Council with suggestions for further study and reorganization.

Standardization of salaries — The duties of each employee actually determined and classified. Preliminary classification scheme submitted to all departments for criticism and subsequently revised. Actual classification of employees submitted to all departments for approval; this classification revised after substantial agreement, tabulated, and made the basis for a proposed standard schedule of salaries for the guidance of the Council in fixing salaries.

Budget procedure — With the approval and co-operation of the Auditor and Finance Committee, a budget has been formulated showing, for the first time, what departments have done and what they propose to do as well as what they have bought and what they propose to buy. The functional classification for this budget entailed an immense amount of detail work in co-operation with all departments. It is fundamentally and absolutely essential to the development of sound business standards in public business.

Suggestions submitted to the Finance Committee for its guidance in solving the difficult financial promlems involved in this year's budget-making.

Police department—At the request and with the co-operation with the Chief of Police, nine systematic and complete studies of divisions of the police department have been made and submitted to the department. Further constructive work of the greatest importance is now in progress with the cordial co-operation of the entire department.

Street department—Nineteen separate descriptive reports on divisions of the street department submitted and approved; and important constructive work on three divisions prepared with the co-operation of the department. Now being made the basis for further critical and constructive studies.

Numerous other studies—Made in co-operation with department heads and at the request of committees or members of the Council, including oil inspection, traffic regulation., municipal building, municipal transportation, liquor licenses, excavation ordinances, city-county consolidation, ten-year financial statement, vacations of employees, county organization, lot cleaning, stationery standardization, accounting procedure, overtime work, charter revision, telephone service, permits and licenses, street construction inspection, downtown traffic, land value assessments, bureau of standards, two-platoon system.

MAY REPORTS SHOW REVIVAL.

BIG BUILDING GAINS IN LEADING CITIES INDICATE GENERAL IMPROVEMENT.

Building in most parts of the United States is getting back to normal, according to Construction News of Chicago, which makes a monthly tabulation of construction reports from the leading cities of the country. The most helpful sign in building today, declares the publication in question, is the increased volume of operations in four of the principal cities of the country, New York, Chicago, Boston and Cleveland, which, being great centers of population and industry, are said to reflect conditions generally in that they show which way the wind is blowing.

The May reports of Construction News for 107 leading cities show that permits were taken out in these places for 26,488 new buildings in all, these representing an aggregate cost of $83,650,481. The totals for the same cities in May, 1914, were 28,273 buildings and a valuation figure of $83,817,869. The decrease is 1785 in the number of new buildings and $167,428 in valuation for all the cities included.

New York's gain in building outlay for May amounted to 88 per cent., while Chicago's was 14 per cent. Cleveland's increase was sensational, being 134 per cent. over May, 1914. Boston gained 27 per cent. Many important cities showed losses, several reporting quite heavy decreases, but the average was brought up by the totals from the four cities named and from numerous others.

The wave of improvement has not yet made itself felt on the Pacific Coast, as is indicated by the fact that Los Angeles lost 21 per cent. and San Francisco 47 per cent. In the Northwest, Seattle dropped down 56 per cent. and Portland 33 per cent. The Chicago publication predicts much more encouraging statements from all cities that still show losses by the time of its next tabulation.

I CURE PILES

Fistula and All Rectal Diseases

WITHOUT an OPERATION

By MY PAINLESS DISSOLVENT METHOD.

For twenty-five years I have been curing diseases of the rectum and lower bowel. During that time my experience as hospital and railroad surgeon, as college lecturer and professor, has enabled me to develop a method that is superior to others.

My method is not a "home cure" or a "correspondence treatment," but it is an application of skilled treatments administered under the most rigid antiseptic conditions in my office.

I solicit old, severe and obstinate cases of fistula, prolapsus, fissure and ulceration that have heretofore resisted all treatments employed. If you are a sufferer from rectal trouble I invite you to investigate my method thoroughly by talking or writing to any of my cured patients. If you will call at my office I will be pleased to give you the names and addresses of many well-known Los Angeles people I have cured, whom you may interview in regard to my treatment.

Read what a few well-known Southern California people have to say of my method. Many similar letters are on file in my office.

WELL-KNOWN SANTA MONICA MINISTER CURED.

This is to certify that Dr. C. H. White has cured me of a distressing hemorrhoidal ailment of 25 years' duration. His method of treatment is effective, but not severe. He has the appliances, the knowledge and the skill born of many years of specialization in this fruitful source of physical disease. He accomplishes all his claims in his advertising, and at reasonable expense.

I take pleasure in heartily commending the man and his methods.

WESLEY K. BEANS, Pastor First Methodist Episcopal Church, Santa Monica, Cal.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE SUPERINTENDENT CURED.

My Dear Mr. White: I am thankful for the privilege of bearing witness to your ability to treat, without pain, and with success, the delicate and disabling diseases which result from sedentary work. To all who need the services of a skillful, sympathetic and experienced specialist in your line, I heartily commend you.

Very sincerely yours,

ERVIN S. CHAPMAN, D.D., L.L.D., Superintendent State Anti-Saloon League.

PRESIDENT OF WHITTIER COLLEGE CURED.

For more than ten years I was a sufferer from a painful affliction, which nearly ruined my usefulness as an organizer and teacher. Dr. C. H. White of Los Angeles has completely cured me by a process that was painless and rapid, and I desire to go on record as recommending the Doctor in diseases of his specialty.

VACATION ON THE MARKET AT COST.

~~MUNICIPAL CAMP~~ IN MOUNTAINS ALMOST READY TO BE OPENED.

Vacations at cost in the beautiful San Bernardino mountain country were announced yesterday by the Playground department as an innovation in the line of bringing joy into the lives of those whose pleasures are restricted. It is the first time that any city in the West has offered summer vacations as a municipal institution.

In preparing for the innovation the Playground department is finishing twenty-one cabins fifteen miles north of San Bernardino at an elevation of 5000 feet. The site is among big trees, with cool ravines, winding trails and fern-covered hills among the attractions.

Through the generosity of the City Council and the co-operation of the U. S. Forestry Department, the Playground Commission is prepared to offer a two-weeks' outing, including transportation, for $7.50. The outings are for boys, girls and women, and families. The first group of boys will leave here the 28th inst., the second group July 12. The first group of girls and women will go July 26 and the second August 9. After that the camp will be opened to families.

NEW KIND OF BEEF.

~~Hybrids of~~ Cattle and Buffalo Prove Very Hardy and Furnish Fine and Juicy Meat.

[St. Joseph News Press:] The catalo is a new hybrid, whose components are cattle and buffalo and whose name is derived from the first syllable of one and the last two syllables of the other. And the meat is said to be mighty fine and juicy. This new animal has been invented by Western breeders. "The catalo and the mule would be first cousins," writes Benton Bothwick in The Forecast, "if it were not that one belongs to the genus bos, while the other claims kin with the genus equus. The bond between them is that both spring from mesalliances, the catalo being the offspring of the buffalo and the gentle domestic cow. . . . The catalo is so hardy that he can live on pastures which would be poor picking for a sheep, and his meat is equal to the best of beef, to which has been superadded the tender luscious hump that made the wild buffalo so eagerly sought by the equally wild huntsmen of the plains."

Mr. Bothwick states that the new species has really been established, and there are now a sufficient number of cataloes to make it safe to prophesy that the new animal will play a leading part in the future food supply of the nation. "The range," he says, "is the natural habitat of the buffalo, and the catalo appears to inherit from its wild progenitors this love of the open. Turn the catalo loose in summer and winter; it fattens much more rapidly than domestic cattle would under the same circumstances, and its mortality rate is much lower. The driving blizzard of North Dakota does not send a herd of catalo drifting before the storm—for the blood of the buffalo makes the hybrid turn and face the swirling snow."

Unlike the mule, we are told, this hybrid is able to perpetuate its own species. So far as is known, no males have ever been born from the first cross, so that the second generation is either three-quarters or one-quarter buffalo, as the case may be. From these are produced the true catalo, which has both species on both sides. "Before many years," predicts Mr. Bothwick, "it is likely that the problem of our meat supply will be solved by the blending of the American bison blood with that of the beef animal that for a century has formed the main food dependence of the people of this continent."

How Book Value of Property Vaulted Told in Court.

Accounting Methods Undergo Very Rigid Scrutiny.

Court Guarantees Safety of Much-prized Exhibits.

Property purchased by the Los Angeles Investment Company from 1909 to 1913 increased remarkably in value on the books of the corporation, according to evidence brought forth in the United States District Court yesterday morning. Former officials of the company admit this appreciation of values, but declare other real estate operators have been doing the same thing and that it would be merely an ordinary thing to do, considering the growth of Los Angeles and the almost unbelievable advances on real estate in the past.

Just how far the defendants went in advancing values on the books was strikingly brought out in the details of the "Hilltop tract" transaction, as elicited through Walter E. Pinney, head book-keeper of the company, who was on the stand throughout the day. The company purchased in parcels, numbered from 5 to 12, 1640 acres lying near Inglewood, at approximately $500,000, between September 2, 1909, and December 7, 1911.

On December 31, 1909, the then officials made their first appreciation, $40,000. In 1910 they added $195,000; 1911, $445,000, and 1912, $526,000, a total of $1,206,000. In addition they switched the appreciation of other property to the amount of $191,535 and added the interest on the purchase price, on the appreciation and on the interest, amounting to another $140,000, to the total value of the acreage, which all this time was not improved and remained unsold. The only income was from barley and grain. Thus the property was carried on the books at more than 200 per cent. over the purchase price.

Not fancying the word appreciation, Attorney Lawler for the defense changed it to "round profit." Just how that round profit was made square to fit the whole scheme of financing, was well illustrated in the testimony on the St. Vincent's College tract, purchased at an original outlay of $130,000. To this price was added appreciation of $225,000, but this was deemed a trifle large and $70,000 was charged off to another account, leaving a book profit of $155,000. In the sale of the property, the actual profits realized amounted to $143,000, so the difference between this and estimated reported profits was charged off to some other tract.

Another instance in which the procedure was clearly brought out was that of the Kendall-Berry Tract, which cost $98,000. To this was added round profit of $80,000, which through actual sales was proved too large. Only $60,000 net was made and the deficit of $20,000 was put through the usual form of moving on. The Hooker Estate property at Ninth street and Broadway was introduced and here it was shown the property had cost about $355,000 in April, 1912, and sold the following October for about $450,000. The profits on this transaction were carried to the surplus, which was arrived at from the general balances, and according to the witness, went through the procedure of fmost transactions.

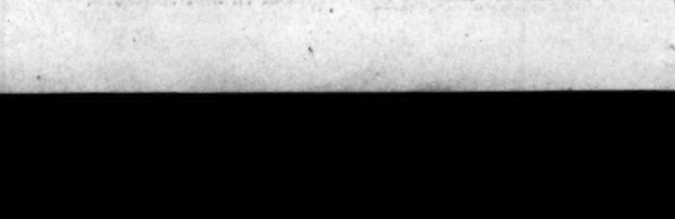
During the early part of the day's testimony, Attorney Lawler fenced for half an hour, trying to get an introduction of the Marsh-Mines-Palmer appraisal into the minutes. This finally resulted in a tilt with United States Prosecutor Rush and called for a striking from the report, by order of Judge Bledsoe, of the remarks of Attorney Lawler regarding the ability of the jury to assimilate the needs for presentation of the appraisal. Just prior to this, the attorney for the defense managed to again bring forth the fact that the book value, or that value carried on the books of the company, was not the actual value of the properties.

The cross examination of Mr. Pinney by Prosecutor Rush further developed the transactions in the purchase of the Ellen Meade property, showing the investment company officials had put an appreciation of $10,000 on this tract before they had paid for anything but options, a survey and the title fee. Other matters considered important as bearing on future developments of the case were accentuated in the questioning by the government official.

The defense had called attention to the fact that it was difficult to make the book-keeping department of the concern conform to the growth of the company and that various systems were used in arriving at the balances for statements, but that not until 1913 was the system evolved which would show the profit or loss on each individual lot or parcel of property.

It required the closing five minutes of the court to decide just what to do with the great mass of books and papers introduced as evidence and on agreement of both sides the documents around which the most vital features of the trial hinge were left in the courtroom under lock and guarantee of safety from the bench.

Outings at Cost in Mountains



City host to all.

Under direction of city playground department, twenty-one camp cabins have been built in San Bernardino Mountains, and two weeks' outings, including transportation, are now offered for a mere pittance. Different weeks have been set aside for boys, girls and women, and families.

THE POLITICAL WATCHTOWER

One way for the City Council to reduce expenses during the coming two years is to trail along with Director Burks, take advantage of the more valuable of his suggestions and discard the rest.

Another way to save money is to dismiss the Efficiency Commission and Mr. Burks and save the cost of their maintenance.

If some of our City Councilmen were not so bone-headed they might see the advantage of accepting the first alternative, for Mr. Burks in his few short months of occupation has learned more about the intricate city government, its dead wood on the pay roll and its extravagances than Mr. Whiffen has absorbed in the four years he has been in the Council and at the head of the Finance Committee.

The chief trouble with suggested economy is that it plunks right into the center of political pull. The pay roll is topheavy with needless employees, and money is spent unnecessarily for things that could be accomplished with the application of business judgment. But the chief fault lies in the organization.

For instance, the city spent thousands of dollars a few years ago to get an expert appraisal of some of its public utilities. When this report reached the Council it was discredited and discarded. The money it cost might well have been saved, for all the good the report did in the end.

The Council paid real money for a gas appraisal and then nullified the work by disregarding it. Real money that you and I pay in driblets through the Tax Collector's window is paid for expert advice. When the advice comes to bat it is thrown out as "impracticable."

For instance, what is the good of an Efficiency Commission if its purchased research and advice are not made available?

And why the Board of Public Utilities? That institution is costing the city a lot of money, but every time its engineers report on rates they are discredited and additional money is spent only to prove that they are right. The difference between the calculations of an expert board and the determination of the City Council is an insignificant little matter known as "political effect."

When the sound results of cold and calculating engineering are subject to review by the Council, the people get the worst of it. The Budget Committee may take as a suggestion that, inasmuch as the Council has never been konwn to accept as true the results of scientific investigation by the board's engineers, it would be in the interest of high economy to do away with at least a portion of the board and its expense.

The State Railroad Commission is about to take over all the work of fixing rates to be charged in Los Angeles by the various public utilities. The money heretofore spent upon this work through the Board of Public Utilities could well be saved and part of the departmental expense, at least, saved to the people.

The trouble with our so-called economy is that those things which are essential are sacrificed in the interest of the nonessentials on the altar of political ambition.

Senator Phelan has turned to his own use a phrase that was commonly expressed on the stump in 1912. It had to do with "changing horses in midstream," as applied to an argument for the re-election of President Taft. Now, says the new Senator from California, the people should not "change horses in midstream," meaning that they should retain President Wilson when he is in the midst of crossing.

The referendum against the Johnson nonpartisan law is about to be circulated in Los Angeles. All regular parties are going to give that pet Johnsonian hobby the ride of its life.

The Rev. Glen MacWilliams, who is to be secretary and confidential adviser to the new Mayor, has been so busy in religious and social work that his knowledge of cuisine in our cabarets is not exactly complete. In fact, to be frank about it, his education along the cabaret line has been sadly neglected. Dr. MacWilliams was a guest at a dinner at Harlow's, his hosts being ex-Mayor McAleer and Col. Henry Laub. Planked sea bass was ordered all around. When the fish was served, the reverend gentleman attacked it with considerable avidity.

His hosts, having had more training along the line of punishing morsels of food while the cabaret was in progress, kept both eyes on the bevy of fairies clustered around the piano and both hands expertly dismembering the fish. The pious cleric was sawing away diligently and almost hopelessly.

"Say, colonel," he said, "what is this thing, anyway? I can't cut it."

The colonel reluctantly took his eye off a plump blonde and turned to his guest. The reverend gentleman was trying to saw a piece off the plank.

Ezra Kendall's recipe for planked whitefish is to cook the fish thoroughly on a plank until the wood becomes thoroughly saturated, then throw away the fish and eat the plank. The unsophisticated preacher took him literally.

FOOTHILL TRANSFERS.

Stewart & Tinklepaugh report the sale of a $3000 villa site in their Monrovia Villa Heights Tract to F. K. Edwards, who has started a two-story residence to cost about $4000. The house will be of the Italian villa type. The same firm reports having sold for Mr. Salisbury to Mr. Hunt, two and one-half acres of unimproved land near Arcadia for $4800, and for Mr. Lordou to Mr. Berry of San Francisco, two and one-half acres for $2800. The contract for street paving has been let and work started on the Monrovia Villa Heights tract.

Sleeping on the Trail.

[Outing:] One of the best beds for this purpose is that made out of a heaping pile of balsam boughs, all laid pointing the same way and having the shiny undersides up, so as to take full advantage of the spring of the boughs. When boughs enough have been heaped up so that one actually rests several inches off the ground, the heat loss in that direction is very greatly diminished. Also, the bed is a deliciously comfortable one.

Dry leaves are an autumn substitute for balsam in regions where the latter is not to be found, but they are more difficult to collect, and it takes a larger heap to give the same effect.

Where one is reduced actually to sleeping next to the ground it is always well at least to spread a canvas or slicker under one's blankets and then use the heavy one for underneath. This may not seem especially sound advice at sundown, but its wisdom is apt to sink in during the night.

The Ballot Score.

HOW THEY STAND IN SCHOLARSHIP CONTEST.

San Fernando Valley Girl Goes to Head of List and Several Contestants Jump from Low Places to Ones of Much Promise for Further Advancement—Interest in Final Results Grows Daily.

ONCE again comes the vote score in The Times Educational Contest. This is a feature that is watched for most eagerly by the contestants and their hosts of friends. The fortunes of the campaign, that cause fluctuation in position in the list of the "Big Thirty-four," and the success of some of the previously low-scored contestants in reaching the heights, are interesting factors.

It really is fascinating to watch the changes in the vote standing that are made possible in only the few days intervening between the publications of the list. Today's report is as full of interest as any yet published.

For the first time, Laura Belle Ormon, the San Fernando Valley girl, heads the list, with a vote score of 183,990. Her friends will rejoice with her. She has made an active canvass in her home town of Van Nuys and in other valley towns, and now she comes to the city to put in a few days of earnest effort. That she will make these count big for her voting score is a certainty.

Were the awards to be made on the present standing the following would receive scholarships:

Laura Belle Orman, Earl Stanley, Jack Benton Hosford, Gladys Sowers, Dorothy V. M. Risdon, Paul I. Brooks, Wallace McIlhany, Llewellyn Price, Cecil Aynes, Russell Fletcher, Helen Wilson, Overton B. Ross, Julius Nasatir, Raymond C. Olson, E. Clayton Votaw, Clyde R. Brown, Ralph Roisington, Bessie M. Jones, Sam Glassman, Mary Redman, Maxwell Pease, Lucian Edwards, Jr., Joy Fletcher, John D. Duffy, Ottilia Kraft, J. Reignald Williams, Clarence Clendenen, Perry Hollingsworth, Frances E. Fleming, Anna Matheson, Alvin C. Goodale, Curtis Bridges, Ethel Beck and Lillian Greene.

There are fully a dozen contestants who could increase their vote standing to the present score of some of those within the "Big Thirty-four" by a determined effort during the ensuing week.

Many of the schools have now closed, and the others are rapidly drawing to their close. This means a great renewal of activities on the part of contestants who have not made such rapid advances as others. It is certain to bring about decided changes during the week that is just opening.

Indications also point to the entrance of several new candidates who have keen hustling abilities. It will be a matter of much interest to watch them forge ahead from the initial vote count of 500 until they reach places of honor. Two new contestants appear in the list today, and each has a good start.

THE CAMPAIGNERS.

Here's a showing of the long-distance interest that is being taken in The Times Educational Contest. In the mail yesterday morning was a letter postmarked San Francisco, and bringing in a bunch of coupon votes for Otto N. Gillingham, the Compton boy who has fixed his determination on winning a scholarship. Otto is one of a family of six children; his mother is a widow, and he has determined to help by winning his way to a fine schooling, as well as earning commissions during this campaign. Otto is a popular boy at Compton, and with the closing of school will make a fine campaign.

As has been anticipated, with the closing of schools in various sections there is coming in a new lot of contestants. They realize that they can start in right now and with earnest work they can quickly gain good standing.

The very latest to enter the race is Frank Storment of No. 337 Lincoln avenue, Pomona. Frank is 16 years of age and is a junior in the Pomona High School. He is a fine pianist and plays for the school glee club and other affairs. He wants to continue his musical studies and to win a musical scholarship. With his popularity and his ability to hustle it is easy to see that Frank will soon gain a high place in the vote count. His first score appears this morning.

Maxwell Pease of Whittier was a welcome visitor at campaign headquarters yesterday. The Whittier schools closed Thursday. This leaves the contestants in that field free to give more time to the work of the contest. Maxwell proposes to make the very best use of this opportunity, and secured a supply of blank subscription contracts yesterday which he hopes soon to fill. E. Clayton Votaw and Miss Olive Wynans are also Whittier contestants. It will be a merry race between Maxwell and Clayton from now onward, according to all indications.

"The task that confronts the growers of California is that of getting more people to use oranges and lemons, particularly lemons, because the lemon now waits for weather conditions to sell it. We must develop its use so that there will be a steady demand for it all the year."

ESPEE EMPLOYEES ENJOY REDONDO BEACH PICNIC.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDONDO BEACH, June 19.—Miss E. A. Scott, who has been in the employ of the Southern Pacific for twenty years, won first place here today in the "most popular lady contest" at the Southern Pacific Railway employees' picnic, receiving 1515 votes. The contest was spirited throughout, Miss Cain coming second with 1491 votes and Miss Saunders third with 1467 votes. Miss Scott was the candidate of the transporation department and Miss Cain and Miss Saunders represented the car department. Nearly 3000 participated in the voting contest.

The day throughout was one of lively interest for all who participated in the fun, beginning with the sports of the afternoon and the "Neptune's Feed" and winding up with dancing in the evening. The Strand was crowded all day with the merry-makers and many stayed until late into the evening to take part in the dancing.

Among the Southern Pacific officials who attended the picnic were D. P. Kellogg, superintendent of shops, who also represented P. Sheedy, superintendent of motive power; W. F. Merry, master mechanic; W. H. Whalen, superintendent of this district; H. W. Watkins, superintendent of the transportation department, and C. H. Thompson.

Affairs of the day were in charge of the S. P. Picnic Association, of which C. H. Marshall is president; Thomas Nash, vice-president; A. G. Saunders, treasurer; C. G. Randall, secretary; Dave Miller, headed the sports committee; A. E. Boles, the dance committee; Thomas Nash, printing; A. E. Braithewaite, refreshment.

Various races were run during the afternoon and prizes were given for the best dancers. About 8000 gathered here during the day.

HOLD-UP MEN VISIT OXNARD.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OXNARD, June 19.—Two men, believed to be the ones who held up the Southern Pacific train a week ago, perpetrated a daring hold-up in full "wild west" style last night at 11:30 o'clock. Wearing handkerchief masks they entered the bar-room of the Henry Meyer wholesale liquor house, lined the bartender and four visitors up against the wall, and while one stood guard, his companion robbed the cash drawer of $146 and selected several bottle of choice liquors.

The outside door of the safe was open and they endeavored to intimidate Dick McKinna, the bartender, into giving them the key, which he insisted the boss had with him at home. He convinced the robbers of this fact, although the key was in his pocket all the time, and saved to the firm hundreds of dollars known to be in the safe for cashing checks of factory men Saturday morning.

As the robbers stepped out of the door they pulled the masks from their faces and disappeared in the darkness. The general description of the men answers that of the two train robbers, for whose return here the police have been looking for since it was shown they boarded the train here.

No further trace of Arthur Robinet, the young man whose coat, hat, and note were found on the beach, has been discovered, and friends and relatives have come sorrowfully to the conclusion that he carried out his threat of suicide instead of hiding and feigning death in order to secure from his mother money for a ranch, as was at first believed.

Mrs. A. Robinet, his mother, who is wealthy, is prostrated. This would be the second tragedy in her family, her husband having been shot a few years ago and his slayer never located.

UNDER HAY-BALER.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ORANGE, June 19.—Gumaro Pedrosa's leg bones must be largely gristle. Today a two-ton hay-baler being moved on a hard street ran over one of Pedrosa's legs and did not break the bone. The knee was wrenched and the ankle sprained, but the bone did not crack. Pedrosa lives at Chino.

[New York Evening Journal:] Little Elizabeth and her mother were having luncheon together, and the mother, who always tried to impress facts upon her young daughter, said:

"These little sardines, Elizabeth, are sometimes eaten by the larger fish."

Elizabeth gazed at the sardines in wonder, and then asked:

"But mother, how do the large fish get the cans open?"

DEMANDS TO USE MINORS' LEGACY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, June 19.—William B. Moore, step-son of the late Francis Moore of Redlands who died recently leaving a fortune rated in six figures, is suing Louise W. Moore and William B. Moore, Jr., his minor children, and the executor of his step-father's estate in the attempt to force the delivery to him of his children's share.

He recites in the complaint filed today that in consideration of $1 and their love and affection his children have transferred to him their interest in the estate. The suit is for the purpose of forcing the executors to recognize the transfer of interest made by the children and prevent the sale of stocks and bonds and other property. In the will Moore and his wife were left $200 each and his children one-third of the estate.

TESTIFY TO SCENES.

Scenes witnessed by neighbors through windows at the home of Mrs. Annie Phillips at No. 855 Sixth street, furnish the basis for considerable spicy testimony at the hearing of the so-called "love-nest" case against Mrs. Phillips and W. M. Tully, real estate operator, whose alleged actions aroused suspicion and caused the filing of charges against both parties.

The case is expected to take several days in the hearing. Mrs. L. W. Maloney, wife of the complaining witness, followed her husband on the stand today and told what she had seen through uncurtained windows in the Phillips' house, where it is asserted that Tully has been a visitor at all hours of the day and night. Mrs. Tully sits with her husband and Mrs. Phillips through the trial.

NEW HOSPITAL COTTAGES.

Dr. John A. Reily, medical superintendent of the Southern California Hospital for the Insane at Patton, announced today that the construction of two additional cottages to cost $50,000 would be started in August as soon as the appropriation made by the recent Legislature is available. The new cottages will provide space for 155 patients. The Patton institution is now the largest hospital of its kind in the West, having a total of 2347 patients.

STUDENTS SAVED FROM DROWNING.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, June 19.—The cool heads and strength of two Santa Ana High School students, members of the graduating class, yesterday saved the lives of a classmate, Alfred C. Catland, a football player, and his brother, Raymond Catland, a student at Throop Polytechnic, Pasadena, both of Santa Ana.

The Catland brothers were in the surf 300 yards south of the Balboa pier, with Roy Carver, High School baseball pitcher, and George Oertly, halfback on the football team. Suddenly Alfred and Raymond both called for help. At first their companions thought they were calling merely as a joke.

Realizing that the brothers were being carried out by a tiderip, Carver and Oertly plunged in. Oertly brought Alfred Catland in and Carver aided Raymond ashore. Alfred was almost unconscious when he was dragged onto the sand.

KICKING CASES OUT OF COURT.

Notorious Burke Litigation Declared Meritless.

Imperial Valley Saved from Land Contesters.

Three Hundred Suits to be Thrown Out.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EL CENTRO, June 19.—Indicating the way 300 kindred suits will go, three of the notorious "Burke cases," contesting title to great tracts of land in the north end of the valley, were pitched out of court yesterday afternoon when Superior Judge Franklin J. Cole sustained, without leave to amend, the demurrers of the Southern Pacific.

Not only did the court find so little of merit in the action that he refused to let it go to trial, but he denied the request of the claimants' attorney that the remaining bunch of cases be held in abeyance, pending an appeal from the decision of Federal Judge Bledsoe in the suit of Edmunde Burke.

This means that the cases, which have clogged the files of the County Clerk for several months already, instead of remaining as current actions during the years the appeal may take, must go into the Superior Court and there meet the fate which is in store for them.

The entire case of the Burke claimants hinges upon the construction of a section of an act of Congress of March 3, 1871, which, to aid the Southern Pacific in the construction of a railroad from Yuma to Tehachepi Pass, granted it ten alternative sections of land per mile.

The construction Burke and those he has induced to take a chance with him would place upon the particular section of the law is that Congress had in mind at the time that the grant was subject to a "settlers' clause" providing that all land given under such grants not disposed of within three years should be open to settlement and pre-emption at a price not exceeding $2.50 per acre.

STRAINED CONSTRUCTION.

Judge Bledsoe, in deciding the Burke case, which was transferred to the Federal Court from Imperial county, said that the claimants' construction was "strained, unnatural and extraordinary," and yesterday, in deciding upon the matter placed before him, Judge Cole said:

"I cannot see that the section is in any way ambiguous or susceptible of different interpretations so that it is necessary to seek for a construction of it. The language is very plain. Counsel has gone into history and related legislative events contemporaneous with the making of this grant to show that it was the policy of Congress in the making of such grants to railroads to include settler clauses.

"He has argued it was the intent of Congress that such a clause should govern in this case, but it seems to me that his facts militate against his own argument. It is very apparent that Congress did not specifically include settler clauses in the sections we are dealing with. If that was contrary to their policy there must have been some reason for it. It should be apparent that it was their intent to leave such clauses entirely out.

"We have the act in such plain language and it is so clear that it is not subject to construction. Therefore, there is nothing for me to do but to sustain the demurrer without leave to amend."

COLLECTS ACREAGE.

Before instituting the original suit Burke, an attorney, collected sums ranging from $37.50 to $100 from various persons who made application for the lands to the railroad, offering the $2.50 per acre. From this source he gathered a large fund. A contingent fee was also agreed to by prospective litigants. In his decision Judge Bledsoe said there was apparently a large number of persons who were "divesting themselves of their good money in the belief, seemingly engendered by the advice of plaintiff acting as their counsel, that a valid cause of action . . . can be stated against this defendant."

He added that they would likely be led into litigation which he confidently believes would prove fruitless.

In the action before the local court Burke for some reason did not appear as attorney for R. A. Stevens, A. A. Wilson and N. E. Holland, the three claimants whose complaints were demurred against. Instead J. Mack Love of Los Angeles appeared. He affirmed his good faith in the litigation and in one passage during the four hours of argument said:

BADLY MANAGED.

"I know this case has been badly managed, but that does not mean corruptly managed. It is unfortunate that such an unsavory odor attended the case heard before the Federal Court. The bad faith of Mr. Burke and charges that the litigation was a form of graft were impressed upon Judge Bledsoe and a reading of his opinion will show that this phase of the case did leave an impression upon him."

Mr. Love cited many authorities and read many decisions bearing upon interpretation and construction of vague passages. While he was reading one decision Marvin W. Conkling, attorney for the Southern Pacific, cut in:

"I can see but one word in the citation bearing upon this case," he said. "That is the word 'pirate.'"

A fact considered significant by reputable attorneys is that the latest of the complaints which have been filed have named the California Land and Water Company, the Imperial Valley Farmlands Association and other persons and firms interested in the land as co-defendants.

FREIGHT RATES UNDER SCRUTINY.

BETTER DISTRIBUTION SOUGHT BY HARBOR INTERESTS.

Interior Points Back up Efforts of Shippers to Obtain Equal Advantages—Water Competition Demands Lower Rates to Inland Cities.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, June 19.—Plans are being formulated for a united fight for better distribution freight rates from the harbor to interior ports backed by the commercial organizations of the harbor district and San Bernardino, Riverside, Orange and other counties in the interior.

In a communication to the various commercial organizations interested in the movement J. S. Smart of Santa Ana has submitted a plan proposed by George M. Cooley of San Bernardino, president of the Interior Counties Freight Bureau, that an expert be employed to prepare data to be submitted to the State Railroad Commission concerning the local rate situation.

At the present time most of the distribution rates on local shipments from the harbor to the interior are made up of combinations of locals instead of a through mileage basis. Under the recent terminal rate decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission all rates to the interior to meet water competition are based upon the rate to the harbor station plus the local rates back.

DESIRE LOW RATES.

It is therefore imperative that the interior points get as low local rates as possible in order to get the benefits of water competition through the port upon both rail and water shipments. With low distribution rates and improved facilities now being planned by the Harbor Commission it is believed that Los Angeles jobbers will be better able to meet the competition of jobbers in the Middle West by distributing from the harbor to interior points.

Work has already been commenced on the foundation for a six-story concrete warehouse in the outer harbor, where it is proposed to rent loft space to merchants and shippers so that they will get the advantage of low water rates without the necessity of extra handling of goods stored for shipment to the interior. This big warehouse will be the first municipal warehouse of the kind on the Coast and will be an innovation in the economical handling and storage of merchandise.

SEE SUBMARINE.

A glimpse of the sunken submarine F-4 in Honolulu harbor was afforded members of the crew and passengers on the Japanese steamer Seiyo Maru, which arrived here today from Hongkong, via Yokohama and Hawaiian ports.

The submarine was resting in forty-five feet of water, and the outlines of the tomb of the crew were plainly visible from the deck of the steamer as she passed close by in leaving and entering the port at Honolulu.

MAN OVERBOARD.

After leaving Hilo the Seiyo Maru lost a fireman who jumped overboard. The steamer was stopped for half an hour and an effort made to find the body, without success. The Seiyo Maru is bound for South American ports in the service of the Toyo Kisen Kaisha line. She will discharge here a consignment of merchandise and hardwood logs, proceeding Monday afternoon.

There are 350 passengers aboard the vessel, mostly Japanese coolies bound for Chile and Peru. On account of lack of facilities for carrying immigrants at this port, California passengers of the line at the present time are landed at San Francisco.

The steamers of the South American line, however, make this the only California port of call and the management is desirous of handling Southern California business through this port as soon as the facilities have been provided. Because of lack of facilities bookings for the initial sailing were cancelled before the first steamer left the Orient and none have been booked for subsequent departures.

WORTHLESS CHECKS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALHAMBRA, June 19.—A penchant for writing worthless checks has resulted in the undoing of Frank Camuchi, who is well-known in the community where he has made his home for several years. Camuchi's checks, which were on several Los Angeles as well as local banks were all for small amounts, but his system which was an extensive one made local tradespeople losers to the extent of several hundred dollars. He was arrested late last night as he was arriving home from Los Angeles. He admitted his guilt and was taken by the officers to the County Jail.

JAILED FOR SILENCE.

Defendant in Justice Court Sent to Prison Until He is Ready to Answer Questions.

Until he reached the witness stand in Justice Brown's court yesterday, Paul L. Gavagan bore a reputation for speaking when he was spoken to and at other times.

As a witness, however, he was anything but talkative. A judgment had been entered against "J. Gavagan" and evidence was introduced to show that Paul L. was the Gavagan against whom judgment had been entered.

Upon the advice of his attorney, William Ellis Lady, Gavagan declined to answer questions propounded to him by counsel on the opposing side, or by the justice.

"I'll have to send you to jail for contempt," said Justice Brown. "I guess that will make you talk."

"For how long is he sentenced?" asked his attorney, for by this time Gavagan was speechless indeed.

"Until he is willing to answer questions," said the court.

Later in the day the attorney attempted to get out a writ of habeas corpus, but was unsuccessful.

CAMP ABILITIES OF GIRLS SHOWN.

OUTDOORS DEMONSTRATION HAS SETTING IN A STYLISH NEIGHBORHOOD.

Under the trees in the spacious gardens of Miss Gwendolyn Laughlin, No. 666 West Adams street, the camp-fire girls of the International Institute of the Young Women's Christian Association yesterday afternoon entertained with a demonstration of their ability to take care of themselves in the open. Taking a girl unused to outdoor life they showed the various phases of instruction through which she is put before being admitted to full membership in the club.

The guardians of the camp-fire group were Miss Laura McVay, Mrs. Roy Horndridge, Miss Myrtle Godfrey and Miss Ella L. Lownsbery. The handcraft taught the girls was subdivided among various groups, the Misses Loretta Cook and Mary Sweitzer having the "bluebirds;" Miss Mary Keyes, the C.A.C. Club; Miss Dorothy Dean, the Russian girls; Miss Sue D. Barnwell, the Italian girls, and Miss Margaret Sweitzer, the sewing club.

The different clubs had their little corners about the lawn, where they sewed, made lace, served lemonade, ice cream or tea, and otherwise demonstrated their ability to about 400 visitors throughout the afternoon. The girls were all attired in costumes of their countries or representing their special department. A programme of music and classic dancing was also in charge of the young women.

CHARGES FRANCIS SLANDERED HER.

FORMER TEACHER SUES CITY'S SCHOOL HEAD; HE WILL ENTER DENIAL.

A statement alleged to have been made by J. H. Francis, superintendent of the city schools, at a meeting of a teachers' committee, which was considering the application of Miss Freda M. Schlager for reappointment as a teacher of the public schools, is declared by Miss Schlager to have been false and untruthful, resulting directly, she says, in the refusal of the committee to employ her. For the alleged injury to her reputation and for loss of services as a teacher, she filed suit yesterday, asking $75,720.

The statement was made, Miss Schlager says, in the presence of Reynold Blight, Col. J. J. Steadman and Mrs. R. L. Craig, and was:

"They are immoral, untruthful, incompetent and mentally and temperamentally unfit to teach."

Miss Schlager declares that the "they" referred to herself and her sister, Hilda. She says she was a teacher of languages in the public schools up to February 18 last.

Superintendent Francis said last night he would enter a general denial of the allegations in the suit.

THE WEATHER.
[Official Report.]

LOCAL OFFICE, U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, June 19.—[Reported by Ford A. Carpenter, Local Forecaster.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 29.96; at 5 p.m., 29.95. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 59 deg. and 69 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 88 per cent.; 5 p.m., 58 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., northeast, velocity 1 mile; 5 p.m., southwest, velocity 6 miles. Highest temperature, 74 deg.; lowest, 58 deg. Rainfall for season, 17.05 inches. Barometer reduced to sea level.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.—Three distinct cyclonic areas appear on the weather map. One is central over Western Canada, one over Oklahoma and Kansas, with a secondary low over Arizona and New Mexico, and another over the eastern lake region. The lake storm in its eastward translation has caused rain generally over the Middle West, and high winds in some sections. Thunderstorms are reported from widely separated localities in the Mississippi Valley. The western storm has caused rain in Washington, Idaho, Montana and South Dakota, Rapid City reporting 1.98 inches during the last twenty-four hours. Areas of high barometric pressure prevail and dominate weather conditions along the Pacific Coast south of Washington, over the upper lake region and the North Atlantic coast, fair weather and moderate temperature resulting. Fair weather will continue over this section during the next thirty-six hours under the influence of the western high-pressure area, with little change in temperature.

LOCAL FORECAST.

The distinguished Conductor of Opera at the Metropolitan New York, Specially Engaged to Direct Horatio Parker's $10,000 Prize Opera, "Fairyland."

The American Opera Association was indeed fortunate to be able to secure the services of so eminent and able a conductor as Dr. Alfred Hertz for the forthcoming opera "Fairyland" at Clune's Auditorium July 1, 2 and 3.

Dr. Hertz, who has been associated with the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, for thirteen years, is recognized as one of the world's greatest authorities on musical subjects. In commenting on the "Fairyland" opera and the selection of the Chickering as the Official Piano by the American Opera Association, he made the following statement:

Gentlemen:—

I am glad to note that the Chickering has been chosen as the official piano by the American Opera Association and the Local Biennial Board of the National Federation of Musical Clubs, because I know from experience that this noble instrument is worthy of the compliment.

OPEN BIGGEST REALTY CONVENTION TOMORROW.

Busy and Important Week Mapped Out for Visiting Brokers Who are Here from Every State to Transact Business, Have a Good Time and See California's Big Attractions.

THE largest and most important gathering of realty brokers in the history of the country, the eighth Annual Convention of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges, will open at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in the assembly hall of Trinity Auditorium. The meeting will be called to order by John L. Weaver of Washington, vice-president of the association, in the absence of President Shallcross.

Small detachments of real estate men from many points have been dropping into the city for several days. The main army will detrain at the various railway depots today when chartered trains and special cars loaded with delegates and visiting brokers from the leading cities of the East and Middle West and Canada will pull in. With the thousands of realty men are coming their wives and families, all bent on seeing the wonders of the Golden State.

From Monday morning until Saturday night these guests of the Los Angeles Realty Board and the City of Los Angeles will be feted and dined and otherwise entertained during all the time in which the "uncrowned kings of earth" are not engaged in settling the great questions affecting their profession at the various business meetings. Following the events and festivities here, the realty men will visit the San Diego Exposition en masse, later going north for a combined "seeing California" trip and visit to the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco. Whether any of them will then be content to go home remains to be seen.

COMMITTEE IS READY.

Thirty committees, comprising in all some 300 members of the local realty board and assisted by the entire membership of the organization as one great committee of the whole, have by weeks of heroic effort brought the preparations for the big meeting up to a state where it can be said that all is ready. The hosts arriving today will find everything in ship shape and running smoothly, according to those in charge of the various details.

The official headquarters of the convention at the Alexandria Hotel were opened yesterday morning and will remain open all week. Here arrivals are registered and assigned to the different hotels in which reservations have been made. All special cars and trains getting in today will be met by fleets of automobiles, the delegations being escorted to the Alexandria by bands.

The formal convention opening tomorrow morning will be preceded by a special meeting of the Board of Managers and the Executive Committee of the National Association at 9 o'clock. Promptly at 10 o'clock Vice-President Weaver will tap his gavel for order and the regular business programme will be inaugurated.

Bishop Johnson will deliver the invocation, after which Mayor Rose will welcome the visitors on behalf of the City of Los Angeles. President Mines of the Los Angeles Realty Board will extend a welcome for the realty men of the city. Lee C. Gates will voice the greetings of the State of California. Nathan William MacChesney, general counsel for the National Association, will respond. Then will come in order the reports of the president, general counsel, secretary, executive secretary and various committees.

At 1 o'clock p.m. the visiting ladies

LAST-MINUTE ADVICES.

Three large specials carrying hundreds of delegates and visitors to the realty convention will arrive this afternoon. The first will be the "St. Louis Special," bearing delegations from St. Louis, Kansas City, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Memphis and Jacksonville, and is due at the Santa Fe station at 2 p. m. A "Chicago Special," with realty men from Chicago, Indianapolis, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Lexington, Ky.; Denver, Omaha Minneapolis and Duluth, will get into the Salt Lake Depot at 4. A "Detroit Special" given over to delegates from Detroit, Cleveland and Toledo, will arrive at the Santa Fe at 6. Hundreds will arrive in smaller delegations on regular trains during the day, and several chartered cars will bring others. Many delegates from Portland, Seattle, Denver and Salt Lake City arrived yesterday.

Thomas Shallcross, Jr., of Philadelphia, president of the national association, was detained in St. Louis Thursday evening while en route to this city because of the sudden illness of Mrs. Shallcross. He and Mrs. Shallcross were on the special carrying the Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and St. Louis delegations.

Mr. Shallcross wired yesterday that Mrs. Shallcross recovered sufficiently to allow him to proceed to Los Angeles. He will arrive tomorrow at 2:30 p. m.

FOR THE BEST IN PEDAGOGY.

NEW STATE SCHOOL GROUP IS FORMALLY SET APART.

Alumni Day at the Recently-completed Vermont-avenue Institution Brings Chain of Significant Events. President Millspaugh Receives Master Key to the Doors.

Combining the formal dedication of the $750,000 educational group of the Los Angeles State Normal School with the class-day exercises of the 518 summer graduates of the institution, the faculty, student body and alumni of the Vermont-avenue school joined yesterday in ceremonies that were simple but impressive.

"I hope these will some day unlock the door of the Los Angeles State Teachers' College," said President Millspaugh of the institution, in accepting the master-key of the new educational group from Dr. James A. B. Scherer, president of Throop College of Technology and member of the board of trustees.

In saying this President Millspaugh revealed the secret of an ideal that Dr. Scherer also touched upon. It is to make the Los Angeles State Normal School an institution wherein specially-selected young men and women will be trained for the instruction of the young.

"Because this institution, new as it is, is already overcrowded," said Dr. Scherer in his formal address, "the board of trustees now contemplates a physical examination for admission, followed by careful training along the line of hygiene. This is because we must take care of the health of these young women, for they are the mothers of the future.

"We all talk of the balance in education," Dr. Scherer continued. "But the true balance is only obtained when we build upon a foundation of health. I maintain, and in all seriousness, that it is better for these young women that they depart from this institution in the ruddy glow of health than with constitutions undermined and their heads crammed with knowledge."

CLASS EXERCISES.

Following the formal presentation of the master-key to the buildings to President Millspaugh, the 518 summer graduates of the institution moved in the time-honored daisy-chain procession from building to building. This custom in the past has been as a sort of emblematical farewell to the different department heads. This year it had a deeper significance. It was the bequeathing to each department head of floral keys emblematical of their watch and ward over the new buildings.

The planting of the class tree followed. Then the class-day exercises, with all their variations of farewell, were held at the bleachers of the athletic field. At 6 o'clock the annual alumni supper was served in the cafeteria, and at 8 o'clock came the faculty reception to the alumni and graduating class in the library.

In fact, the day was one crammed with events. From 8 o'clock in the morning until 2:30 p.m., when the formal exercises began, regular sessions were held of the Normal School classes and the first six grades of the training school. This was that visiting educators and alumni might see the work in the newly-housed institution.

As a complement of this each of the special departments and the training school had exhibits of their work. These attracted much favorable attention.

SIMPLE.

Preceded by music by the Normal School orchestra, the exercises of presentation and acceptance of the new buildings in Assembly Hall were of the simplest. An unexpected feature was the presentation of a check for $250 to President Millspaugh by the summer graduates. Because of the absence of the Hon. Richard Melrose, chairman of the board of trustees of the institution, Dr. Scherer, another member of the board of trustees, acted for the State.

"As a member of the firm of architects of these buildings I present this master-key to you," said J. C. Allison to Dr. Scherer.

"And to you I present this duplicate gold key," he said, turning to President Millspaugh.

Dr. Scherer then made a short speech of acceptance and presented the master-key in his turn to Dr. Millspaugh, who responded.

It was a class day of girls, or so it seemed, for of the 518 graduates but twenty are men. The formal graduation exercises will be held this week.

RED CROSS NURSING CLASSES.

Ladies wishing to join the first-aid-to-the-injured and nursing classes to be held under the auspices of the Southern California Auxiliary to the British Red Cross Society can do so by sending their names to Mrs. A. E. Moffatt, No. 677 South Burlington avenue. After the classes have been started no new members can join until a new class has been formed.

The Tip.

LID OF LOS ANGELES MAY BE PERFORATED.

It's to be More Like the Old Days in the City Before Long.

Most Liberal Administration in Years, San Stool Pigeons and Raids, but with Proper Enforcement of Laws, Proposed by Business with no Needless Meddling.

THE Sebastian administration, which will begin July 6, will be a more liberal rule than Los Angeles has enjoyed in years, according to the Mayor-elect.

The lid will not be lifted, neither will it be tilted; but it is quite likely to be perforated.

From the very outset there will be an elimination of the "stool-pigeon" system of police espionage.

There will be no more raids unless conditions warrant it.

There will be a sane administration of all laws, a liberal construction of statutes and ordinances.

The Sebastian regime is to be a rule of reason, a season of sanity.

These statements were made by Mr. Sebastian prior to his departure for San Francisco.

"Don't misunderstand me," said the Mayor-elect. "I am not in favor of a wide-open town and there will be no lifting of the lid or anything of that sort, but so far as I can I will see that there is a return of genuine sanity in the administration of the laws, that so long as saloons, social clubs, hotels, apartment-houses and other institutions hew to the line of decency of conduct they will not be bothered or hampered.

"I am in favor of a clean, moral city, and I believe the great majority of the people of Los Angeles will stand behind any public officer to bring this condition about. I also believe the majority of the people are unalterably opposed to the use of stool pigeons in the detection of crime.

"There will be none of this sort of jobbery. Men and women in legitimate business need have no fear of being under surveillance by the police or by stool pigeons, but the violator of the law who, under the guise of legitimacy, conducts a business that is contrary to public policy, flagrantly abusing his privilege, will be driven from Los Angeles.

HARMONY AND BUSINESS.

"Meddling should not be tolerated. I want to see two years of harmony and good business. There has been too much hypocrisy about the 'chemical purity' of Los Angeles. And I say this with the full belief that I am not shocking the moral sense of the city.

"I believe that the righteous element of Los Angeles, which is in the vast majority, wants to see a sensible, just, unprejudiced administration of the moral laws, and so far as it lies within my power to give it to them the next two years will see a modeling along these lines."

The Mayor-elect first of all wants peace in the city. He believes that raids conducted nightly only add to turmoil without accomplishing the desired good.

Further than that, it hampers legitimate business and reacts upon the city in general.

So long as a business is conducted along the line of public policy, so long as it is conducted so as not to interfere with neighbors or the general public, there will be no harassment by the police or by any of the social agencies over which the new administration has control.

Mayor-elect Sebastian, having studied conditions from that angle for a number of years, has reached the conclusion that there has been too much disturbance for the good of the city.

Men who conduct a business that stands on the frazzled edge of illegitimacy may look upon the pronouncement of the Mayor-elect as an invitation to open the muffler and throw the lid in the ocean. But such action will be discouraged.

OBEY LAWS, AVOID BOTHER.

No one will be bothered so long as the laws are obeyed, for the enforcement will be as strict as in the past, says the executive-to-be. The difference will come in the method of enforcement.

It is understood that one of the first acts of the new Chief of Police, who will be C. E. Snively, formerly the Mayor's secretary, will be to disperse the "purity squad" and put those who have been connected with this arm of the police department into other positions.

The secret service fund of the police department, it is understood, will be utilized in directions other than the payment of a staff of stool pigeons who in many instances have victimized persons for the benefit of making their jobs "solid" with the police department.

One of the reasons for the decision of the Mayor-elect to bring about a more liberal enforcement of the law is to encourage legitimate business just as illegitimate business will be discouraged. He does not believe in the "give-an-inch-take-a-mile" policy.

The Mayor-elect has decided to surround himself with a level-headed cabinet composed of men who have the best interests of the whole city at heart.

Police officers who in the past have tried to build up a record for themselves by wasting time on petty and technical infractions of the law will be discouraged in future.

Conclusive Facts.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE IMPERIAL VALLEY.

Powerful and Convincing Report of Engineer Rockwood, Fully Explaining the Water Situation and Completely Puncturing a Tissue of Vicious Falsehoods. "The Times" Vindicated in an Impartial Official Report—True Attitude of the C. M. Co.

A DIRECT STATEMENT BY "THE TIMES."

FROM the beginning of the reclamation of the Colorado desert The Times has given its aid to that far-reaching project without stint. It spent large sums of money in obtaining information concerning the soil, climate, water supply and agricultural possibilities. The Times was convinced years ago, and still firmly believes, that there is no richer spot on the face of the earth than Imperial Valley.

To exploit this inland empire, to make known its wonders to the people of the world, and to support the pioneer settlers in their brave and effective battles against the obstacles they had to meet, has been, and is, regarded by The Times as an important mission.

When there could no longer be doubt that Imperial Valley had an abundant water supply, and that, with water, its soil could produce astonishingly large crops in great variety, it was apparent that the two great needs were men and money to develop the admittedly enormous resources.

To get either men or money it was first necessary to widely spread information of the new agricultural discovery, that men might know how profitable it would be for them to invest their energy and their cash there. The local newspapers have been printing information concerning the great crops for many years. Their articles were read with satisfaction by the farmers who produced these crops. But, as is inevitable with newspapers published in small communities, their sphere of influence did not extend much beyond their own domain. It is possibly true that some Imperial Valley newspapers have considerable subscription lists outside their own county, but, at the most, these amount to only a very few hundred copies.

CARRYING THE TIDINGS.

If John Smith raises $200 worth of cantaloupes on an acre of ground—more and better melons than were ever raised on any acre outside of Imperial Valley—it is desirable that the fact be made known as widely as possible. When the local newspaper prints the statement it is read by people who already know about it, and by a few others. Published in The Times, it is read by half a million people of the Southwest, many of whom will become so interested that they will take steps to become better informed on the valley and its richness.

Hundreds and hundreds of columns of matter exploiting Imperial Valley and giving informing facts concerning it have been published, as free as air, in The Times. The Annual Midwinter Number of The Times, the world's greatest newspaper annual, read by more than a million people in the East and elsewhere, usually contains several pages, published solely on the merits, about Imperial Valley.

Because of its unremitting and sincere efforts to sound the praises of a region in which it thoroughly believes, and by virtue of its numerous circulation, its news bureau and other publicity resources, The Times has undoubtedly given hundreds of thousands of people their first information on the ever-fascinating subject of Imperial Valley.

Individual owners of The Times and of the California-Mexico Land and Cattle Company have not hesitated to back their belief in the future of the valley by investing much money and time and by shouldering a due proportion of the work of development. They and their associates are now the most extensive owners of land in the valley on both sides of the international boundary line. Neither The Times as a newspaper, nor its publishing corporation, The Times-Mirror Company, have any property interests in the Imperial Valley, though some individual owners have large investments there.

They have leveled thousands of acres of land, have produced alfalfa and other crops, raised cattle and horses, and built hundreds of miles of canals and miles and miles of fences.

They have participated from the beginning in the development of the country. They have stood shoulder to shoulder with the settlers in bearing the burden of taxes and in securing benefits for the whole valley.

CONSISTENT SERVICE.

The Times has stood by the people of Imperial Valley and has helped to fight their battles. It has at all times been actuated by none but sincere motives. If it has ever published trifling inaccuracies, it was through inadvertence, or upon the strength of misinformation impossible to discover at the moment. These few minor inaccuracies, if, indeed, they existed, bear no relation whatever in importance to the great volume of truth which The Times has published from the beginning in exploiting the valley.

The Times knows it has taken the necessary precautions, has employed competent men and authorized sufficient expense to enable it to publish accurate as well as extensive articles on the valley.

A recent unwarranted and untruthful attack on certain owners of The Times and of the California-Mexico Land and Cattle Company in the Holtville Tribune has been utterly overthrown and proved to be false in every particular by a clear-cut, indisputable and undisputed statement by Engineer C. R. Rockwood of the Imperial Irrigation District.

The Tribune article, which quotes one Mark Rose, charged that a move was on foot inside the Imperial Irrigation District to spend a considerable portion of the money recently borrowed by the district and left over from the work of building the Volcano Lake levee in constructing a canal to irrigate more than 100,000 acres "owned by Gen. Harrison Gray Otis and associates."

The article sought to give the impression that the owners of The Times and of the California-Mexico Land and Cattle Company had caused this diversion to be made through their political influence. It was so worded that it might lead people unaware of the actual facts to believe that these men had conspired with officials of the Imperial Irrigation District to wrongfully divert money belonging to the people of the valley to their own uses. These insinuations were and are baseless.

TRUTH REFUTES FALSEHOOD.

It was natural that Engineer Rockwood should be indignant at the publication of such absurd and untruthful statements, and that he should hasten to inform the people of the bottom facts.

"It is unfortunate that such a statement should be published without proof," he said, "and this statement is without foundation. The facts are that, by virtue of the Congressional act appropriating $100,000 to be spent this year for Colorado River protection, the Imperial Irrigation District had to put up an additional $100,000 before the government money could be used. This was done, and the entire fund of $200,000 is being spent, in accordance with the act, under the direction of Gen. W. L. Marshall, consulting engineer of the Department of the Interior.

"The act provided that the money should be spent on the protection of the river levee below Hanlon's and on the Volcano Lake levee, and its extension to a connection with the Inter-California Railroad, and it is being so spent. Gen. Marshall agreed to my general plans as to the Volcano Lake levee, and appointed me as engineer to do the work.

"The money can legally be spent only on the Volcano Lake levee, or for its protection; but the act provides that the levee may be extended eastward to the Inter-California Railroad, and I am so extending it. In doing this work, however, I am looking to the future needs. It may be, probably will be, necessary for us to depend upon the Volcano Lake levee for our protection for several years.

"That the canal will cover a large area in Mexico is fortunately true, since these lands must eventually pay their proportion of the cost of the work, and will, in addition, pay in water rentals the entire cost of maintenance. I have for some time been making an exhaustive study of our water supply, and in a few days will make a report to the district board, which I believe will satisfy you, as it does me, that there is ample water for the irrigation of every acre of available land, including all lands in Mexico. If this is the case, you are greatly benefited, not injured, by any increase in the irrigated area across the line. The insinuation that the 'Otis-Chandler' syndicate influenced the adoption of this plan, if true, should cause the people of the valley to extend a vote of thanks to those people, but I know they had nothing to do with it."

Mr. Rockwood states that prior to May 13 he never discussed the subject with any one directly or indirectly connected with the "Otis-Chandler" syndicate. On that date, he says, he called on Mr. Chandler in Los Angeles to explain the project and to ask for necessary rights of way, which were freely granted.

Mr. Rockwood's statement, which was published in whole or in part by every newspaper in Imperial county, goes into further details concerning the work that is being done, or proposed, to make the water supply adequate and sure.

There can be no doubt that Mr. Rockwood's prompt and conclusive denial of the absurd charges has been accepted as final by the people of the valley, and that this attack, at least, has been effectively and for all time silenced.

ANIMUS OF ATTACKS.

But this is not the first time that Imperial Valley newspapers have published unwarranted, sometimes vicious, attacks on The Times. Some of them were written by men who were obviously venting personal spite or malice, and whose animus was so clearly indicated that their utterances were automatically discredited and shorn of weight.

In the domain of "pure cussedness," the Imperial Standard, during its lifetime noted for its hypocrisies and innuendoes, frequently published slurring allegations against The Times. The El Centro Press, at some stages of its ownership, has been openly and bitterly hostile to The Times, and published articles of the most vicious character without cause or reason.

Other articles published in the past ten years by Imperial Valley newspapers are not so readily accounted for, particularly those of the kind just printed in the Holtville Tribune. The Times has viewed these attacks, not with concern, but with astonishment and deprecation.

The purpose of this article is to point out the nature of these assaults and to show how completely they have been refuted. Departing from its customary course in such cases, The Times takes up the matter directly because of the application of the charges to itself and to those co-operating with it, directly or indirectly.

The Times, conscious of the rectitude of its motives and the correctness of its course throughout this entire matter, resents these assaults and all like assaults upon it, its owners and conductors, and defies the slanderers to do their worst. The truth shall again put them down, as it has already done.

The question naturally arises, why should a newspaper depart from the path of common journalistic honesty? How can it justify itself for delivering nasty, baseless attacks on a powerful friend and ally of the very people and interests which the assailant pretends to serve?

Only a few of the Imperial Valley newspapers have participated in the attacks on The Times. No ill-will is harbored against the others, though it is true that some of them have shown themselves avidly ready to make groundless charges upon insufficient evidence. Neither does The Times hold all the people of Imperial Valley responsible in any way for the unwise acts of the few. That the friendship of The Times for the Imperial Valley is reciprocated is evidenced by its large and growing circulation there.

In the Educational Contest now being conducted by The Times, three of the leading contestants live in Imperial Valley.

The Times will continue to freely work for Imperial Valley on the merits and in all legitimate ways, and to publish far and wide the valley's gains and its triumphs; but we believe that we should have the co-operation not only of all the people of the valley but of its newspapers also, for all are working in a common cause.

Nevertheless The Times is able, as usual, to pursue its course successfully without co-operation.

Many serious obstacles and handicaps have been overcome in Imperial Valley, and others must be met. If her people will persevere in their endeavors, co-operating with their friends and taking advantage of Nature's lavish gifts, the valley will yet come fully into its own. It will then be one of the major wonders of the world, because of the diversity, excellence and enormous yield of its products.

business, November 1, 1915. Other companies have intimated that they will do the same.

On the other hand, the lack of even ordinary regulation in Los Angeles at the critical moment has foisted upon us the undesirable "jitney" bus. As a result of the competition of the unregulated "hack," the Los Angeles Railway Corporation and Pacific Electric have been forced to lay off nearly 1000 men. There is, of course, the compensation of the employment given the "bus" men, but it should be remembered that the chauffeur of the "jitney" is the conductor as well, and that neither the city nor the State derive much in taxes from them.

RAILROAD BUILDING.

A most pertinent example of how labor suffers from the onslaught of undigested legislation is furnished by the present status of the railroad construction companies. Normally, four concerns, with headquarters here, employ 10,000 men. They employ scarcely one-fifth of this number at the present time. Many of these men grew up in railroad construction business and are misfits anywhere else.

"The lack of railroad construction work is due to adverse legislation extending over a long term of years," said Howard Elliott of the office of General Manager Nutt of the Salt Lake. "Needless to say, little construction means less business for the supply companies."

Say a company is pouring millions of dollars into a new venture, as the Pacific Light & Power Corporation was doing some years ago in connection with its Big Creek plant. To handle this work, the contractors, Stone & Webster, opened an office here. When running full force it employed 1000 men, while the expenditures for supplies ran into enormous sums, with many of the contracts placed here. Today this office is closed for the reason that neither the Pacific Light & Power Corporation, nor similar concerns, have the money to make expenditures that might keep this concern going.

DEMOCRATIC GOODS.

Some may say, "Oh, it's simply a business depression." True. But it is to be observed that it was fear of Democratic legislation that started the leaven in the lump that has now become the bread of unfulfilled promise. When the tariff was taken off articles in whose making we are competitors of the low-paid laborers of the old world, a movement was started that has closed factories all over this land. Nor has there been the promised compensation of a lowering in the cost of living.

As a result the nimbleness of the dollar has been lessened. It is both harder to get and more reluctantly spent. For instance, the utilities of this State are having trouble in getting them from the improvements that they must perforcely make. In fact they are offering perhaps the biggest premiums in a generation for ready cash, and the applications made the State Railroad Commission for permission to issue bonds are more often than not of the kind where the eagerness to get the money has dictated a prayer for permission to market a $100 bond at discounts as high as $18.

"We are making extensions only into territory where the return is absolutly assured, for the reason that money is high," said Assistant General Manager Bullard of the Southern California Edison Company.

Reports of the Southern Pacific show but little extension work for the year, the Santa Fe has built a few miles of track in the San Joaquin Valley, the Pacific Electric has made one short extension, that from Riverside to Corona. As for the Los Angeles Railway Corporation, what improvement money it has spent has gone principally into street paving, a work that was forced upon it.

Nor could it well be expected to be otherwise, for the Southern Pacific is more than $2,000,000 behind the last fiscal year in net income, in spite of retrenchments which at one time caused shop forces to be cut 50 per cent. The earnings of the other roads are little, if any, better, and the retrenchment measures have been the same.

All this loss in revenue has been in the face of crops that have been bountiful, and this year promise to be greater than ever. Prices have also been uniformly good. But the fact remains that events that, economically, make for good, are legislatively negatived.

BOOMERANGS?

As for workingmen's compensation, eight-hour and other alleged humanitarian measures, investigations by the United States Commission on Industrial Relations have revealed that the employer blazed the way to these desirable things long before they were legislated into the statute books. But the employer, knowing full well that he could not eat his cake and have it, was not so Utopian in the application as Legislatures have been. A result of these Utopian, or horizontal application of workingmen's compensation, eight-hour and other measures has been either decreases in the average pay-envelopes, or, more often than not, operating-economies that have affected many.

To state that 50,000 men are out of work in the Southwest is a modest estimate. It means real men who know how to work and want to work. It does not include the large aggregation of "won't works," of whom the Southwest has many. It merely includes 8000 men that the railroad construction companies have been forced to lay off because there is little or no building, 10,000 men for which other construction companies have no work, a similar number of men laid off by gas, electric, telephone or electric line companies because of retrenchments or by the fact that supply concerns are selling 50 per cent. less material than they were two years ago.

GROWTH OF THE CIVIL SERVICE.

AND ITS ACCOMPLISHMENTS TOLD CITY CLUB.

President of the New York Commission and Prominent Member from Chicago Tell of the Advantages of Systematic Manner of Rating Employees.

The growth of civil service in the United States and the accomplishments of civil service boards in various cities and counties for the advancement of popular interests were discussed by Dr. Henry Moskowitz, president of the New York Civil Service Commission, and Robert Catherwood of the Cook County (Chicago) Civil Service Commission at the luncheon of the City Club yesterday.

Dr. Moskowitz declared that the civil service idea is based on the idea that government is something to live under rather than something to live on, and that as such, it is neither the conception of the "high-brow" nor the politician.

"Civil service can develop inventiveness and resourcefulness," said Dr. Moskowitz. "Business houses have at times to discharge thousands of employees because of inefficiency. You can learn much from civil service commissions in solving the problem of hiring help in ordinary business lines.

"What civil service needs is to eliminate the dead wood. Civil service should inspire men toward a definite goal and open the way for them to reach that goal."

Mr. Catherwood's paper was principally an exhibition of the work of the Cook County Commission in connection with the employment of physicians and surgeons for the Cook County Hospital. This institution, Mr. Catherwood said, is in some respects the largest in the country and it excels especially in the varied nature of service rendered and the number of patients and the variety of diseases treated.

TO RIDE THE SUMMIT.

"Rim-of-the-World Drive" to be Dedicated by Newspaper Men Next Month.

As guests of the Board of Supervisors of San Bernardino county a party of newspaper men of Southern California will participate in the dedication of the "101-mile drive on the rim of the world" on July 17 and 18.

The party will leave San Bernardino by autos at 1 o'clock on the afternoon of July 17 and partake of a barbecue dinner. Later visits will be made to Skyland Heights and Squirrel Inn. The party will sleep at Pinecrest and will have breakfast the following morning at that place.

Following the dedication of the wonderful drive the party will proceed to Little Bear Valley Lake, then following the Crest road will have a campfire lunch at Green Valley. Big Bear Lake will be reached in the afternoon and dinner will be served at Knight's. After a night spent at Pine Knot the party will return to San Bernardino over the Santa Ana route.

"On behalf of the people of our county on July 17 and 18, 1915, it will be our pleasure to christen the great scenic highway of the San Bernardino Mountains, now completed," says the Board of Supervisors of San Bernardino. "We would like, as befits this occasion, to take the multitude, but rather as you are messengers of good tidings to the people we will limit our party exclusively to newspaper men."

The invitation is penned on brown wrapping paper, properly embellished in colors and perforated with a suggestive quill and stamped with the seal of San Bernardino county.

RED CROSS BENEFIT.

Mme. Yorska, Noted Star, to Appear at the Little Theater for the French Society.

Mme. Yorska, the French star and noted protege of Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, will appear at the gala performance for the French Red Cross Society Tuesday evening at the Little Theater. She will give the following climax scenes from her repertoire, supported by Mlle Nana Defrance, Jose Ruben and E. Curtlet:

The second act of "Le Voleur" (The Thief) by Henri Bernstein; the fifth act of "La Dame Aux Camelias," the chief d'oeuvre of Alexandre Dumas fils; two dances by Mlle. Yona Landoska, from the Theatre de las Gaite Lyrique, and the third act of "L'Aiglon," Edmond Rostand's masterpiece.

Camille Le Senne, president of the French Critiques, says of Madame Yorska: "Madame Sarah Bernhardt has confided to her the enthusiasm of the roles of Esther and Hermione with wonderful success. Madame Yorska is extremely young, and very personal in tragedy. Her admirable mask dedicates her greatest lyric creations as intense expressions of the soul."

The benefit is given under the patronage of the following: Mrs. John Percival Jones, Mrs. Hancock Banning, Mrs. George Fusenot, Mrs. Frank S. Hicks, Mrs. L. N. Brunswig, Mrs. Spencer Smith, Mrs. R. MacD. Taylor, Mrs. Godfrey Holterhoff, Mrs. L. Sentous, Jr., Mrs. W. E. Ramsey, Mrs. Henry E. Huntington, Mrs. Hugh Livingston Macneil, Mrs. Roy P. Jones, Mrs. Mary Wilcox Longstreet, Mrs. R. J. Hanna, Mrs. Dean Mason, Mrs. W. A. Clark, Jr., Dr. Rae Smith, Mrs. Hector Alliot, Mrs. Jules Voile, Mrs. Sherman Hoyt, Mrs. William A. Edwards.

THE THAW OF THE WEST.

Abraham Ruef is again making an effort to secure his parole. Ruef is as much trouble to California as Harry Thaw to New York.

AFTER RESULTS.

Four runs on one hit are so much better than four hits resulting in only one run. We would think Capt. Dillon would permanently adopt the former system.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION.

Jealous politicians say that Mr. Bryan is out of the Democratic party. Now we will venture to assert that Bryan himself thinks that he is the Democratic party.

MAKING A SPLURGE.

That garden party in honor of the visiting real estate men to be held at the Doheny home on West Chester Place Tuesday evening is taking on the proportions of true Los Angeles hospitality. The visitors will see us at our best.

NO FAME FOR THEM.

For once Los Angeles is to have a beauty contest in which the winners will not instantly win fame and fortune by receiving an offer to enter the moving-picture business. Contestants must be between 2 and 4 years of age. Even at that the affair takes place at a picture studio.

SELF-DESTROYING.

President Wilson seems to have meant by his ultimatum to Mexico that he would recognize anything that might ultimately be left of that turbulent land. This will be no strain on the President, judging by the latest onslaught upon Mexico City. Like the little boy's apple it will have no core.

BATTLES BY CENSOR

The facts regarding the conditions of the allies in the Mediterranean again illustrate that a battle conducted by the British press censors at London is a great deal safer for the readers than for the soldiers. It is good psychology for the populace, but does not save the army from the Germans and the Turks.

TRULY AMERICAN.

We are glad to have attention called to the fact that the music of "Fairyland" can be fully appreciated without technical knowledge, and is light and happy to hear. Most people have a wrong impression of this beautiful opera. They have an idea that because it is difficult to play and sing, it will be hard to hear. On the contrary, the perfection of composition makes it the easier to listen to. Besides, this is one grand opera without a tragedy. It dares to end in a happy marriage. You see, it is truly American.

MERELY LUCKY.

An Irishman received a dollar a day for being the door man at Del Monico in New York. Out of this he managed to save a million dollars. You would naturally expect us to say that he is a fine illustration of what thrift and self-denial can accomplish. He is not however. He is only a good example, and a very rare one, of what luck will do for a man who is on the right side of the stock market. Where he made good 100,000 others have failed in the same time and in precisely the same line. We are inclined to think that the man who lives on what he gets is better off than the man who takes big chances and loses the little he has. There is no use geting drunk over the fellow's success. There isn't enough of it to go around.

SUPPORT FOR THE MEXICAN POLICY.

It has been suggested that chambers of commerce of those cities especially interested in the pacification of Mexico, and particularly the commercial organizations of the border towns, pass resolutions indorsing President Wilson's new Mexican policy. It is hoped that by taking this method of showing the President that the country is in accord with his new determination to establish peace in Mexico the influences which might cause him to abandon the policy, or to relapse into "watchful waiting," will be overcome. The pacification of Mexico is of vast commercial importance to the United States; but the equation of humanity is first; and in this particular it might be well for religious and humanitarian, as well as commercial, organizations to bear witness to their sympathy and support to the President's new policy.

PIANO FIGHTERS.

The courage, the endurance, the warlike enthusiasm of Italian mobs finds no parallel in ancient or modern history. At Milan these patriots battered down the doors of a piano warehouse that was owned by a Teuton whose musical instruments will toot on no more. Up four flights of stairs they climbed, with their gonfalons (short tails) waving, singing, as they climbed, a verse from the battle lyric of Oliver Wendell Holmes—

"War, stern war, while it must be war,
 But, 'till a just peace comes,
Mix not the tremble of ivory keys
 With the passionate throb of the drums."

Arrived at the fourth floor the strong arms of these brave descendants of the legions of imperial Rome seized twenty cringing and cowardly pianos by their bare legs, carried them to the windows and hurled them into the street.

The watch on the Rhine will never again be played on those pianos.

HONOR THE MEN SERVING UNDER THE FLAG!

When the scholar recalls the glories of ancient Greece he thinks not so much of the poetry of Homer, the dramas of Sophocles, the philosophy of Socrates or the eloquence of Demosthenes as of the victories of Miltiades and the valor of the 300 immortal soldiers of Leonidas, whose record is carved upon the rocks at Thermopylae.

"Go, stranger, and in Lacedemonia tell
That here, obedient to her laws, we fell."

Obedience is the first and most important duty of the soldier. It is by learning to obey that he learns how to command; and it is as true of the American soldier as it was true in Napoleon's day of the French soldier that every private carries in his knapsack the baton of a commander.

Next to discipline the most valuable quality in a soldier is his enthusiasm for his profession, his love of his country and his patriotic devotion to duty. It is the quality which Bonaparte invoked, not in vain, when he said to his army in Egypt, "Soldiers, from the heights of yonder Pyramids forty centuries look down upon you."

The Englishman points with pride to the dramas of Shakespeare, the essays of Bacon and the speeches of Pitt and Sheridan. But his heart throbs and his eyelids moisten at the recital of the achievements of Nelson's sailors at Trafalgar and Wellington's soldiers at Waterloo. The bosom of the German swells at the recital of the deeds of the soldiers of Frederick, the warrior king; but he reads the compositions of Goethe or Schiller, or listens to the divine discords of Wagner with composure. In France the peasant in his cot and the banker in his mansion grow enthusiastic when they read of the victories achieved by the battalions of Murat or Changarnier, although they may go to sleep over the biting sarcasms of Voltaire or the thrilling romances of Victor Hugo.

In our own country, when we recall the memory of him who was "first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen," we honor Washington, the diplomat, guiding the new nation through the labyrinths of European entanglements, and we respect Washington, the statesman, writing a farewell address to his countrymen. But we love Washington, the hero, commanding the heroes whose shoeless feet crimsoned the snows of Valley Forge, and Washington, the soldier, who led his fellow soldiers across the crashing ice of the Delaware.

Repeatedly have the American people exhibited their appreciation of their soldiers. They honored Webster, and Clay and Calhoun, the great triumvirate of American statesmen; but when it came to electing a President they chose Jackson, whose riflemen at New Orleans drove the last remnant of British power from our land; they chose Taylor, whose soldiers won Buena Vista and added the Pacific Coast to our domain; they chose Grant, of whom was written lines that were also applicable to the soldiers whom he led—

"Patient of toil, serene amid alarms, Inflexible in faith, invincible in arms."

"War is an evil, but it is not an unmitigated evil," said the late George Barstow. When a nation has grown puerile in the lap of peace, it revivifies its torpid dust and rekindles its martial fire at the shrine of war. Even degenerate sons, goaded by shame at witnessing the degradation of their country, will arouse themselves and draw the swords of their fathers. Worse than war is that depth of moral degradation which a nation reaches when it considers that it has nothing worth fighting for.

"What," said Samuel Williams, "shall be said of those conflicts that shatter empires—the contests that deluge mighty states with blood? Viewed as isolated phenomena, they appear to be pure scourges—the incarnate wrath of God smiting sinful man. But could we trace events to their germinal cause and ultimate results, might we not discover that wars are sometimes normal forces moving along the track of progress?"

May not some wars have their appropriate place and office in the evolution of humanity from the primitive to the perfected state? May they not be looked upon as curative, rather than destructive agencies—Nature's heroic method of expelling disorder from the social system? May they not perform the same office for the state that the surgeon's knife performs for the individual stricken with a consuming ulcer? The knife in such cases is not an instrument of science; it is guided not by a cruel but by a merciful hand. Its office is not to kill, but to cure. The blood flows, the frame is racked by torture, but the patient is saved.

The nation will never be able to dispense altogether with the soldier. If happily the present Armageddon shall be succeeded by a pact of peace among the powers engaged there will yet be needed an army of nations to maintain that peace. The jest that "we will have peace if we have to fight for it" may become an accepted axiom.

The 80,000 enlisted men in the regular army of the United States and the 40,000 enlisted men in the American navy represent, intellectually and morally, as well as physically, something more than the average of American manhood. There is not a soldier nor sailor but can read and write and repeat the multiplication table, the Ten Commandments and the Lord's Prayer. There is not one who does not speak good English and who has not the manners of a gentleman. Do you often see an American soldier or sailor remain seated in a street car while a woman is straphanging?

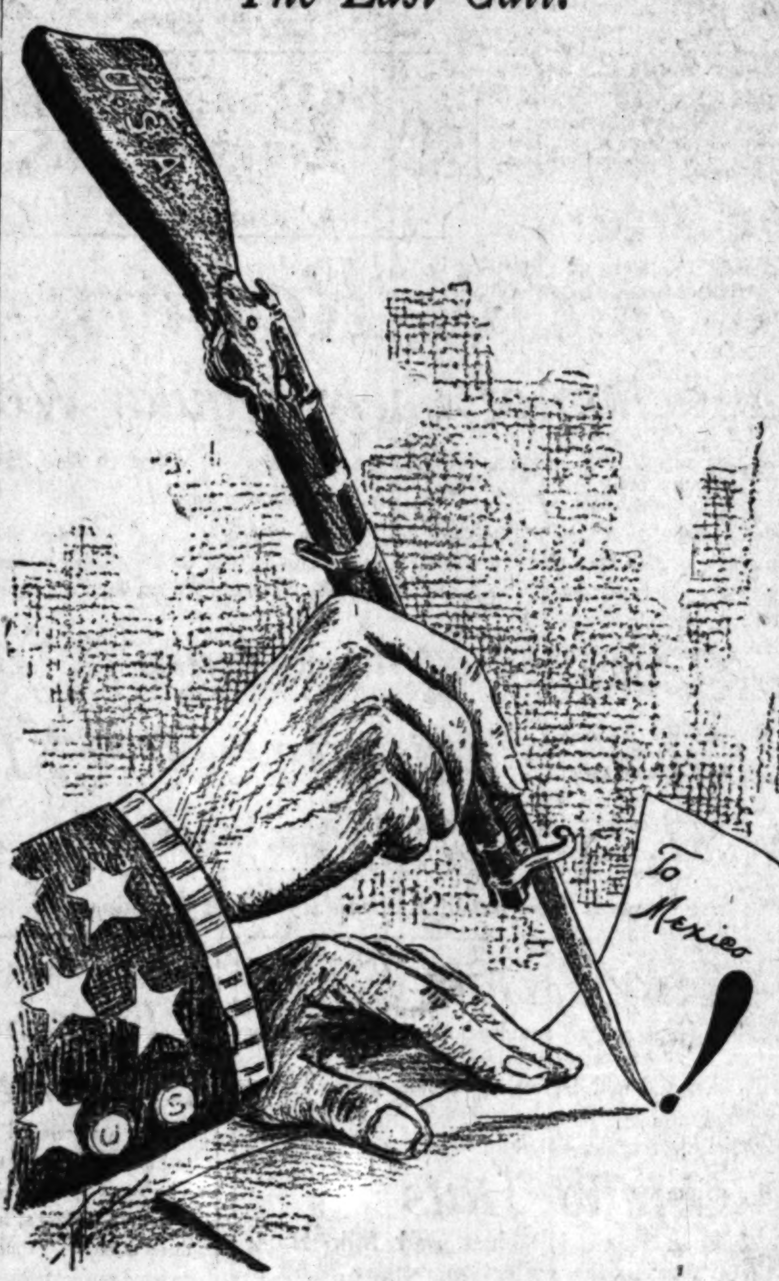
If there is an American soldier or sailor who, prior to his enlistment, had a prison record, it is by virtue of a slack performance of duty by somebody. The soldier must be sound in soul as well as in body to be passed by the recruiting officer.

Let the men who wear the uniform of our army or navy, wherever their duties may have called them, whether under the sultry sun of the Orient or where the North Star gleams like a mighty diamond in Alaskan skies, or on Atlantic or Pacific shores, or in the mountains or valleys of the great basin, or on the stormy Atlantic or the peaceful Pacific, never think for a moment that their countrymen in the cities and on the farms have forgotten them, or are indifferent to their welfare or unmindful of the services they are rendering to their country.

There should be no village in all the land where there is a door that will not fly back upon its hinges to offer entrance as an honored guest to a soldier of the United States. There is not even a prohibition town in which a sailor of the United States will not be suffered to "bowse his jib" with impunity, and allowed to damn the tarry toplights of any unpatriotic scab who dares to speak disrespectfully of the banner which true sailors and soldiers love and honor.

Hail to the men in blue on land and sea! They are our defenders and we are their friends!

The Last Call.



MUCKRAKING'S AFTERMATH.

The virulent outbreak of muckraking at the time when Thomas Lawson was chief knight of the garbage pen has subsided for lack of financial support on the part of a disgusted public. But the aftermath is still discernible in the lack of available capital for many praiseworthy enterprises. As Mr. Taft stated in a pithy speech delivered before the Knife-and-Fork Club of Kansas City, "The present chief ailment in our body politic is due to the muckraking that has been a favorite sport in this country for so long, but which is now fortunately on the ebb."

Demagogues indulged in frenzied efforts to excite the public against all existing conditions of life and for a while, by the sensational nature of their outbursts attracted considerable notice. In time sober investigation proved the greater part of their effusions to be froth and fume; in the few cases where the romance was based on minimum of fact no remedy was suggested for the ills so spectacularly depicted.

Real reformers have a remedy at hand before they arouse the public to what appears to them to be a peril or an abuse. Those who rushed into print with hair-raising pictures of tyrannical oppressions and horrible injustices were only after easy magazine money. As soon as one accusation refused to stick they hurried on to another still more morbid and fanciful. These flamboyant adventurers, having been found out by a public that however immediately emotional still thinks, have been obliged to desist from the favorite sport of muckraking. The aftermath gradually dries up and withers away, leaving the soil ready for the planting of more wholesome crops.

Of course these word bombs were generally exploded against the abominable rich for the advance of the admirable poor, the rebuke to riches being always shot into the ranks of so-called capitalists. Any attack on capital, even with poisoned gas, was justified as heralding the triumph of the "common people." And the joke of the whole thing lies in the fact that two-thirds of the attacked capital is in the hands of this same common people, supposed to be benefited by the destruction of their own property.

Muckraking, however ingenious its methods, could hardly expect to so blind the general public to its real objective—the canonization of a few Socialistic scribes—thus enabling these scribes to draw large pay from magazines actually supported through the advertising section by the capitalists they were attacking.

The few millionaires whose names were dragged prominently across the pages of the highest-paid muckrakers would have suffered little, even if the public had swallowed all the wash supplied for their consumption. A million small investors might have been sore hit by forced legislation against capital in general. As it is, they have been affected by the aftermath, for a certain amount of damage to all business was inflicted by these political freebooters.

But this, too, will pass away. Muckrakers and demagogues are no longer attracting public attention or pocketing some of the surplus money these goose-killers helped to tie up. The square deal for all, big business and little business, large capitalist and small capitalist, skilled worker and unskilled laborer is now the order of the day and under that order prosperity is fast returning among all sorts and conditions of men.

DISAPPOINTED ARIZONANS.

After all, the bottle of dam water which Gov. Hunt and party have carried to New York, with which to baptize the nose of the super-dreadnaught Arizona as she glides into the waves, will be used—if it is used at all—only to moisten her starboard side, and the custom of breaking a bottle of champagne on the bowsprit of a newly launched vessel will be adhered to.

The senior Senator from Arizona, Deacon Marcus Aurelius Smith, is mad through and through at the decision of the launching committee. He consigned their immortal souls to the same process that befell the waters of the Gila when the Roosevelt dam was constructed. He expressed a hope that their future residences would be in a climate even more sultry and less salubrious than that of Yuma. He attributed their action to a fanatical prohibition inclination to keep good booze away from his parched throat and he sang to them the rare old Irish ballad of "Hell to your souls is it tay you want."

His colleague, the orator-poet-Senator, Henry Ashurst, was more dignified but not less demonstrative in his denunciations of the committee. Henry struck the attitude of Ajax defying the lightning, and raising his clenched fist toward the sky he denounced the action of the launching committee. He said, "it is the most effectual extinguisher of high raised expectations, the greatest blaster of human hopes that any age has produced. For their action in demanding the wasting of that bottle of champagne may the committee be aesthetically and effectually and continentally and Rooseveltially dammed."

MY FRIEND FROM KANSAS.

BY WARREN M'CULLOCH.

I have a friend from Kansas with whom I visit a great deal. I often wonder that he ever left the State; he is so in love with it. There is no other State quite so prosperous; no other country as desirable; and anybody that possesses a trait that is at all commendable, that quality is immediately attributed by him to the influence of Kansas.

Is there a new idea at large? It originated in Kansas.

Have new discoveries been made? The explorer was born in Kansas.

Will intemperance be reduced to a minimum? Sure! Already it has been done in Kansas.

Is the population of penal institutions decreasing? Half of the jails are vacant in Kansas.

Is man increasing in stature? Of course! Look at Jess Willard of Kansas, for instance.

The heroes of the Civil War and all great Indian fighters, according to my friend, were products of Kansas.

In enumerating the victims of the Lusitania someone lauded Charles Frohman. "He was a Kansas man," declared my friend.

I wondered if there was anybody surviving Elbert Hubbard who would be equal to the task of editing the Philistine and the Fra. "I doubt it," said he. "I think Hubbard was a Kansas man."

I surprised him a few days ago, though. Our conversation had turned to politics and it was conceded that our President is an able man; but my friend declared he was born too far East to have a clear understanding of the actual needs of the people.

"There's Bryan," said he; "Bryan has really been the brains of the administration so far."

"Is he a Kansas man?" I inquired.

And after a long pause my friend admitted:

"N-o-o-o-o, I—don't know that he is."

The proposed hegira through the Straits of the Dardanelles has been postponed on account of wet grounds.

THE BIG JOB IN MEXICO.

[CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES]

BY ROLAND G. USHER

Author of "Pan-Americanism," "Pan-Germanism." Assistant Professor of History, Washington University.

THE peculiarly abnormal and artificial basis of American interests in Latin America is brought vividly home to us by present conditions in Mexico. Two things indeed are needed for normality and a natural economic basis of business—our intentions and the other fellow's, our desire to trade and normal conditions in the other fellow's country.

We must not forget that primary and indispensable duty of the United States government—to protect the lives and property of American citizens wherever they may be. With Germany, it is the principle for whose recognition we must contend; in Mexico, it is not the principle but the means of securing its enforcement that concerns us.

Aside from this primal duty, American interests in Mexico are those of the American citizens who have gone thither to develop the country by promoting legitimate enterprises or who have loaned the Mexicans or others capital with which to operate mines, plantations, and railroads. These are economic interests of an entirely normal type so far as we are concerned. Political domination of Mexico the American people do not want; control of its government even the Americans in Mexico do not desire for political reasons. But they realize only too well, and we at home must also come to see, that American economic interests in Mexico and American trade with Mexico must remain upon an artificial basis so long as they can be destroyed by internal dissension and political rivalry.

The fundamental basis of normal economic conditions is lacking in Mexico—the habit of peace, the need for continued intercourse with distant points. The people do not normally themselves prosecute much business which depends entirely upon good government, good police, honesty, fairness and justice in the courts.

The protection Americans in Mexico need, as well as the aid business men here who deal with Mexico desire, is stable normal government of the sort Mexico has not had for some years. Americans need it because the sort of business we conduct here and in Mexico is more dependent upon efficient government and a general state of peace than the sort the Mexicans themselves operate. Our interests are therefore artificial not because they would themselves be abnormal here, but because they are entirely abnormal in Mexico. It is so difficult for us to realize that conditions elsewhere are as different from what they are at home as to make an entirely ordinary thing here entirely extraordinary in Mexico. That is the difference between a developed and a relatively undeveloped country; until the latter attains development the sort of things normal to developed countries will there be abnormal.

The basis of American interests in Mexico, as in much of Latin America, is artificial because the political and legal conditions, which here are assumed to be a part of the economic structure, are there non-existent. Instead of being so stable as scarcely to be capable of disarrangement, the political structure is easily overturned. With it go the interests dependent upon its stability. Hence our trade with Mexico, our investments there, American business carried on there, rest upon an artificial basis which has proved its artificiality by literally disappearing.

What now is desirable and necessary for us to do? The answer is simple enough: Obtain in Mexico that firm political foundation upon which interests of the type normal here can securely rest; cure the abnormality of the political situation and make our economic interests normal. To some it seems to be a very simple matter; to the President it is clear that it involves nothing less than the remaking of a country, the education of a people, the transformation of a race, the solution of domestic issues of importance only to them as the necessary prelude to the definitive settlement of issues of significance mainly to us and to other foreign countries whose relations to Mexico are the same as ours.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

MELANCHOLY DAYS.

The melancholy days have come, the saddest of the year, when you, determined to be glum, produce the flowing tear, when you refuse to see the joys surrounding every gent, and thus discourage other boys, and stir up discontent. A grouch will travel far and long before its work is done; and it will queer the hopeful song, and spoil all kinds of fun. Men start downtown with buoyant tread, and things seem on the boom; then you come forth with blistered head, and fill them up with gloom. There'd be no melancholy days, our lives would all be fair, if it were not for sorehead jays who always preach despair. We'd shake off every kind of grief, if Jonah didn't come, the pessimist who holds a brief for all things on the bum. So, if you really cannot rise above the sob and wail, and see the azure in the skies, and hear the nightingale, let some dark cave be your abode, where men can't hear you howl, and let your comrades be the toad, the raven and the owl. WALT MASON.

Two Good Ones from the Argonaut.

An English professor, traveling through the Kentucky hills, noted various quaint expressions. For instance after a long ride the professor sought provisions at a mountain hut. "What d' yo'-all want?" called out a woman. "Madam," said the professor, "can we get corn bread here?" We'd like to buy some of you." "Co'n bread? Co'n bread, did yo' say?" Then she chuckled to herself, and her manner grew amiable. "Why, if co'n bread's all yo' want, come right in, for that's jest what I haint got nothin' elst on hand but."

Pat and Mike were crossin' the river on a ferryboat. They were watching intently a big dredging barge that was sending its mammouth scoops under the water and bringing up tons of mud. "Pat," says Mike, "wouldn't yez loike to be a-workin' over there on that mud digger?" "Yis," says Pat, "but, begorra, Oi'd hate to be wan of the fellers under the water that's fillin up thim shovels."

In a Dilemma.

[Philadelphia Public Ledger:] "You'll have to send for another doctor," said the one who had been called, after a brief glance at the patient.

"Am I so ill as that?" gasped the sufferer.

"I don't know just how ill you are," replied the man of medicine, "but I know you're the lawyer who cross-examined me when I appeared as an expert witness. My conscience won't let me kill you, and I'll be hanged if I want to cure you. Good day."

Removal Time Near at Hand

—In less than a year from the time we began construction upon the corner unit of the new and greater Broadway, in fact in less than eleven months, we will be moving into that portion, which gives us eleven acres of selling space.

—Very shortly now we will announce the opening date. We wish to emphasize, however, that when this move is made that the building will not be entirely completed. The South Side, which we are now occupying, will be very much rearranged, new departments added and the present ones enlarged, so that it may be several months before the entire building will be ready and complete for a formal inspection.

—We intend, however, to make the opening day of intense interest to you. We want you to watch for it. Aside from the fact that it will be interesting to see what has already been accomplished, it is our intention to make it so vitally interesting from the merchandise standpoint that you will ever remember the time.

—This week, as we near removal time, we have assembled very unusual merchandise opportunities of which this announcement today is a forerunner.

An Earth Boil.

LOCAL SCIENTIST LOOKS UP MIGHTY AWAKENED GIANT.

California's Great Active Volcano, Only One in the United States, Studied at Close Range and its Manifestations Described.

BY WILLIAM H. KNIGHT.

[Because of the widespread interest in Lassen Peak, recently in violent eruption, The Times commissioned William H. Knight, the Los Angeles scientist, to visit and study the active volcano and write his impressions and observations. The first installment of his interesting account follows, and the second and concluding one will be published next Sunday. This volcano is approximately 700 miles north of Los Angeles, by rail.—Editor The Times.]

I

LASSEN PEAK, the slumbering giant that has lain dormant for thousands of years, was roused from his lethargy a year ago and has been exhibiting the force that springs from imprisoned fires on many occasions since the eventful day that will long be remembered by the people of Northern California—May 30, 1914—when, with a roar like the thunder of heavy artillery, a black column of smoke, attended with hot ashes, fine sand and hissing steam, was shot up from the deep caverns of the earth into the blue empyrean, thousands of feet above the summit of the mountain, which is itself 10,437 feet, or nearly two vertical miles, in height.

Lassen Peak now takes its place among the great active volcanoes of the world. While there are thousands of dormant or extinct volcanoes, and they are to be found in every country of both hemispheres, the roll of active volcanoes can be quickly called.

The principal ones are Vesuvius, in Italy, 4000 feet high, dormant previous to 79 A. D.; Etna, in Sicily, 11,000 feet high; Stromboli, on one of the Lipari Islands, 3000 feet high, and Hecla, in Iceland, 5000 feet high. All these are on the map of Europe. In America there are several low volcanoes in the Aleutian Islands, two large ones in Mexico, two in Guatemala, one in Salvador, Mont Peele on the Island of Martinique; Cotopaxi, in Ecuador, 19,500 feet high, and one each in Patagonia and Terra del Fuego. There is one in the Antarctic continent.

In the mid-Pacific there are two volcanoes in the Hawaiian Islands—Mauna Loa, 13,760 feet high, and not far away, Kilauea, 4000 feet high, and a few inconsiderable ones in other Australasian islands. In Japan there are two, in Formosa one, and two or three in Kamschatka. It is a noteworthy fact that for some reason not yet clearly understood by geologists all the active volcanoes are near the sea—within 100 miles of the coast.

There is only one active volcano in the United States—Lassen Peak,—a giant mountain, built up entirely from materials drawn from the earth's deep interior, and California claims it among her most wonderful scenes. Not only is it one of the rugged sentinels guarding our northern frontier, but it is constantly challenging our attention and exciting our admiration by splendid displays of deep-seated energy, and by sending forth magnificent black plumes into the sky, often accompanied by a grand bombardment of great rocks.

What is a volcano? It is a mountain which intermittently is in a state of eruption; that is, it ejects from its mysterious throat ashes, cinders, lava, steam and sometimes small or great boulders. These explosive outbursts are followed by seasons of comparative quiescence, lasting sometimes for days and sometimes for weeks. While in the so-called quiescent state it may be emitting frequent puffs of steam, showing that the deep interior of the earth with which the throat of the volcano is connected is still in a state of active ebullition. It is probable that various groups of islands in the Pacific Ocean, and in the East and West Indies are entirely of volcanic origin.

THE FIRST VIEW.

On the morning of the last day of last month I was on the road from Red Bluff in a mail stage, ascending the broad mesa leading directly to the Lassen volcano. About 1200 feet of its summit was in plain view, at a distance of twenty miles. It was gently steaming—thin puffs of white steam were forced up from its depths and blown towards the south by a gentle breeze. Suddenly there issued a column of black smoke, rising straight toward the zenith. A long, horizontal, light-colored cloud lay apparently above the volcano, but it must have been nearer than that summit, for the column of smoke was sharply cut off by it, but was quickly resumed above the cloud, where it expanded into a large volume of rolling masses with grayish edges. It reached a height above the summit estimated by the mountaineers in the stage to be 5000 feet or more. It was a sight which, in view of its significance, could not fail to impress itself indelibly upon the memory.

This was the first genuine outburst, carrying with it ashes and possibly cinders and other volcanic debris, since the notable and destructive eruption of May 22. It did not last long—perhaps half an hour—and when the dark column of smoke ceased the characteristic steam puffs were resumed.

We passed a number of buttes which were evidently extinct volcanoes. In the ample crater of one—the Inskip Butte—a thousand feet or more above its base on the mesa, tall pine trees were growing in the accumulated soil. All around, and from that point on to Lassen Peak, the ground was thickly strewn with lava boulders, ranging from six inches to two and three feet in diameter. They were piled up in ridges on each side of the narrow roadway. But where occasional fields were cleared of these boulders the soil is rich and productive, its fertility being derived from the distintegrated volcanic ashes with which the whole country was once covered.

IN THE TIMBER.

Passing the bottoms at Paynes Creek, we began a more arduous ascent and reached the noble timber forests of sugar and white pine intermingled with the graceful cypress. The former were massive and very tall, attaining heights of 150 and 200 feet. Many of them were from five to eight feet in diameter, and if the market were near would be well worth $100 apiece. A surprising feature was their compactness; they grow so close together that in many instances I was able to touch two giant trees with my outstretched hands.

I rode from Paynes Creek to Mineral with the postmaster, Bert Hampton. While climbing one of the steep grades to an elevation exceeding 6000 feet, he related an anecdote of a former happening on the road. A man was driving a mountain stage and gave his passengers the choice of being first class at $3 or second class at $2 or third class at $1. When the stage arrived at the steep hill climb the driver said, "The first class passenger may keep his seat; the second class passengers will get out and walk; and the third class passenger must get out and push." Taking the hint, I told Mr. Hampton that I would consider myself a second class passenger, at least part of the way, and I cheerfully walked several miles to relieve the tedium of the jolting ride, and I had no difficulty in keeping up with the team dragging its weary load.

We duly arrived at Mineral on the South Fork of Battle Creek, near one of the forest stations, for Lassen Peak is within a State Forest Reserve covering 1,042,925 acres, or 1630 square miles. The altitude at Mineral is 4800 feet, and there is frost at sun-up on early June mornings. It is on the traveled way for herds of cattle and sheep from the western lowlands to the mountain ranges in Lassen county. No less than sixteen herders were accommodated on the first night of my arrival.

FROM VARIOUS ANGLES.

The sun doesn't set till a late hour in those northern latitudes, and after dinner I went out to the forest station, a little beyond which there is a fine view of Lassen Peak, about eleven miles distant. Just beyond it was a cloud lit with a crimson sunset glow. While endeavoring to impress the contour of the summit upon my mind, a thing happened that I shall never forget. A black column of smoke shot straight up, expanded itself over the face of the cloud, making a charming silhouette of its rolling, tumbling masses, and in fifteen or twenty minutes faded completely from view. But transitory as was the glimpse it was a picture that can never fade from the mind.

Next morning one of my host's sturdy sons conducted me through the "forest primeval" up the steep sides of Mt. Hampton, where the long, slippery pine needles made it necessary to use a mountain pike staff in order to make any kind of progress. Reaching a cleared space 1000 feet above the stream, we had a splendid view of the summit of Lassen Peak, only eleven miles distant. Only about 1200 feet of the summit was visible because Mt. Brokeoff, with a singular flat top and glistening with snow, intervened. But Lassen was steaming beautifully. From its profound depths the white steam was rising in unsteady but continuous puffs and floating away to the east.

Returning to the farm, another son hitched up a double team and took me over the unfrequented road to Morgan's Hot Sulphur Springs, ascending on the way a mountain on which a government monument bore the figures "5770 feet above the sea," and from which a superb view of the volcano is seen only nine miles to the northwest. The springs cover two or three acres of level meadow, from every portion of which bubble little hot geysers charged with various minerals. It is surrounded by steep crags as if it were the remains of an old crater not yet out of business. Its mud baths are said to be effective remedies for rheumatism. The numerous springs are bordered by varicolored encrustations.

All around the northern, eastern and southern sides of the great volcano are groups of springs, each having individuality. Among them may be mentioned Devil's Kitchen, Bumpass's Hell, Soupan Hot Springs, Poison Lake, Drake's Hot Springs, Lake Tartarus, the Geysers, etc. That these troubled springs are more or less allied with volcanic conditions seems probable, but they are regarded as superficial, and result from the chemical action of subterranean water currents, which, holding certain volcanic elements in solution, come in contact with other elements for which they have chemical affinity, and thus produce heat and all the varied phenomena characteristic of the springs.

Surrounding Lassen Peak, and within a radius of thirty miles, are many lesser volcanic cones, all, however, extinct. Among them may be mentioned Cinder Cone, Magee's Peak, Keddie's Peak, Prospect Peak, Crater Peak, 8724 feet altitude; Harkness's Peak, 8875 feet; Burney Butte, 7880 feet; Tuscan Butte, Black Butte, Inskipp Butte, Bald Mountain, etc. The scientific aspects of this wonderful region will be explained in another chapter.

Returning to Payne's Creek, I went up to Manton, nineteen miles distant by stage. There two fine views of the volcano, seventeen miles to the east, were obtained. One was from a point above the ditch, and the other from a considerable hill a little farther east. Manton is an interesting place—one of the oldest towns in Northern California and noted for its orchards, one of the most extensive of which is owned by Mr. Forward.

There is no village proper nearer the volcano than Manton, though Viola, nine miles from the summit, has a few houses, a mill and a school. The mill is worked by H. B. Loomis, who took the fine views herewith presented. At Shingletown, eleven miles from Manton, there is a good hotel, and it is at the end of a mail stage road between that place and Cottonwood, thirty-three miles away on the Sacramento River—a very rough road, improved by merely taking the lava boulders out of the track.

From Shingletown one goes by auto to Viola, seventeen miles, and four miles farther to Manzanita Shoot, 8400 feet altitude, and about five miles from the crater of the volcano. It is, in fact, the best point from which to see the great mountain from summit to its base on the volcanic mesa. There it stands before you in all its rugged grandeur, and seeming very near in the clear atmosphere.

CRATER DANGEROUS.

The crater itself is not safely approachable at present on account of the incessant spurts of steam and the possibility of an outburst of cinders and ashes, not to speak of lava bombs, at any moment. At such times a fine sand, ranging from an almost impalpable but gritty powder to very small pebbles, is projected with great violence from the throat of the monster and carried to distances of fifteen or twenty miles. At Viola it was not difficult to gather quantities of this fine sand, which covered every exposed surface.

It was on the northern and eastern aspect of the mountain that some large rocks were projected from the volcano or loosened from the crater rim and tumbled down the steep mountainside toward Manzanita Lake, four miles distant. This resulted from the tremendous and historic outburst of May 22, last, the most violent exhibition of volcanic energy since the mountain resumed activity on May 30, 1914, as one of the world's great volcanoes.

HUGE HOT ROCKS.

Three or four persons, among them Mr. Loomis, had the hardihood to go down from Manzanita Shoot and examine the situation three days after the great explosion of May 22. There they found two great rocks—one twelve feet by fourteen by ten, and the other eleven by nine by seventeen, both still so hot that while they could lightly touch them they could not press their hands upon them without sustaining blisters. When the momentum of another large rock was stopped at the margin of Manzanita Lake, it rested against a green sapling which it set afire and burned to the roots. Smaller rock fragments lay all around, cooled off by the snow in which they were imbedded.

It was on the northern slope of the mountain that the great disaster of Hat Creek occurred. That stream rises near the crest and flows northward for forty miles, finally emptying into Pit River. There are farms and three small settlements in the valley. There was a deep snow bank near the summit, and the fierce heat of the explosion, together with a great mat of hot cinders, rapidly melted the snow, and the water, mixed with the ashes and sand to a mushy consistency, rushed down the mountainside in an irresistible torrent, covering portions of the valley for a width of two miles with mud from one to two feet deep.

In an interesting interview with State Forester G. M. Homans, he stated that, together with two companions he ascended the mountain via Hat Creek four days after the outburst of May 22, and found the condition deplorable. Contrary to earlier reports no human lives nor cattle were lost, but many farms were utterly ruined. He did not go nearer than three miles from the top. The climbing was very difficult. All about him in the encrusted snow he noticed little perpendicular wells. Probing these wells with his pike staff he found at the bottom of each a stone. Though now cold it was evident that they were thrown from the crater when hot and quickly sank through the snow to the ground. These stones varied in size from two or three inches to a foot or more in diameter, and were ocular and tangible evidence of the fierce bombardment that had prevailed during the great eruption.

DENUDING FORCES.

While Mr. Homans and his companions, Forest Ranger Seaborn and C. K. McClatchy of the Sacramento Bee, were making their ascent, they met four youths from Cottonwood and Anderson who stated that they went within a mile of the top—about 9000 feet elevation—and could hear the roaring of the volcano as it belched frequent puffs of steam. According to Mr. McClatchy's estimate hundreds of thousands of tons of rock and sand and ashes were hurled from the volcano and swept down the mountainside, searing and killing thousands of pine trees, denuding the valley of its natural soil, and leaving much of it absolutely barren.

Hat Creek received its peculiar name from the fact that in 1849 a considerable immigration poured through Noble's Pass, and while crossing a swift stream one D. D. Harrell lost his hat, was unable to recover it and proceeded to his destination at Shasta City bareheaded. So the immigrants named the stream Hat Creek. Harrell built a mill and became a man of local importance.

Referring again to the tremendous outburst of the 22nd of last month, it was undoubtedly the most impressive and spectacular eruption that has occurred since the volcano resumed activity May 30, 1914. About 4:20 p.m. of the former date immense volumes of smoke, ashes, steam and gases issued from the crater with such violence, that, according to some statements, a black canopy was formed four or five miles above the mountain top, and was visible throughout all Northern California. At the same time sand and rocks of various dimensions were projected from the volcano and fell in the immediate vicinity of the cone.

Extravagant stories were immediately telegraphed and circulated about the disastrous consequences of the eruption, among others that men and cattle were killed. Tracing the stories down, no cattle were harmed. The herds along Hat Creek had to be driven to new fields on account of the floods produced by the melting snows, which were undoubtedly hastened by the fall of hot ashes upon the great snowbanks on the northern slopes.

It is true that one person was seriously injured by falling stones. He, together with two companions, had ventured too near the crater after the first violent eruption, when another, but milder outburst occurred. They immediately fled the scene, but, blinded by the smoke and choked by the sulphurous fumes, made little headway, when one of the party was struck by a small stone and knocked down. On examination it was found that his collar bone was broken. For a short distance they dragged the benumbed man down the mountain. Then he recovered sufficiently to return with them to headquarters. Imagine the result if he had been struck by one of the big rocks!

Prof. R. S. Holway of the University of California headed a small party which scaled the volcano's peak five days after the great eruption last month. It took eight hours to make the ascent via Drake's Springs. It is his theory that myriads of white hot boulders and ashes, blown out by the subterranean forces, were mixed with the snow and earth on the mountainsides and rolled down in the flood.

THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

A party from Susanville led by John Brambilla had a thrilling experience of four days. He stated that "from a new crater 350 feet long by 75 in width, great volumes of sulphur gases and volcanic ashes were pouring." Stones weighing hundreds of pounds were scattered about on the snow and ice. Some of the bombs, thrown a quarter of a mile, had melted their way from one to four feet through the deep snowbanks.

There was a time in remote geological ages when Lassen Peak did not exist, when the waves of the Pacific Ocean rolled over the broad expanse of what is now Sacramento Valley, and washed the shores of a continent which terminated at the base of the Sierra Nevada Mountains. Then began a wonderful upheaval of the earth's crust, attended with a tremendous display of subterranean energy, and the most brilliant series of thermal, explosive and volcanic outbursts this old world has ever known. It was the geological era when the giant volcanoes of Lassen and Shasta and the mountains of the Cascade range from Mazama and the Three Sisters to Rainier and Baker were born. Of this world-transforming era we shall speak in the conclusion of this article next Sunday.

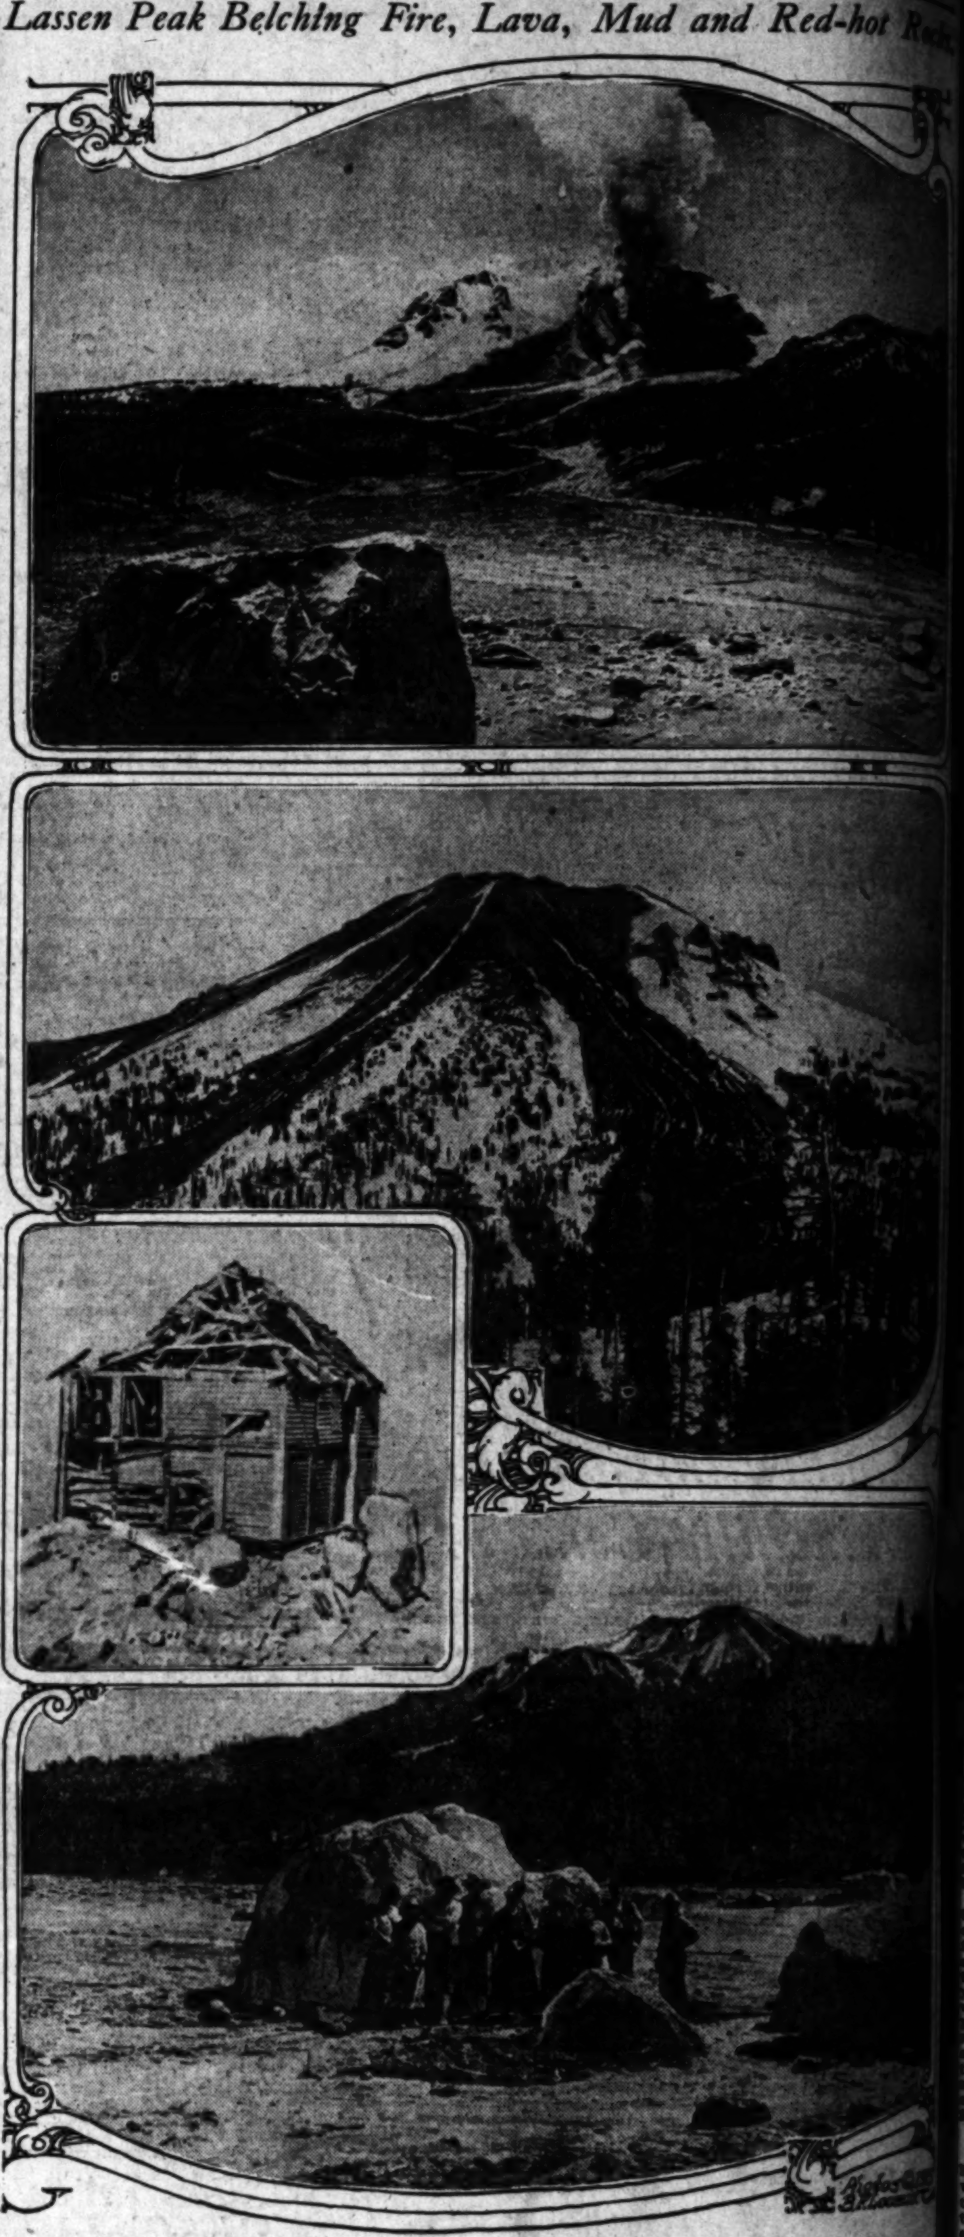

Graphic views of California's active volcano.

The upper photograph was taken May 22, during a violent eruption of black ash, fine sand and cinders, with a bombardment of stones. The rock in the foreground, twelve by ten by fourteen feet, had been four miles from the crater. The middle picture, taken May 27, shows a great flood of mingled water, gravel flowing from the steep slopes, denuding the mountain, and covering the valley with mud two and from one to two feet thick. The immense rock in the lower picture was still so hot that it would if a hand was pressed upon it. It had been hurled five miles. The little house is the forester's summit after it was demolished by the great eruptions.

WILL WIN DESERT BY PERSEVERANCE.

MESSAGE OF CHEER IS SPOKEN TO LANDOWNERS OF VICTOR VALLEY.

"There is no possibility of easily or quickly overcoming the problems of making the desert bloom, so don't get discouraged, don't quit in your endeavors," said George H. Maxwell, executive director of the National Reclamation Association to the Victor Valley residents and landowners who gathered in McKinley Hall in the Mozart Theater Building Friday night.

"When I went to the first national irrigation congress held in this country in 1897, I offered a resolution that the government should build reservoirs and conserve the water for use on the western deserts. The tee to which this was referred reported on it and when I up before the convention after it had apparently I was laughed at and the branded as chimerical, outcome of too many dreams.

"With a few others who had visions, I kept hammering line and today one of the the Roosevelt reservoir, which millions to build, but which hundreds of thousands of the near future. Organizing zonans to get action was one of the hardest tasks of my life and until the Secretary of the to go ahead with plans, and work, that we received any consideration or commendation.

"The report you have had the water supply for your Engineer Lippincott is a right direction, the laying of a foundation more than pense. So far your problems been handled diplomatically diciously and you have good will of many that by sticking to it you but accomplish what you to do. The same principles in this project as would a great undertaking like the and completion of the dam."

F. M. Waltham of the Victor Mutual Water and Power Association was chairman.

FRENCH FASCINATIONS AT THE FAIR.

Wonderful and Even Maddening Spectacle Seen in the Majestic French Pavilion at the San Francisco Exposition — The Most Crowded and Winning Show on the Fair Grounds—The Great Gatherings Booked for July and August.

BY JEANNE REDMAN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EXPOSITION GROUNDS, SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—The first [illegible] to accept the invitation [illegible] in the Panama-Pacific [illegible] was France. At the time [illegible] opening of the exposition [illegible] was the only warring nation [illegible] represented, having de[illegible] her flag at San Francisco [illegible] of the fact that her life was [illegible]. Under the conditions any [illegible] participation would have been [illegible], but the French pavilion is [illegible] of the greatest attractions of [illegible] exposition, and is second [illegible] in the crowds it draws.

[illegible] it was decided to have a [illegible] of 16,000 square feet, but the [illegible] for space were so numer[illegible] the size of the building was [illegible] to 60,000 feet. This does [illegible] the wonderful exhibits in [illegible] of Fine Arts or the French [illegible] in the eight main palaces. [illegible] on the French pavilion was [illegible] on the 26th of December and in [illegible] the building was complete[illegible]. At the time that war [illegible] declared, France gave up the [illegible] of a building at the exposition as [illegible] other warring nations, but on [illegible] 1st of November, Capt. Asher [illegible] Baker went to Paris and ob[illegible] a promise from the French gov[illegible] to show her friendship for [illegible] United States by an official par[illegible], and the order was cabled to [illegible] exposition to begin the work.

DISTINGUISHED BUILDERS.

The French government chose the [illegible] architect of France to build [illegible] pavilion in imitation of the Palace [illegible] Legion of Honor in France, and [illegible] as their Commissioner-General, [illegible] Tirman, with M. L. G. Lam[illegible] as his assistant.

[illegible] Guillaume is the man who in[illegible] the Bal des Quat'z'Arts in [illegible] and was for many years one of [illegible] most conspicuous members of the [illegible] Latin, where everybody [illegible] him and his work. He was a [illegible] of the Beaux Arts, and his [illegible] was an architect of fame. As [illegible] known, the Bal des Quat'z'Arts [illegible] for the purpose of further[illegible] study of architecture, paint[illegible] sculpture and music, and provid[illegible] students with the opportunity [illegible] models suitable to their [illegible]. Of course Paris is the only [illegible] setting for a "Bal" of that [illegible], where a man may go and seek [illegible] model who will inspire him, but [illegible] M. Guillaume to invent it. M. [illegible] delights in the exposition, [illegible] the architectural details, [illegible] the Fine Arts, are real [illegible].

IT IS SERENE.

[illegible] a conspicuous site in the [illegible] grounds, the French Build[illegible] its background of dense trees [illegible] Presidio forest, has a serene [illegible] air, which lends atmos[illegible] dignity to the entire foreign [illegible] which it is the loveliest [illegible]. That the French should have [illegible] a gift to the exposi[illegible] peculiarly appropriate, as it [illegible] Frenchman, Champlain, who [illegible], in the year 1600, the [illegible] Panama Canal.

[illegible] moldings of the bas-reliefs [illegible] capitals of the Corinthian col[illegible] and other parts of the building [illegible] presented by France to the [illegible] of California's architectural [illegible], after having been used [illegible] construction of the building. [illegible] a precise reproduction of the [illegible] of the Legion of Honor, which [illegible] designed in 1786 by the archi[illegible] Rousseau for the Prince de [illegible], who was one of the first to [illegible] guillotined during the revolution. [illegible] the courtyard, at the main en[illegible] stands the great masterpiece [illegible] sculpture, Rodin's "Thinker," be[illegible] which gatherings stand rapt in [illegible] all through the day. En[illegible] the building from this court[illegible] we come upon really staggering [illegible] of art of every description, [illegible] about the vast halls with that [illegible] good taste which, in the French, [illegible] to genius. Here are grouped [illegible] distinctly national artistic achieve[illegible] of France—Gobelin tapestries [illegible] and modern, and the world[illegible] china of Sevres.

THE TAPESTRIES.

Louis XIV was the patron of Gobe[illegible] tapestries, although they were [illegible] prior to his time, and since [illegible] they have been maintained by [illegible] French government. The looms [illegible] Gobelin supply the decorations for [illegible] palaces of France, and produce [illegible] tapestries with which the French [illegible] honors its distinguished [illegible] and visitors. Only a few years [illegible] when the Czar and Czarina of [illegible] visited France, they were pre[illegible] with a set of these famous [illegible]. The tapestries are woven [illegible] in the same manner as in the [illegible], of wool and silk. It takes [illegible] a year to a year and a half to [illegible] one square yard of this beauti[illegible]. The pieces spread upon the [illegible] of the main salon are by Le [illegible] the great director of the looms [illegible] Louis XIV. They represent the [illegible] of Alexander the Great, and [illegible] the opening of the French pavi[illegible] a resident of San Francisco, [illegible] name must be witheld, offered [illegible] apiece for them, but they [illegible] not for sale. The piece in the [illegible] over the stairway is a mod[illegible] by the great artist Cormon. It [illegible] a scene from the career [illegible] the Duc du Barry, and was made [illegible] the town Hall of Bourges, which [illegible] his capital at the beginning of [illegible] Fifteenth Century. An interest[illegible] feature of this superb display of [illegible] tapestries are the designs [illegible] were ordered by Louis XIV to [illegible] modern battles. Among the [illegible] which were to have been [illegible] out upon the looms were pic[illegible] of the battles of Yorktown and [illegible] Hill," probably intended [illegible] "Bunker Hill." In the main salon [illegible] the gorgeous display of Sevres [illegible]. As is well known, Louis XIV [illegible] the establishment of the [illegible] works of Sevres to compete [illegible] the German works at Dresden. [illegible] Cloud is the home of Sevres china [illegible] is a popular visiting place for [illegible].

THE POTTER'S ART.

What a wonderful revelation are [illegible] exquisite works of art in china! [illegible] range from infinitesimal objects [illegible] the dining-room and boudoir, to [illegible] vases for the decoration of [illegible] and the enriching of [illegible]. The famous Sevres blue, [illegible] the equally celebrated bisquit [illegible] are here in many varieties of [illegible] form. The delicate figures and [illegible] on a background of transpar[illegible] color, are irresistible and [illegible]. The French government [illegible] the output of both [illegible] works and the Gobelin looms. The china is sold to the public but the tapestries are not.

In this wondrous salon are carpets of the time of Lius XIV and furniture of the same period, and ranged about are busts from mouldings of famous originals. There is one of Richelieu, one of the Marshal of Saxe, who won Fontenoy, one of the poet Racine, the great Moliere and among those which are of interest to Americans particularly, is one of La Fayette. La Fayette has a recess in the salon dedicated to his relics, as has also Rochambeau. Both collections are loaned by the families of these men, who helped the United States in the War of Independence. The collection includes their swords, their portraits, decorations granted by their governments, an American flag, which was presented to La Fayette by grateful Americans in 1825, and many other souvenirs about which the crowds gather all day long.

MODERN PAINTERS.

On the left of the recess comes a series of rooms in which are hung a collection of paintings that represent the work of modern artists from 1870 to 1900. The names of painters in this room form a list of genius that no other country can display. They are not only masters; they are initiators of new schools and methods. For from France have come nearly all the new currents in modern painting. The influence upon the art of America is plainly visible here. Turning from the numerous paintings we come upon ivories, crystals, stones, glass, marble, brass, silk, wool and wood, every description of material substance, transformed into wonders of bric-a-bric jewelry, pottery and a thousand tempting objets d' art.

There is the room which reproduces the main hall of the Legion of Honor in Paris. The carpet and everything else in the room was ordered by Napoleon, of whom there are numerous relics and souvenirs. In the center of the carpet is woven the cross of honor and surrounding it are sixteen rays which represent the sixteen cohorts that constituted the ancient Roman Legion, the idea of which was utilized by Napoleon in organizing his modern Legion of Honor.

In an adjoining room is a group of works owned by Mrs. Adolph Spreckels of San Francisco, and by her loaned to the exposition—they are by the great master Rodin.

AND LITERATURE.

As for literature, there are rooms devoted to the writers of the Romantic period beginning with Victor Hugo, and ending with Dumas the younger, including all the strong spirits of the period of 1830, Chateaubriand, Hugo, de Banville, Lamartine, de Musset, Gautier, Balzac and a host of other inspiring names.

Then there is the large library where hosts gather and read at their leisure from the book shelves which line the walls. There is a publisher's-room where are shown all the new inventions and modern products of the press of France. Another is a typical French family-room; the living-room of the household with the book shelves and desk of le pere, la mere, et toutes les enfants!

To give a catalogue of the other exhibits would require many columns upon columns—the autographs, the relics, the medals and the historical monuments. The special function of the Department of Historical Monuments is to direct the preservation and restoration of all the historical buildings—cathedrals, palaces, abbeys, castles and so forth, which are everywhere in France. No private owner is allowed to destroy or restore at his own will an old building which he may possess, but is supervised by the experts of this department.

MADDENING.

The really maddening part of the exhibit is the fashion-room! The exhibits of the modistes, the perfumers, the milliners, the silks of Lyons—or, how sorely envious one gets!

No other exhibit in the exposition grounds is so alluring, so irresistible, so unutterable, so—well, so French!

THE CROWDS THAT ARE COMING.

Many of the thousands who during the present year will take advantage of the low transportation rates have begun to reach San Francisco. In the first 100 days following the opening of the exposition on February 20, 1915, over 6,000,000 persons passed through its turnstiles. This extraordinary attendance when taken in connection with the fact that the great vacation travel has not yet begun gives definite promise of the continued and spectacular success of the exposition.

Among the advance events of international interest, is the arrival of the Liberty Bell from Philadelphia in July. The Liberty Bell will leave Philadelphia on July 5, arriving in San Francisco on the evening of July 16th. Plans will bring this relic of America's freedom to San Francisco in time to be the inspiration for a celebration on July 17, commensurate with the significance of the occasion. Several hundreds of thousands of school children from all parts of California will be in the parade of welcome which escorts the bell from the depot to the Pennsylvania State Building, where it will remain during the period of the exposition.

Eight hundred and twelve congresses will meet in San Francisco during the remainder of the year, the majority on the exposition grounds. The San Francisco Civic Auditorium will accommodate the larger of these, others being held at Festival Hall in the exposition grounds and at the Oakland Auditorium. Among the largest of the conventions will be that of the National Educational Association. Executives of great transportation companies have expressed the belief, founded upon reports in their possession, that there will be 40,000 delegates, their families and friends in attendance at the convention, which will begin on August 16. The principal meetings will be held in Oakland, which has direct ferry connections with the exposition grounds.

It is the conservative estimate of the Division of Congresses and Conventions of the exposition that there will be 1,000,000 visitors in San Francisco during the summer whose presence is directly traceable to the hundreds of conventions scheduled to meet in San Francisco. These visitors are additional to the regular tourist traffic to the West in the summer and the many thousands who have secured reservations for pleasure tourist of California and the West, with the Panama-Pacific International Exposition as the objective of their journey.

An international prize shooting tournament at which, it is expected, 50,000 marksmen will gather, will be held on the Shell Mound Range in conjunction with the exposition, commencing on Sunday August 8 and the tournament has attracted the universal attention of marksmen throughout the world. Fifty thousand dollars will be distributed in prizes to successful contestants at the tournament.

The tournament will be inaugurated with a magnificent demonstration through the principal streets of San Francisco and on the exposition grounds. By a happy coincidence "German Week" will close on that day, and of the thousands of Germans that will participate in celebrating "German Week," many will prolong their stay in order to take part in the tournament while many shooters will come a few days in advance of the shooting festival to take part in celebrating "German Week." Prizes aggregating more than $50,000 will be distributed.

An idea of the magnitude of the convention life of the exposition is afforded by the fact that eighty-one of the conventions are scheduled for June, 133 for July; and in August, the pinnacle month, there will be 249 conventions, congresses and conferences having the exposition as their pivotal point. In a single convention, that of the American Medical Association during the week of July 21, there will be 245 prepared addresses and papers.

Of world interest will be the convention of the International Engineering Congress with 20,000 delegates. Col. George W. Goethals will preside over the sessions. The proceedings of this congress will be published in eleven large volumes.

In the athletic programme are many events of international and national importance. The polo tournament, which was held during February and April, attracted noted riders from the clubs of the United States, while the crack golfers of the country were entered in the golf tournaments. In June will be staged the summer harness meet, one of the biggest meets ever staged in the United States, tens of thousands of dollars being allowed for awards. Another harness meet of equal importance will be held in the fall.

TO SURPASS ALL BEAUTY CHORUSES

AND KEEP OUT ALL CHESTNUTS FROM THE KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS SHOW.

The Knights of Columbus will present "1915 on Parade," the last three evenings of the month, at the Mason. Actually, the daughters, sisters and girl friends will present it. Beauty choruses with professional shows will probably fade by comparison. There are about thirty handsome young women who will help make the ensemble, many of them prominent socially in Los Angeles.

A guarantee has been given that there will be no old music or stale jokes. Prizes will be awarded to anyone who can discover something that has been perpetrated before on the comedy stage. Emil Bierman, who has been connected with numerous big musical successes in New York, is rehearsing parts of the company every night.

The plot has merely to do with a review of the principal events of 1915. The jitney bus, the modern dances, the reform prize fight law, "Grape Juice" Bryan and his war policies, "Teddy" and his peace policies, as well as numerous local affairs, including the last election, will be burlesqued.

Another feature will be a ballroom dancing number in which the Piano Girl Sextette will review all the syncopated hits of 1915. At the same time their playing will be accompanied by dancers who will mix the numerous modern hits of Terpsichore.

"Ten Knights in a Barred Room," a film produced through the courtesy of D. W. Griffith under the direction of Clarence Barr, is expected to be screamingly funny. Some of those burlesqued in this travesty are Judge McCormick, Judge White, P. J. McGarry, Joseph Ford, Isadore Dockweiler and Joseph Coyne. The music throughout is expected to be of such unusual character and originality as to attract wide comment even in the theatrical world. Some of the composers who have given their melodies for the occasion are Lou Gottschalk, Lewis Kerwin, Miss Josephine Ihmsen, Byron Gay, Weston Wilson and Phillip Bansbach, every one of whom has a national reputation.

The committee in charge of the affair consists of Chairman Christy Walsh, S. E. Masters, Rev. Joseph Kirk, J. E. Baxter, Will Menn and J. F. Rogan. Money raised in this manner is to be devoted to charity. Tickets are on sale in numerous stores in the city and are also obtainable at the Mason box office.

YES, THIS IS IT.

"Los Angeles seems to be the motion-picture center of the world," said U. S. Senator Smoot of Utah yesterday as he viewed the new David Horsley studio. Senator Smoot was shown the sights of Los Angeles as the guest of David Horsley and Dr. A. J. Scott of the 1915 Reception Committee. "It must be the climate of Los Angeles that makes possible the production of so many films here," said Senator Smoot. "I am sorry I have not time to visit all the other studios here."

How Heat Affects the Vital Organs

Hot Weather Conduces to Chronic Constipation and Diarrhea

A dispostion to confine one's diet to cold foods and to indulge freely in iced drinks, is one reason why constipation and diarrhea is so prevalent in summer, and there is no season when bowel disturbances should be more carefully avoided, as much serious disease is directly traceable to these conditions.

To regulate the bowels and quickly relieve even an aggravated case of constipation, the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is highly recommended by many physicians and all those who have used it. Unlike cathartics and violent purgatives, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin acts gently on stomach, liver and bowels without griping or other discomfort and brings relief in an easy, natural manner. Mild, pleasant to the taste, and inexpensive, it is the ideal family laxative. By cleansing the bowel tract and eliminating the foreign matter and poisons that irritate and inflame, it will quickly check an attack of diarrhea and restore normal conditions.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has been the standard remedy in countless homes for more than thirty years, and is sold in drug stores everywhere for fifty cents a bottle. A free trial can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 453 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

COCOANUT OIL MAKES A SPLENDID SHAMPOO.

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, the less soap you use the better.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

TODAY'S BEAUTY SUGGESTIONS

Face powder simply covers up an unattractive complexion and leaves no lasting benefits. Those who have tried a simple spurmax face lotion find it much better, as it removes skin discolorations, such as freckles and tan, and makes the skin smooth, white and velvety. This lotion is made by dissolving four ounces of spurmax in one-half pint hot water, then adding two teaspoonfuls glycerin. This complexion beautifier does not rub off or show like powder, and gives a more refined appearance. It removes both shininess and sallowness, rapidly giving the skin a permanent healthy, youthful appearance.

An especially fine shampoo for this weather can be had at trifling expense by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water. Pour slowly on scalp and massage briskly. This creates a soothing, cooling lather that dissolves and removes dandruff, excess oil and dirt. Rinsing leaves the scalp spotlessly clean, soft and pliant, while the hair takes on a glossy richness of natural color, also a fluffiness which makes it seem very much heavier than it is. After a canthrox shampoo arranging the hair is a pleasure.

Real Wonder-Worker For Wrinkled Faces

Those who have tried all sorts of so-called "wrinkle-removers" in a vain effort to lose those unwelcome traces of age, illness or worry, can scarcely find words to express their delight with the wonderful saxolite formula, once they have given it a trial. The success of this method is due not alone to its marvelous effectiveness—upon the deepest lines and crows-feet, as well as upon the very fine ones—but also to its surprisingly quick action and its entire harmlessness. Its simplicity and its inexpensiveness are other commendable features, for one needs only dissolve an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel, and bathe the face in this solution. At once a remarkable transformation is beheld.

It is not only the effect on wrinkles and creases that is so noticeable, but facial contour is remarkably improved and the face looks much younger. One should be sure to ask the druggist for the powdered saxolite. The lotion being so refreshing, is particularly grateful to tired faces these warm, depressing days.

(Toilet Talks.)

A simple method for completely removing every trace of hair or fuzz is here given. This is painless and usually a single treatment will banish even stubborn growths. To remove hairs, make a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water, spread on hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This method will not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be certain you get delatone.

To Cultivate Pretty Eyebrows and Lashes

(Home Beauty Aids.)

The care of the eyelashes and eyebrows being so essential to womanly beauty, here's advice worth following. Procure from any druggist about an ounce of plain pyroxin and once a day stroke a little into the eyebrows, and with the finger tip apply to the lash roots. While entirely harmless, pyroxin seems quite extraordinary in its power to promote the growth of long, thick, silky eyebrows and lashes, the latter with a fascinating curl.

Charging that its Finances are Being Cut Heavily by Dealers in Return Stubs of Round-trip Tickets, Railroad Starts Action—May be Unavailing, However.

The Southern Pacific Railroad Company yesterday applied a legal switch to the backs of the alleged curbstone ticket brokers of this city, who have been hovering about the hotels and purchasing the return stub of trans-continental tickets, non-transferrable, sold on account of the San Francisco and San Diego expositions, the Elks Convention and similar occasions booked for Los Angeles this summer.

M. I. Gilbert, attorney of the corporation, filed a petition in the United States District Court praying that an order be issued out of the court restraining H. Kline, Frank Porte, Carl J. Walker, William Kuhn, and Miss E. G. Kaercher from purchasing and dealing in such tickets. A temporary order was made by Judge Trippet, and the answer date set for the 28th inst.

In presenting the matter to Judge Trippett, Attorney Gilbert made the charge that these persons and others as yet unidentified, had for weeks been hanging around the lobbies of the local hotels and the Arcade Station, buying the return end of tickets that had been sold at excursion rates, good for a round trip, and non-transferrable.

Attorney Gilbert stated that the sale of these cut-rate tickets is working a great financial hardship on the Southern Pacific, as it was largely indulged in, and the road was out the difference in the price of a regular east-bound ticket and the cheap rate received for the return stubs; that they were supposed to be non-transferrable, but that the baldest frauds were being perpetrated.

It is doubtful whether any of the defendants appear, as the status of a ticket scalper has long ago been fixed by the courts of last resort. They have no legal standing, it is alleged.

ON EUROPEAN TRAVELS.

Illustrated Talk on War-ridden Countries will be Given Wednesday by Noted Student.

Mr. and Mrs. George Watson Cole have recently returned from a two years' sojourn in Europe, where they visited Belgium, Germany, Austria, Italy and the Balkans. Mr. Cole was formerly State Librarian of New Jersey and is one of the best known of our American bibliographers, his reputation extending even into Europe. During his sojourn abroad Mr. Cole collected a wealth of valuable information concerning the countries visited, and he returns with some excellent views taken during his travels in the countries mentioned. Mrs. Cole, while abroad, was engaged in literary work, principally in translations from Dutch and Belgian authors.

Mr. Cole has generously consented to give an illustrated talk at 8 o'clock on Wednesday night at the Hollywood Public Library. No admission fee will be charged, and the occasion will be open to the public. If a sufficient degree of interest is displayed Mr. Cole may give a series of similar talks at the same place during the next few months.

Horses for the War.

[Boston News Bureau:] Profits of $650,000 were realized on one consignment of 10,000 horses recently shipped to Europe for army purposes. The profit per head for purchasing and rounding up the animals was $15. The contract for delivering the horses at their European destination called for the payment of $100 per head, but actual delivery was effected, including ocean transportation, at a cost of $50 a head. This contract, therefore, netted its holder $500,000, which, in conjunction with the purchaser's commission, showed a total profit of $650,000, and was made by two persons who engineered the trade.

FACING DEATH IN A CONDUIT.

Imprisoned by Litter that Closes Manholes.

One Tells of Terrible Race that Wins Him Life.

Like the journey under Paris of Jean Valjean, was the recent experience of a party of men in one of the conduits of the Southern California Edison Company.

At the Lytle Creek hydraulic station of this company, high up in the San Bernardino Mountains, the water is conveyed for a distance of five miles in an underground thirty-six-inch cement conduit, which skirts precipices, siphons across canyons, tunnels under mountain peaks, and finally makes an almost sheer drop down the mountainside to the big turbines in the station.

Despite appliances and greatest care, trash accumulated in the conduit to such an extent that it recently interfered noticeably with the flow of water to the wheels. There was no telling where the obstruction was without sending somebody through the conduit to find it, and as nobody was anxious to essay the undertaking, six men agreed, "I'll go through if you will." The six men are Messrs. Witte, Lewis, Soderburg, Stroup, Hitchings and Luther K. Row, who tells the story.

Manholes had been placed along the line for just such an emergency, but landslides and fallen trees, through a series of years, had completely closed a number of them. Each man equipped himself with a small piece of board, to which was fastened a roller-skate (some had two skates,) a lantern and a hand ax. The plan adopted was for each to enter one of the manholes, and, sitting on his "skatemobile," use his heels either as propellers or as brakes, go through 1000 feet of conduit and come out at the manhole which the other had entered. Mr. Row thus tells his experience during the last stage of his underground journey, when he spent over two hours in the pipe and traveled a mile and a half before reaching an open manhole:

"I had been in three times and everything was going fine. It was simply a matter of going in and riding the skates to the next hole, about two blocks ahead, carrying lantern in one hand and ax in the other. Of course it was dark and as there was three inches of water in the pipe it was pretty wet, also! A fellow couldn't help recalling Jean Valjean in the sewers of Paris; imagining the presence of rats and snakes and other 'varmints;' and withal, couldn't help wondering what the dickens would happen should somebody turn the water into the conduit, or if I should get stuck some way.

"Well, I went in for my fourth trip. Reaching the next manhole, I found the cover down tight. I pounded against it with my ax, but it was solid. My knowledge of the line told me it was under a 'slide.' I went on another 1000 feet and found that one down tight, also. I began to have dreams of what might happen should my lantern go out, or something else unexpected transpire, but figured that it was easier to go one hole forward than two holes back, so I kept plugging. It was only to find the third lid held down by a slide.

"I was beginning to get tired and possibly a trifle nervous, but decided to go one more hole, and—what do you know about it?—that hole was covered tight, too, and me 4000 feet, or the big end of a mile, from the last opening!

"Was that a rush of water I heard? I put my hand to my ear and listened, but decided it was all imagination. It suddenly occurred to me that I hadn't heard of the fellows shouting for a long time, so I shouted; but it was like an effort in an airtight box.

"Suddenly, I became convinced that I really did hear the rush of water, and believe me, it didn't sound good. I was in there more than three-quarters of a mile from the nearest outlet. If the water reached me before I got back to that open manhole I knew it would be all up with yours truly. I confess I felt a flutter in my heart, yet I didn't get panicky. I quickly thought the situation over and had just made up my mind to turn back, when I heard Witte calling from behind me. Now, maybe that didn't sound pleasant! He had discovered my plight and followed in until he could make me hear, and shouted to me to go ahead and wait at the siphon.

"This siphon made an almost straight drop of fifteen feet, crossed the canyon and then rose again something less than fifteen feet. Witte had gone ahead to the siphon, along the trail outside, only to find that the fellow who was charged with opening the blow-off valve to empty the siphon hadn't done it, and it stood full of water. If I had gone ahead unguardedly I surely would have plunged down the steep incline and drowned. The rushing water that I had heard, and which made my heart stand still, was at the moment the blow-off was tardily opened.

"I went ahead as directed and in fifteen minutes came to the siphon, where I sat for about six weeks—so it seemed! My lantern showed signs of going out and it was with greatest difficulty that I kept from falling asleep. It did'nt take me long to figure out that the air was getting bad, so, vigorously shaking myself and blinking my eyes to see if I was really awake, I turned tail and started my 'skatemobile' up the grade toward the faraway open manhole, with an unmistakable feeling that I was escaping from my tomb.

"At that moment a blast of cold air struck me, as it rushed through the siphon. Ah, it was like a draught of cool water on the desert! Then I put on the brakes and heard two of the fellows talking—the sound coming from down in the siphon, but to me it was a sound from heaven. Down there we found the obstruction in the form of pieces of board and a lot of trash. Witte and Lewis, who had entered the conduit nearly half a mile below, came to my rescue from that side, and caught me when I tobogganed down the siphon. We worked the trash across the canyon, up the other side of the siphon by means of a rope, and out at the next manhole, a half-mile away!

"I was in the pipe two and a quarter hours and covered one and one-half miles, but it would be difficult to describe the many sensations I experienced during that brief period. I actually felt I had escaped from my grave, and shall never forget the joyous thrill I experienced as I stuck my head out into the glorious California sunshine. But now I feel glad to have had the unusual experience."

ANNOUNCE MANY CHANGES.

Death of Cumnock Principal Results in Arrangements for Addition of New Instructors to School Staff.

A number of changes in the personnel of the teaching staff of the Cumnock School of Expression are announced for next year. This is due largely to the recent death of Mrs. Addie Murphy Grigg, formerly head of the school.

Miss Martha C. Weaver, at present principal of Cumnock Academy, will be director of both the Academy and the School of Expression. Miss Weaver is an educator of broad personal experience, having been dean of the Illinois Woman's College at Jacksonville, Ill., for a number of years.

Associated with Miss Weaver will be Miss Helen A. Brooks, who has directed the work in literature, English and art at Cumnock for the past three years. Miss Brooks is a graduate student of Wellesley, and was for some time a member of the faculty at Mills College in Oakland.

Perhaps the most noteworthy of the announcements is the one relating to Mr. Reginald Pole, of London, England, who will be associated with the school as director of dramatic art. Mr. Pole is said to be one of the foremost authorities on production and the stage of Great Britain, having been associated with his uncle, William Pole, in many worth-while dramatic experiments of recent date. He is an authority upon the new art methods of the theater which have revolutionized the art of producing within recent years.

Other additions to the faculty will be Mrs. Katherine Wisner McCluskey, of Northwestern University, and Mrs. Glen Behymer.

The principal of the school is to be a woman whose identity has not yet been announced.

HER SKILL PAYS GROWERS RICHLY.

ONLY ORANGE PACKING-HOUSE FOREWOMAN TOPS LIST.

Fruit from Place She Supervises Brings Fancy Prices Through Quality—Girls Have Better Opportunity Beside the Graders than in Offices, She Declares.

The only forewoman of an orange packing house is Miss Agnes Walsh of Covina, in charge of the big establishment of the Covina Heights Growers, incorporated.

Miss Walsh says she thinks this strange, too, as there is no occupation in business life where a woman is better fitted to make good and there is no doubt that she has demonstrated this to be a fact, so far as the Covina Heights house is concerned.

The condition in which the California fruit arrives in the eastern market almost wholly governs the price paid, and whether it shall arrive with a heavy percentage of decay or be reported in marketable condition depends upon the deft hands that wrap and pack. Those who perform this work are girls and women, who pack at from 2 to 4 cents the box as the oranges come rolling through the grading machines. It is distinctly up to the foreman of the house to see that there is a "high pack"—in other words, a box filled and rounded so that when the slats are put on the oranges will not shrink so low in transportation that they will become loose and bruise each other. It is up to the foreman to watch with eagle eye the grading as the golden fruit flows in an endless stream on the automatic carriers. A defective orange may bring the price down on a whole box.

When the Mutual Orange Distributors built a packing house in Covina, the big concern that markets some 6000 cars each year in California laid down an emphatic statement that the foreman of the house should be able to "put up a good pack, a better pack than other houses, a pack that will bring the ranchmen the money." Good foremen are scarce, because the industry absorbs them and keeps them at work. They are never out of a job.

"If you want a woman, I can get you the best one in the State," said one of the directors. And that is how Agnes Walsh left the Riley packing house, where she was head packer, and took charge of the Covina Heights house. The first car of fruit she sent out topped the market in New York City and has never been beaten since.

Last year Miss Walsh supervised the packing of 200 cars of navel and Valencia oranges, and many of the sales "hit the high places" in the New York auction. Last week the growers received $3.60 net for a consignment of De Luxe Valencias from this house.

Miss Agnes Walsh,

Who supervised the packing of 200 cars of choice Covina fruit last year. She says there is a future for women in the orange-packing industry.

"I wish I could make young girls understand that there is a future for them in the fruit-packing business," said Miss Walsh yesterday. "Most girls would rather study stenography and enter an office where they will receive $10 per week than pack oranges where they will earn from $15 to $18. And if a girl keeps her eyes and brain open in a packing-house, she will rise faster than she can in the overcrowded trades of stenography, and for my part, I believe a girl in a packing house is morally in less danger than she is in an office or mercantile house. There is no reason why half of the packing houses in the orange industry should not be in charge of women—in fact, I believe there is every reason why they should be. I believe the growers would get closer supervision of their fruit. Yes, you can call orange packing a profession, if you like. Anyone who believes it is not skilled labor had better study the market and note the low prices received for fruit packed in slip-shod, hit-or-miss houses."

Miss Walsh started in the business in a little packing house in Azusa, and for fifteen years has seldom been absent a day from the rolling graders and the rustle of orange wrappers.

On reaching Chalons, scene of the battle of the Marne, we found Teutonic forces massed along the river within 400 yards of the allies' trenches. I viewed the battle from a point a mile or so away. A light snow was falling and illumination was furnished the scene by the burning houses and dazzling brilliancy of bursting shrapnel. Every ten or twenty minutes this churning of earth and air, this inferno of noise was over, and the red and bleeding parts of men lay on the freshly-turned earth of the trenches that had been literally plowed in by shell fire, while the enemy from their trench were charging on to take possession of the debris. Masses of Germans, striving valiantly to cross the river, were mowed down by thousands by the withering fire of machine guns. Chaotic retreat marked the termination of this encounter while 38,000 bodies carpeted the field and literally bridged the river.

After covering Felix Faure, Elysees, Bar le Duc and other important battlefields, I was compelled by the authorities to leave the lines, and, receiving my passports, entrained for Paris.

Paris is there—a desolate, unseeing Paris, whose long avenues stretch out of sight like bars of songs that are not being sung nor measured by the rhythm of feet. Parks and lawns uncared-for since August; empty hotels with shuttered windows; bicycles, bycycles everywhere, for this is practically the only means of transportation. A few cafes open, of course, but the familiar garcon is no more. He is fighting for his beloved France; his wife, perhaps, is taking his place. Beautiful mansions are filled with wounded. Women are mostly in mourning. For a few francs they can buy the cheap black dresses one sees in the shops at nearly every corner. I was amazed at their composure; it was magnificent. Not stolidly indifferent, but forbearing and patient, gladly sacrificing for their country. But Paris! . . . It seemed to me a ghastly nightmare of Europe's gayest city. A page torn from a priceless book and trodden ruthlessly under foot.

NEW SUPPLY STATION.

Government will Open One Here Shortly to Furnish Fire Fighters with Necessary Equipment.

Beginning with July 1 there will be established in this city a central depot or supply warehouse, for the benefit of the fire fighters in the Angeles, Cleveland and Santa Barbara national forests. The central points will be Los Angeles in the Angeles Forest, Santa Barbara in the forest of that name, and San Diego in the Cleveland National Forest.

This central station will be completely equipped with fire-fighting tools, sufficient for 200 men; camping and cooking outfits, axes, spades, shovels and a score of other impedimenta used in fighting fires in the big woods.

There are already two such stations in California, one at San Francisco, the other covering the northern forests of the State and working out of Sisson.

The establishment of the depot in this city will not do away with similar stations at Pasadena, Uplands and San Bernardino, now used for the protection of the Angeles National Forest.

The depot has not yet been definitely located, but it will be in the vicinity of the Federal Building.

CHANGE ON CHANGE.

PLUMBERS NOW TO PAY LICENSE.

SIXTY DOLLARS A YEAR IS THE FEE FOR THEM ALL.

Ordinance Passed by Council to Give City Control Over Business and Insure Enforcement of Regulations Under Liability of Revocation After Conviction.

Councilman Wheeler's pet plumbing ordinance was passed by the Council yesterday after amendment which reduces the annual license for plumbers from $100 to $60, payable semi-annually. The reduction was made at the request of a delegation of so-called "independent" plumbers who insisted that the ordinance would work a hardship on the "little fellows."

In general, the ordinance provides that every person, firm or corporation that does plumbing work, or offers to do plumbing work, on contract or for hire, must register with the City Clerk and pay the required license. No special examination is required, but the city, according to those favoring the ordinance, will have a definite check on the plumbers because of a provision whereby conviction of violation of the ordinance automatically suspends a plumber's license for thirty days. The license feature is designed as a "protective tariff" for local plumbers to keep outside firms from bidding on local jobs unless they take out a city license.

The old ordinance which required plumbers to take out a building permit before doing work was repealed and another was passed providing for a flat rate of 50 cents for each plumbing permit issued by the Building Department.

The often-passed and much-amended jitbus ordinance was recalled and sent back to the City Attorney for more changes yesterday when the City Clerk called the Council's attention to the fact that when it was last revamped there was no provision as to who shall be responsible for the validity of the indemnity bonds furnished by owners of the busses. The Council decided that inasmuch as the Police Commission has the power to grant licenses to bus drivers, that body should be held responsible that the bonds are "good and sufficient." As amended again the ordinance will be passed for the fourth or fifth time Monday.

The Board of Public Works informed the Council that it will hereafter abide by the order to let no contracts until the money is in sight. The Board added a postscript to its note asking the Council to refrain hereafter from cutting estimates on contract work.

TALLER FIREMEN.
STANDARD IS RAISED.

The physical standard for firemen was raised from 5 feet, 6½ inches, to 5 feet, 7 inches yesterday on recommendation of Chief Eley to the Fire Commission. This addition of one-half inch places the Los Angeles department in line with practically all of the large cities in height requirement for firemen. Chief Eley explained that the old standard for the local department was lowered one-half inch because of the difficulty in getting men enough, but with the two-platoon ordinance in effect, applications will be more numerous and the standard can be raised without hampering the department in getting a full complement. The Fire Commission adopted the change in the form of a resolution which was transmitted to the Civil Service Commission.

Lieut. Leon L. Jadwin of the Fire Department who was discharged by the chief the 2nd inst. for "political activity and conduct unbecoming an officer and prejudicial to the best interests of the department," will stay fired, according to a decision of the Fire Commission, which reviewed his complaint yesterday and affirmed the action of the chief.

ASSERT SEWER UNNECESSARY.

INJUNCTION SUIT AGAINST CITY IS FILED.

Residents in Sunset and Hollywood Boulevard Districts Protest Strongly the Collection of Big Assessments—Natural Wash Declared Sufficient—Back Dating Alleged.

An injunction-suit restraining the city from collecting the assessments for the construction of the storm sewer in the Sunset boulevard and Hollywood boulevard improvement district was filed yesterday by eleven property owners headed by Arthur Letts. It is alleged in the complaint that the work is useless and that it is of no benefit to the property in the district, there being no outlet.

Even if there was an outlet, the complaint holds, the sewer is so tortuous that the current would not flow readily through it. It is further charged that the sewer is remote from the plaintiffs' lands. These lands are high and a natural wash makes a sewer unnecessary. It is contended that the city has no authority to construct sewers without provision for an outlet.

Complaint is also made that the return was dated back nine days prior to the time when it was actually made. This was for the purpose, it is alleged, of making it appear as if the return had been made within thirty days from the date of recording it. When the property owners applied to the City Council for relief, they were denied. The plaintiffs are besides Mr. Letts, Minnie E. Cummings, Arthur E. Cummings, the Laughlin Park Company, Wilbur E. Cummings, Edwin L. Hedderly, Ada B. Perry, Ione Estes Dodd, Marie C. Haenke, James Taylor and Sarah L. Taylor. The contract price for the sewer was $96,990.

NOT SQUARE.
SO YOUTH MAY SUFFER.

Claude Perdue, 18 years old, was not square with Judge Reeve. For breaking a promise he was brought into the Juvenile Court yesterday and was given a preliminary examination on the charge of contributing to the delinquency of Mamie Sweazea, age 16. In default of bond he was committed to the County Jail to await trial.

Miss Sweazea escaped from Juvenile Hall early this month. Claude told the judge he had not seen her and promised to inform the court if he learned of her whereabouts. The probation officers discovered the girl at the home of Claude's sister.

When the case first came before him, Judge Reeve refused to permit Claude to marry this girl on the ground that it did not conduce to good citizenship.

COLBERT ESTATE.
ALL TO THE WIDOW.

In bequeathing his estate of $60,246.31 to his widow, Mary H. Colbert, V. S. Colbert of South Pasadena expressed in his will his faith and confidence that she will manage it for the best interest of their children. Mr. Colbert died at Rochester, Minn., April 22, last. He left cash, real estate and stocks in the Wasco Land Company and the West Coast Land and Development Company.

The children are David V. Colbert of Chicago; Florence C. Packer, of Sioux City; John H. Colbert of San Francisco, and Cora E. Derthick of Sioux City.

Mr. Colbert states that it is not his intention to advise or counsel his wife in the disposition of the estate or limit her in any particular.

IMPORTANT DECISION.
WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT.

The Industrial Accident Commission allowed C. M. Mashburn, 19 years old, $54.60 a month for a specified period for the loss of an arm while in the employ of the California Portland Cement Company. The lad's father, J. C. Mashburn, brought suit against the corporation asking damages for loss of services not only during his son's minority but for many years thereafter.

The suit came before Judge Shenk, who decided yesterday that under the Workman's Compensation Act when an injured employee has received compensation by order of the commission, the employer is relieved from further liability; this includes liability as to the relatives as well as to the employer. The decision is important inasmuch as it appears to be the first along this line handed down by the Superior courts.

Young Mashburn was injured while working on a tower of the corporation's plant under the order of a foreman. He loosened a guy wire which caused the guide pole to topple over and he fell, receiving a fracture of the arm. At the time of the accident he was receiving $3.50 a day.

COURT PARAGRAPHS.
PROCEEDINGS IN BRIEF.

HOLDS STOCK. J. G. Mulholland brought suit against Mrs. Daisy M. Bellows for specific performance in a transaction involving the purchase of 150 shares of stock of the Harbor Gateway Land and Water Company. The contract price was $10 a share. Judge Myers, who tried the action, held yesterday that the agreement was not just and equitable; that the consideration was not adequate, the stock being worth about double the price paid and that under these circumstances Mrs. Bellows could not be compelled in equity to perform the contract. In her answer the defendant set up that Mr. Mulholland was acting as her agent and that he bought the stock for himself. Suit was for $1925.

SUIT AGAINST DOCTOR. Alleging that his boy, Harold Fisher, 11 years old, was treated by Dr. B. H. Korts for double pneumonia when as a matter of fact he was suffering from pleurisy, James Fisher brought suit yesterday against the doctor asking $15,000 damages. It is alleged that Dr. Korts made a wrong diagnosis when he was called in on the case.

CHASM DIVIDES THEM. The matrimonial ship of Robert and Pauline Randall did not sail on a smooth sea, according to the separate maintenance complaint filed yesterday by Mrs. Randall. She says that they were married in March, 1914. The following July her husband left her, returning in March, this year. The reconciliation continued until May 21. A charge of abusing her is also lodged by the wife. She is employed in a Broadway store. Mr. Randall is floorman in a downtown drug store.

HISTORIC RELIC. The first official seal of the Probate Court has been found. It was located yesterday by J. F. Devin, clerk of the Probate Court, while searching in an old vault for a record. Because of its historic value an effort will be made to place it in the Museum of History, Science and Art at Exposition Park. The seal is a bronze disc of the diameter of a half-dollar and was in use before the adoption of the State Constitution of 1879. A weeping willow over a monument is the imprint.

INCORPORATIONS. Motion Picture Directors' Association incorporators, Charles W. Giblyn, Al E. Christie and Edward Dillon, no capital stock; R. H. Gaylord Company, incorporators, R. H. Gaylord, Guy B. Capps and John R. Brunner, capital stock, $50,000, subscribed, $50,000; Electric-Hygienic Water Purifying Company, incorporators, W. O. Grace, W. T. Tupper and J. G. Tupper; capital stock, $25,000; subscribed, $300.

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY DOROTHY B. JOHNSTON.

DELEGATES and artists of the National Biennial of Musical Clubs will be guests of the music section of the Ebell Club, next Wednesday morning, at an opera lecture of Horatio Parker's $10,000 prize American opera "Fairyland", which receives its premiere production in Los Angeles July 1.

Guests of honor for the luncheon which will follow will be Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, Miss Marcella Craft, Mrs. Lulius Eugene Kinney, president of the National Federation of Music, Mrs. Emerson H. Brush, vice-president of the National Federation of Music, Cecil Fanning, Charles Wakefield Cadman and others. The luncheon reservations have far excelled the committee's expectations, and with 100 more added there still is a waiting list of that many more.

Mrs. Harmon Ryus, who is making success as curator of Ebell's music section, fells that in presenting Mrs. Ethel Graham-Lynde as lecturer for the event, a scholarly interpreter well able to cope with the masterpieces of music has been found. Mrs. Graham's ability is the result of long experience on the concert programme as a singer, reader and lecturer. She comes from a family of teachers, her grandfather having been at the head of the law department of the University of Illinois, and her father teacher of harmony and violin, and pupil of Ole Bull.

Paul Eisler, assistant director of the Metropolitan Opera, will give the musical interpretations of the opera, and also accompany the originals or alternates of the "Fairyland" caste who will sing arias. Mrs. Jessie MacDonald Patterson, who will originate the whining woman role, Rosamund, Mrs. Ethel Fitch Muir, alternate of the Myriel role, and Ronald Paul will appear.

The Channel Club.

With clever Mrs. Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith toastmistress, one may well anticipate the sparkling wit which will flow spontaneously at the Channel Club yearly luncheon, to be held at the Rose Tree House in Pasadena next Saturday, June 26.

The toasts are to be unique, and will prove an unusual feature of an afternoon full of surprises. They will be as follows: Mrs. Marian Lamont Davidson, The Channel; Mrs. Gertrude Comstock, The Source; Miss Beulah Wright, The Outlet; Miss Ida Leonard, The Deep Sea; Mrs. Frederick West, Running Streams; Mrs. Chauncey Highbee, Still Waters; Miss Dora Holmes, Tow Paths and Mrs. Alice Hunnewell, The Harbor.

Madam Ludovici, the hostess of the delightful tea house, is planning a banquet for the members of the club.

The Ebell Club.

Mrs. Marguerite Buckler Stevenson will present a musical programme at the Ebell Club tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Stevenson has spent several years abroad, with a residence in Paris, and it was because of the war she came to America. Since her arrival in Los Angeles several months ago, she has not appeared in programme, this being her initial bow.

California artists will exhibit miniatures, augumented by a loan exhibit of old and new miniatures, fine old daguerreotypes and ambrotypes.

On the 28th the much talked of Fete Champetre at Verdugo Park will be held. A special car has been chartered to take those without machines to tse function at 11 o'clock, remaining at the entrance of the park for the return trip.

"The Arrow Maker" will be presented, with the graceful sycamores for a background. Miss Willimena Wilkes is directing the production. Luncheon is to be served in the open, and the entire day gives promise of being one of the most delightful affairs ever planned in the club's history. The Shakespeare section's picnic will occur next Saturday.

Friday Morning Club.

Friday Morning Club is free from debt. The club has paid out $55,550 in the past few years and is now in a flourishing condition, as was shown by the reports made by officers and department chairmen at the club's annual meeting last Friday. The membership has also flourished, with a total of 1432, of which 1294 are active. ment of membership has brought in a decided increase to the treasury, but to Mrs. Russell J. Waters' indomitable business acumen and the co-operation of her officers and chairmen of departments largely lies the excellent status of the club today.

In retiring from the presidency Mrs. Waters pledged loyalty of the 1432 members to her successor, Mrs. Seward Simons, who enters upon her duties next Friday. "Mrs. Simons, who last year gave herself to public affairs, will now have to devote herself to one interest—the club—which I know from experience is all a woman can do," said Mrs. Waters.

In making her report as chairman of public affairs, Mrs. Simons delved into the past election, replying to arguments used against her candidacy as follows:

"To those of you who voted for me, to those who were opposed to me and to the 800 who did not vote, let me say: I know of no contemplated change of policy in the club, no plan contrary to its fine development. It must minister to all interests of women. Stepping from the narrow boundaries of the Public Affairs Committee to the club presidency, I am bound, so far as I am able, to foster all its worthy ambitions, and to this I call you all that we may grow in strength and usefulness."

The name of President Emeritus Mrs. James J. Osgood has been placed by the club on the honor roll of the Caroline M. Severance endowment fund. Roger M. Andrews was luncheon speaker.

Next week the closing meeting of the year will be held, at which time officers will be installed. Miss Willamene Wilkes will put on a pantomime and Andrew Rovoire's "The Little Sheperdess," with the assistance of the Civic Repertory Theater Company.

Woman's City Club.

There is a change in programme for the Woman's City Club tomorrow. Judge Lewis R. Works will talk on "The Making of a Charter," and Meyer L. Lissner on "The New Charter for the City of Los Angeles."

The club has just entered its fifth year, with the brightest of prospects. With Mrs. Edward Rankin Brainerd at the helm as president, and an efficient corps of officers, the club promises to increase in membership and interest, though the latter has existed from its inception. Those who are to assist are: First vice-president, Mrs. Lewis R. Works; second vice-president, Mrs. Frank Garrett; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Clarence Van Graham; directors, Mrs. Frances Noel, Dr. Jessie Russell and Mrs. Force Parker.

The president has appointed the following chairmen of committees: Programme, Mrs. Frank Garrett; Public Affairs, Mrs. Frances Noel; Membership and Reception, Mrs. Force Parker; Publicity, Mrs. Lewis R. Works; Advisory Board, Mrs. E. R. Brainerd.

Rosecrans Study Club.

The Rosecrans Study Club has changed its place of meeting from the Echo Park clubhouse to the auditorium of the Times Building at First and Broadway, and there they will open the fall's work with an old-fashioned dinner dance.

The annual banquet held at Christopher's last Wednesday concluded an interesting year, devoted largely to the study of various countries and customs, with sociability not overlooked. Mrs. J. E. Coleman, who founded the club, is again president. In installing her the retiring president, Mrs. Addie Johnson, expressed her appreciation for harmonious support and turned the reins willingly over. Mrs. Charles S. Sayers, Mrs. W. Barton, Mrs. B. Chilton, Miss Carrie Bryer, Mrs. Edward L. Haff, Mrs. Addie Johnson, Mrs. Daniels, Mrs. S. G. Herseman, Mrs. W. L. Spreen, Mrs. R. J. Murphy, Miss Winifred Rider, Miss Bailey, Miss Constance Hunter, Mrs. Church and Miss Pratt added to the enjoyment of the afternoon by contributing toasts, music and impromptu speeches.

San Pedro Woman's Club.

Officers and chairmen of committees reported their year's achievements at the final session of the Woman's Club of San Pedro last Tuesday. Mrs. R. G. Dupuy gave an interesting and amusing report of the State convention. She pleased the members when she told that on behalf of the club she had placed the name of Rudicinda de Dodson (donor of the clubhouse site) on the Caroline M. Severance endowment honor roll.

Mrs. Charles S. Bateman, the retiring president, presented the following officers for installation: President, Mrs. Florence Schoneman; first vice-president, Mrs. Richard C. Goodspeed; second vice-president, Mrs. S. E. Cressey; recording secretary, Mrs. J. A. Elliott; corresponding secretary, Miss Emma Ries; treasurer, Mrs. E. A. Mills; auditor, Mrs. E. T. Richards; directors, Mrs. C. N. Krog and Mrs. Charles S. Bateman.

Mrs. Schoneman presented Mrs. Bateman with a gold federation pin, the gift of the retiring board and chairman of the standing committees. The new president then appointed her standing committees and briefly outlined the proposed year's work. Mrs. E. H. Bautzer, the retiring vice-president, presented Mrs. Schoneman with an immense bouquet of pink sweet peas on behalf of Mrs. Bateman.

Next Tuesday the incoming board will hold an informal reception for the members taken in during the year, together with their sponsors.

Press Club Picnic.

Members of the Southern California Woman's Press Club enjoyed a delightful picnic Tuesday last at Sycamore Grove. A visit was also made to the Southwest Museum, where Director Hector Alliot talked entertainingly on the exhibits.

The Press Club will have installation of officers at the final session of the year to be held Tuesday afternoon, the 29th, at 1:30 o'clock.

Between the hours of 3 and 5 the club will tender a reception to the women visiting the National Editorial Convention. Mrs. Lavinia Griffin Graham and a competent committee are in charge of arrangements.

Owensmouth Woman's Club.

The final meeting of the Owensmouth Woman's Club will be held with Mrs. E. Morris at Workman ranch next Friday, and will be attended by some out-of-town guests. The committee of music will meet tomorrow with Mrs. M. W. Hull.

Last week's session was well attended, with Mrs. A. C. Brubacher hostess. Their faithfulness and care of the public library was appreciated by sending a note of thanks to Misses Rooxby and Ruth Morris by the members. Miss Ralph was appointed librarian during the summer vacation.

Sons of the Revolution.

The Sons of the Revolution in the State of California, celebrated the Battle of Bunker Hill last Thursday with a luncheon at Hotel Clark, with an attendance of fifty members and guests.

The new publication of the society just received from the printer, was shown to those present for the first time. The book bears upon unpublished lists of Revolutionary soldiers in the South. Each member's ancestors as well, who saw service in the Revolutionary War, are included. The very index contains over 10,000 names.

Los Angeles Sunshine Society.

The Los Angeles branch of the International Sunshine Society will entertain with their closing card party for the season on Tuesday afternoon, June 29, at Goldberg-Bosley's assembly-rooms. Committees in charge are Nelson Black, Sophia Jameson, T. F. Toolen, Myers White, W. M. Royal and A. C. Moore. The incoming officers are hostesses.

Mrs. Sophia Jameson, first vice-president of the Los Angeles Sunshine Society will entertain the officers and chairmen of the standing committees next Tuesday with a luncheon, after which plans of the year's work will be discussed.

Prizes will be awarded to the holders of the highest scores and a Dutch lunch will be served. Mrs. Leona Patten-Cartwright, Past Matron, is in charge of the affair.

The big meeting will bring together men who have played an important part in the upbuilding of the principal cities and communities of the United States and Canada, and will mark another milestone in the progress of an organization that has in the eight years of its existence come to be a power in national affairs.

GROWTH OF ORGANIZATION.

The National Association of Real Estate Exchanges was really formed in 1908 at Chicago, although it was in a sense the outgrowth of a meeting of a number of realty boards in Duluth the year before. The organization has for its purpose the furthering of the interests of the real estate men of the country through the combined influence of many boards and individuals working toward common ends. The association has done much toward establishing the real estate business as a profession on a par with that of the architect, banker, lawyer and doctor. Largely through its influence the shysters and sharks that once infested the business have been almost eliminated.

The association has held conventions at Chicago, Detroit, Minneapolis, Denver, Louisville, Winnipeg and Pittsburgh, the 1914 convention having been held at the last-named city. Last year's meeting was featured by a spirited contest between Seattle and Los Angeles for the privilege of holding the 1915 convention, this city winning hands down.

The officers of the National Association are: Thomas Shallcross, Jr., Philadelphia, president; John E. Kane, Pittsburgh, secretary; Thomas S. Ingersoll, Minneapolis, executive secretary; Byron R. Hastings, Omaha, treasurer; the vice-presidents, ten in number, being Col. Samuel Collyer, Seattle; John J. Dowling, St. Louis; Col. T. M. Wier, Tampa; Robert L. Foust, Knoxville; W. W. Mines, Los Angeles; John L. Weaver, Washington; Val J. Rothschild, St. Paul; A. H. Hanson, Saskatoon, Sask.; George F. Koester, Chicago, and Col. W. P. Socwell, Indianapolis. Nathan William MacChesney of Chicago is general counsel, and Andrew R. McMaster of Montreal, Can., associate counsel for Canada.

The board of managers is composed of five ex-presidents of the association and three others. The former heads of the organization now serving on the board are W. W. Hannan, Detroit; Alexander S. Taylor, Cleveland; S. S. Thorpe, Minneapolis; E. S. Judd, Chicago, and C. L. Simpson, Kansas City. The additional members are Henry Nolte, Duluth; James S. Buchanan, Louisville, and D. P. Cooke, Columbus. The Executive Committee of the association consists of ninety-five members.

ACCEPTABLE TO GOVERNMENT FOR ANNUAL WORK.

Land Office Decides that Possession of Water Rights Constitutes Evidence of Good Faith in Reclamation—Imperial Valley Quarter Section Involved in Case.

A decision by the local Land Office yesterday confirms and upholds previous rulings that the acquisition of water stock is in fulfillment of Government requirements from entrymen under the Desert Land Act.

Laura E. Moore, who filed on 160 acres of land in Imperial Valley, submitted eleven shares of stock in Mutial Water Company No. 8 as her first annual proof of reclamation. William R. Fallis contested her claim on the ground that the proof was insufficient and not in conformity with the law. The decision was for Mrs. Moore.

The contention of Fallis was that the stock purchased by the contestee was of no permanent value for the irrigation of the land that lies within the boundaries of the irrigation district of Imperial Water Company No. 8. It appeared from the proof that the contestee had purchased eleven shares at the rate of $15 each, which stock was used in making the first year's annual proof.

At a meeting of the stockholders of Imperial Water Company No. 8, it was resolved that the least number of shares of stock to be sold by the company to applicants, should be equal to one-fourth the number of acres of land held by such applicant; provided, that in no event less than forty shares be sold to any one having forty acres or more of land; that, when a smaller number of shares are sold than the number of acres held by the purchaser, if the number of shares be less than 160, the purchaser be required to build his own delivery gates and any necessary checks in the company canals and maintain his own ditch.

It was alleged that under this resolution, the contestee should have purchased not less than forty shares of the water stock, but the local land officials held against that contention, declaring that it could not be claimed that the eleven shares were not useful for the purpose intended. It was shown that the contestee was in good faith reclaiming the land to the extent of her stock purchase, but that on account of her financial condition she was unable to buy the full complement of forty shares at $15 a share.

The decision holds that Miss Moore may utilize the eleven shares for the purpose of making her annual proof at this time, but that when she seeks to submit her final proof she must own one share for each acre of irrigable land in her entry.

Best Thing for a Bilious Attack.

"On account of my confinement in the printing office, I have for years been a chronic sufferer from indigestion and liver trouble. A few weeks ago, I had an attack that was so severe than I was not able to go to the case for two days. Failing to get any relief from any other treatment I took three of Chamberlain's Tablets and the next day I felt like a new man," writes H. C. Bailey, editor Carolina News, Chapin, S. C. Hale's was the only Dry Goods or Department Store in Los Angeles sending a buyer to the great Alexander Smith & Sons' auction sale of rugs recently held in New York. Our buyer selected rugs suited to the wants of the trade of Southern California. These rugs come to us at far below the prevailing prices of a few months ago. Since the auction rug prices have been advanced twice, and on account of the great demand for wool, rugs will undoubtedly go much higher. We shipped these rugs via the Panama and saved half the transportation charges by so doing. Sale on this immense purchase of rugs begins Monday and presents rare opportunities to economize in the face of the rising market. Anticipate your future rug wants and buy now. Remember, every rug in our stock is absolutely perfect; we do not handle damaged rugs under any circumstances.

BILLIE BURKE FOR THE MASON.

Burbank Company to Present Big Fun-maker.

Kolb and Dill in "This Way Out," for Morosco.

What Vaudeville Houses are to Offer this Week.

Billie Burke, in her latest and most successful play, "Jerry," will be the attraction at the Mason Operahouse this week, opening tomorrow night.

"Jerry" is an audacious miss, who steals her aunt's lover, a gentleman who has been engaged to said aunt for twenty years.

Miss Burke is said to be prettier than ever, and her histrionic abilities have ripened to match.

"Jerry" promises to be the brightest and most pleasing comedy in which Miss Burke has ever appeared here.

Burbank.

"The Elixir of Youth," the most popular farce ever produced by Manager Oliver Morosco, which ran for nine weeks at the Burbank at the time of its initial production, and which later enjoyed a long run in Chicago, will be this week's offering at the Burbank, opening this afternoon.

In place of Zellah Covington in the big character part, that of the professor who invented the "elixir," Mr. Morosco has secured Frank Bacon, remembered by Los Angeles theatergoers for his interpretation of the druggist in "The Fortune Hunter."

Marjorie Rambeau will play the feminine lead and Grace Travers, Lillian Elliott, Winifred Bryson, Forrest Stanley, Louis Bennison, James K. Applebee, James Corrigan, George Rand and others of the company will have congenial roles.

Morosco.

Kolb and Dill, in their newest and funniest musical comedy, "This Way Out," will be the offering this week at the Morosco, opening tonight.

The popular comedians bring with them a bevy of lovely girls, including the feminine principals, Nana Bryant and Eva Fallon.

"This Way Out" promises to provide a laugh a minute, especially a prize fighting act between Kolb and Dill.

Orpheum.

The Orpheum promises a "bill of headliners" this week, opening with tomorrow's matinee.

Adelaide and Hughes return from a three months' engagement at the Palace Theater, New York. They bring the newest ballroom dances.

Nat M. Wills is a famous vaudeville tramp, who needs no introduction in Los Angeles. He promises an entirely new monologue and song act.

Marie Nordstrom will appear in "Bits of Acting," written by her sister, Frances Nordstrom. In the sketch Miss Nordstrom impersonates leading actresses, and will give us all sorts of histrionic characterizations, from tragedy to comedy.

Others will be Madame Besson in Channing Pollock's little play, "It Doesn't Happen;" Hoey and Lee, in character parodies, and the holdovers, Mr. and Mrs. Carter de Haven, Havemann's trained lions, tigers and leopards, and the four dancing Romanos.

Empress.

Music will predominate in the new Empress bill which opens tomorrow afternoon.

The headliner will be "On the Riviera," a musical comedy tab., said to be brilliantly staged and costumed.

Others on the bill will be the Klein brothers, who appear in a sketch entitled "The German Admirals;" Willie Smith, in a series of song readings; Mlle. Gravetta and Lavondre, in impersonations of great men and women of Europe, and Lawton, the inventive juggler.

Pantages.

Bob Albright, who is apparently trying to beat Tom Kelly's record on the Pantages circuit, headlines the new Pantages bill this week, opening tomorrow. He brings a lot of new popular songs with him.

A second headliner will be Cora Youngblood Corson's bunch of musical beauties.

Others on the bill are Kennedy and Mack, programmed as two "fall guys," who perform in comedy acrobatics; Harry Holden and Lucy Harron, in "The Messenger and the Lady;" Rae Snell in a dancing novelty, with Miss Snell as "maid of the mist;" Charles Wayne and company in a rollicking farce, "Nursing a Husband," and the usual Keystone comedies.

Hippodrome.

Melbourne MacDowell, the noted actor, in a new play, "The Right Man," is the headliner at the "Hip" this week, beginning tomorrow. The play promises to be a sensational and appealing one.

Others on the bill are the Five Dancing Kids; Le Roy and St. Claire, in a song and dance turn; Belding and Snyder, two Los Angeles boys, and Murphy, in his "Fun in a Poolroom;" Eckert and Berg, in an oriental operetta called "Blossom," and Heinie Auerbach, monologist.

Republic.

What promises to be a bright and breezy fun and girl show, and seven feature acts of vaudeville compose the new-policy programme, which opens tomorrow at the Republic Theater.

The "Fritz Fields Fairtime Follies" headlines the bill in "Caught in the Snow," described as a whirlwind of music and frolic, ending with a snowball battle between members of the company and the audience.

The vaudeville bill is headed by the Morton-Jewel Trio, singers, dancers and jugglers. Others are Wakefield Sisters, in a singing and dancing turn; Chief Eagle Wing in sports and pastimes of the Indians; Johnnie Scott in popular ballads; Judith Rausch, soubrette, and Stanley's trained goats.

Bostock's Arena.

An elaborate programme of animal acts is to be presented during the coming week at the Bostock Arena and Jungle. In the zoo, which is open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., Lulu, the baby puma, born at the arena, is now on exhibition daily. The lion cubs, Marshall, Wilson and Bryan, are also on display.

For the benefit of the children, the elephants, "Tweedledum" and "Tweedledee," will make the youngsters on free rides around the enclosure every afternoon. The performance of animals in the arena takes place at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m.

"Mission Play."

There will be a special performance of the "Mission Play" Tuesday night. The Los Angeles Realty Board will entertain the visiting real estate men then. The large number of reservations by other parties made it impossible for the management to give the realty board the desired number of seats at a regular performance.

Another special performance will be given a week from Tuesday night for the Alpha Chi Omega Sorority, which is to hold its national convention here.

The "Mission Play" is now in its sixty-first week and drawing the largest crowds in its history. Three of the actors have still to miss their first performance since it began. They are Harry Haskins, stage director; Frank Staples and Leonard Rowe.

James Kerr McNeillie, whose appointment as general superintendent of the Canadian Government Railways, with headquarters at Moncton, N. B., began railway work in May, 1890, with the Grand Trunk and served as call boy and apprentice at Lindsay until November, 1891, then as apprentice, locomotive fitter and machinist at Point St. Charles. In September, 1896, he entered the service of the Canadian Pacific as clerk in the chief despatcher's office, and subsequently served as chief clerk in the superintendent's office, and as car service agent until March, 1903.

REDISCOVERING "FAIRYLAND."

How the Happy Ending Is Accomplished in the Prize Opera and the American Note Struck More Forcibly.

BY HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK.

WITH THE kind permission of the public I will rediscover "Fairyland," the book by Brian Hooker and the music by Horatio Parker.

When he was christened, they wrote it down in the book Horatio William Parker, and he is said to be one of the greatest technicians in America.

Just because music may be written out of a great knowledge and mastered only by experts is no proof that it will be hard to hear. On the contrary the more wonderful music is in its composition, the easier it is to listen to.

I didn't think of this for myself. Bran Hooker told me so. He has heard the rehearsals and I haven't. He says the music is perfectly simple when you hear it. It would be difficult only if you tried to play it or sing it for yourself. I don't intend trying. The laws are very strict in Alhambra. I have nothing against a community as peaceable as that.

Mr. Hooker is dead in earnest in his assurance that the music is delightful in its ease as far as hearing is concerned. Somehow the impression has gone abroad that only the master of classics would appreciate the opera.

If this were true, how could the directors possibly make a success with a great amateur chorus? Very few of the naturally good voices in the chorus have had much training, yet everyone connected with the big production declares that few choruses of such excellence have ever been heard upon the stage.

In fact, the splendid values of the chorus have been the subject of congratulation on the part of everyone who has had anything to do with the opera. This includes Conductor Alfred Hertz and Marcella Craft, the prima donna. It must indeed be remarkable if these big artists, with all of their fuss and temperament, are perfectly satisfied.

It beats the band how a man can read something two or three times and then fall down on the main point. I did that with "Fairyland." After this I shall try to carry the authors of books I criticize, around with me. Then whenever I am in doubt, I will ask the author what he thinks the book meant. They say that Browning, Tennyson and Ibsen never could tell. Mr. Hooker's beautiful verse often reads like it was fresh from the Tennyson shop, but he does know what he means, and he is willing to admit that sometimes I don't.

You may remember that in offering an analysis of Mr. Hooker's book of "Fairyland," I quarreled with its Americanism because the lovers are killed off in the last act.

This disappointed me exceedingly, because the American idea is always constructive. We have no use for something we can't do anything about. A thing is good if we can use it. We don't stop and look at anything unless it is going to act on us or we can act on it.

Every American asks, "What is there in it?" An American is always willing to start, providing you can show him that he is going to get somewhere.

He is willing to dream a little, providing he can go to work and in six months or so make the dream come true. He does not want any dreams that he cannot put on a working basis.

Some dreams wouldn't believe themselves, but an American can whip them into shape in thirty days if he can get his hands on them. A dream that would look like smoke stuff anywhere else, gets itself solidified into tangibility and goes down as an asset that a bank would loan money on when it gets tangled up with the American brain.

When I first heard about the American opera I said, "Here is where music and story go to work and build a bridge from San Francisco to Oakland, or turn on the water from the Owens aqueduct for Los Angeles."

I was wrong. Music and story did nothing of the sort. They merely turned out a beautiful love story which was American though, as far as it went, but left me in the depths because I read it crooked and thought that the ultimate union of the girl who stood for love and the man who stood for reform was only in the spirit. I was precisely in the mental condition of the little girl who refused to take comfort in her lonely little chamber in the dark merely on the strength that God was with her because she wanted some one with skin on its face.

It is all right. The hero and the heroine are not killed, but are married by a perfectly good legal contract and religious ceremony with the right to live happy ever after.

Yes, the miracle has been accomplished. Somebody has dared to write a grand opera that ends in happiness instead of tragedy. This is American with a vengeance. As I said before, we Americans are not much of a hand at renunciation. We keep all we get and try to get more. We follow the Old World religious ideas in theory, but we give a new twist to all the gospels. We take the word of the ancient and eastern scriptures, but we endow it with the American spirit. It neither means nor does what it says.

Our words are all symbols which are exactly what our actions are not. A scripture that read as America acts would have mighty little resemblance to the one we all profess to follow. If we practice the religion we profess, we certainly do it under a new construction. There are no scriptures that express western conduct. That may be due to the fact that our literature hasn't gone much beyond headlines and epigrams. It may also happen that men live a thing a long time as a race before they try to express it in axioms.

In writing "Fairyland" Mr. Hooker has given it a genuinely American conclusion by placing married love above everything else on this earth and by making the people of this earth the fairies, and its pleasant places the fairyland of all dreamers.

When we were talking about it he said that Auburn, the King, was one of these dream reformers who could not get his ideals down to a practical point, and was greatly disappointed that the people did not instantly recognize him for what he was. There is no use, he said, in trying to lead or help people if you do not also understand them and believe in them instead of waiting to have them exalt you. Rosamond has the dream of love in her heart and she, too, fails to recognize that this is the ideal of the people.

Of course, the people are the fairies, but they do not know it, that is, none of them except Robin Goodfellow, who is half human and half elfin. At the very last the people realize that they are the fairies and that Auburn and Rosamund are truly their fairy Prince and Princess. Then they rush in and save the little novice from being burned by the nuns, overthrow the wicked King and crown their own King, who takes the sweet Rosamund for his bride.

When we were talking about the blessed kingdom of the here and now Mr. Hooker said the heaven of all religions is always being improved upon by the people and that today the idea of humanity is to make present conditions as comfortable and as happy as their growth and ideals would permit. That is why he made his fairyland the same thing as the earth. Certainly this is American enough for anybody, even if it is told in richer poetry than most Americans manage to write.

As I have already intimated, if Fairyland as a book had not been given the setting of an opera Mr. Hooker's audience would have been limited to people who read Galsworthy, Yeats, Masefield, Maeterlinck and Tagore. In the poetry of Hooker I find nothing but the beauty of perfection.

Sir Edgar Speyer, the English baronet who recently resigned his privy councilorship of Great Britain, divested himself of other offices and honors and besought the Prime Minister to revoke his baronetcy because of growing suggestions and charges of disloyalty to British crown, arrived in New York last week aboard the American liner Philadelphia. With Sir Edgar came his wife and family.

FESTIVAL OPENS HERE THIS WEEK.

DELEGATES GATHERING FOR BIG CONVENTION.

Outline of Events that are to be Given Here During Next Two Weeks—"Fairyland" Production to be Crowning Event—Ellis Club Concert Tuesday Evening.

For the next two weeks Los Angeles is to attire herself in robes of regal splendor, musically speaking. She is to receive homage from and entertain devotees of the art from all sections of the country. The long-awaited convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs opens tomorrow. Delegates will arrive from all parts of the United States today, and the number of those who are visiting the city to attend the festival proper, which begins Thursday, and who are taking part in the musical events, has increased to imposing proportions.

If variety will be lacking in the festival there are absolutely no indications of this in the programme of events which has been issued by the local biennial board. The atmosphere promises to be literally filled with melody and harmony, and discussions about music touching nearly every phase of the art.

The first programme of the festival will be devoted to the birth of music in America, as exemplified in the crude Indian melodies and harmonies. Thereafter American music of the present day, comprising works of representative composers in all the various forms, will be given. A number of compositions will have their first hearing; a number also are prize works.

The festival will reach its climax with the presentation July 1 of the opera "Fairyland" by Horatio Parker and Brian Hooker, the cast being drawn mainly from the Metropolitan Operahouse forces and other first-class companies.

The first few days of the convention will be filled with executive sessions. The national board of management will convene at the Hotel Alexandria Monday morning at 10 o'clock and again at 2 in the afternoon. The Credential Committee will meet Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the same place, as will also the board of management. Wednesday again there will be sessions of these bodies. Wins First Place.

Musical circles are very much interested in the fact that a California representative, Mrs. Julia Harris Jack of Fresno, was the successful singer in a contest recently held under the direction of the National Federation of Musical Clubs, held at the Ebell Club House on June 15. The prize offered was the honor of singing at the festival Los Angeles is to hold the week beginning June 24. Mrs. Jack will represent the State on that occasion. She will sing at Trinity Auditorium at this evening's services.

Pupils Recital.

Pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Thilo Becker will give a recital Tuesday evening at Gamut Club Auditorium.

Public School Programme.

One of the most interesting features of the festival will be the programme to be offered next Thursday by the school children. The superiority of the work done in music in the local public schools is generally recognized and therefore a day for its display during the convention was decided on.

In the morning at Gamut Club auditorium papers will be read on various phases of the development of public school music by Mrs. Frances E. Clark, Miss Lucy K. Cole and John H. Francis, Superintendent of Public Schools. The intermediate school chorus will give two numbers and original compositions by High School students will be presented.

MUSIC NOTES.

Margaret Jarman, mezzo-soprano, formerly with the National Grand Opera Company, which appeared here last winter, has just returned to this city from a very successful concert tour of the South. She is residing at No. 252 South Rampart boulevard.

A. Ray Carpenter, who for the past five years has been in Chicago and Paris, has returned to this city. He will conduct a class for teachers and students. Frederick Roat, the vocal teacher, with whom he was associated in Chicago, will spend a few days in Los Angeles in August.

Carl Busch, whose "Minnehaha's Vision" is to be a feature of one of the orchestra programmes of the music festival, received the order of knighthood while in Denmark last year. Mr. Busch will arrive in this city today and will conduct his own compositions.

Eleanor Spencer, a young American pianist, who has won much praise by her artistic work both in this country and in Europe, is visiting Los Angeles. She was engaged three times as soloist with the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra, and was selected to appear under the baton of Nikisch in London, with the Symphony Orchestra during coronation week. In November, 1912, Miss Spencer made her American debut in recital at Carnegie Hall, New York. Her second tour of this country opened last November at Carnegie Hall, New York, as soloist of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, under Josef Stransky. She was subsequently soloist with the Cincinnati, Minneapolis and St. Louis orchestras.

Mme. Marguerite Melville-Liszniewska, pianiste, who is American by birth, but who has won her spurs in the artistic world abroad, will visit this city during the music festival, and will be a guest of Millicent Virden at Tropico. Mme. Melville-Liszienlewska will make her first American tour next season. She has achieved some remarkably brilliant triumphs as a result of her work abroad, having toured Germany, Russia, England, Scandinavia, Switzerland and Holland. She has played with the Berlin Philharmonic and with the Vienna and Queen's Hall orchestras. She is a pupil of the late Dr. Ernest Jedliczka and of Leschetizky.

One of the most interesting events of the programme of the National Federation of Music Clubs convention concerts will be the appearance of Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, noted woman composer. She will play her own concerto for piano and orchestra at the session on the 2½th inst. The Symphony Orchestra, with Adolf Tandler conducting, will assist. Mrs. Beach has played the Concerto in most of the European music centers.

Marcella Craft is now at Los Angeles rehearsing the part of Rosamund, in the Horatio Parker prize opera, "Fairyland," which will have its initial performance at the Clune Auditorium on July 1. Miss Craft has given up all idea of a rest during the summer. She will participate in the Greater Pacific Sangerfest to be given in Los Angeles the end of July. She and Sembach will be the artists at the opening concert, and she will share that position with Mme. Schumann-Heink at the great closing concert. A few days later practically the same artists will participate in the San Francisco Beethoven Festival. After that Miss Craft will proceed north and sing three midsummer concerts. Early in October Miss Craft will commence her concert tour, which will include joint appearances with Amato, Charles W. Clark and Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, respectively.

Winner in contest.

Eva Mylott,

Noted Australian contralto, who will be soloist with the Ellis Club next Tuesday evening.

ADONIS IN BUSINESS.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

Is masculine beauty a curse?

As a keen student of masculine physical charms, I am bound to admit that it is a serious handicap. Verily, verily, I say unto you, it is harder for the handsome man to succeed in business than for that camel to negotiate the eye of that needle.

Beautiful femininity has long assured us that it is well nigh impossible for it to attain success in the professional world, that the male of species insists upon loving them for their beauty and that alone. Which must be quite awkward.

The masculine case is not quite like that, less direct, you understand, but he finds he is invariably up against a marked reluctance among his confreres less fondly favored by nature to give him their business. Not because of any lack of intelligence, so often alas, observed in Adonis, but because he has generally managed to cross their path in private life, raised the odious question of comparison in the eyes of the fair sex.

Especially if he is in the public eye to any extent. As a prominent sportsman, for instance.

Take the embarrassing case of a well-known golf champion. His profession is of the kind that calls for masculine co-operation at every turn. If he would only take to millinery or dressmaking his fortune would be assured. But alas, he has gone in for a profession essentially masculine. And the ladies adore him. Never a husband whose spouse has come remotely within the social circle adorned by Adonis but what remarks upon his handsome person. Hubby admits the obvious truth, but registers a silent vow to take it out on Adonis. For which reason, unless Adonis was born with a gold spoon in his mouth, he invariably dies poor. Suppose Adonis to be engaged in life insurance. If you imagine that any normal husband is going to insure his life or his home or his ships or his plant through Adonis, you are wrong. He simply could not do it. Human nature forbids.

And masculinity is very human. Adonis's struggle to make a living is pathetic. His only chance is to assume antagonism to the sex, pose as a woman hater, shed all his manners in their company, spurn their admiration with forcible rudeness and diplomatically arrange that the wife of the particular husband he wishes to professionally conciliate shall remark audibly, "Detestable creature, Adonis! Handsome, indeed; the great beefy brute! As for manners, they are conspicuous by their absence." Then, if Adonis can strike the psychological moment, there is just the chance that hubby will experience a fine we-men-must-stand-together emotion and the deal may be clinched.

But it's doubtful. For anyone who knows an Adonis at all intimately, cannot help observing that when he has tipped the bellboy his exchequer has reached the limit of its capacity. He always looks as if he would like to offer to carry the glass back for a nickel.

Which, of course, is brutally hard on Adonis. Only if his forbears have had the forethought to provide him with a private fortune can he hope to shine as a financialy substantial person. Then he may possibly reap the reward of beauty and bask in feminine admiration undaunted; otherwise he is forced to evince dislike of the sex and all their wiles, to establish his masculinity.

The professions open to Adonis are pitifully scarce. There is that of matinee idol, of course, but so few Adonises can act. As a professional singer, as a man dressmaker, as an artist or musician, he stands a good chance of success, but who ever saw a handsome male singer? They are always fat and shiny like Caruso. Or a handsome male milliner? They are always smal, irritable, peevish creatures. Or a handsome artist or musician outside of a story book? They are always long-haired, semi-ablutioned and preposterously clad.

The only other thing Adonis can successfully accomplish is a wealthy marriage—and that is a brutally underpaid profession. Your rich wife is the very devil of a taskmaster, if she knows her business, and she generally does.

Altogether the lot of Adonis is a cruel one. Generally he dejectedly marries the homeliest woman he can find and settles down to uninteresting poverty and the production of numerous little Adonises, whom he savagely hopes will take after their mother for their own good. All of us know dozens of cases like that. It is a crying shame, for if ever anyone was deserving of public success it is the rara avis, a handsome man. He ought to be a protege of the nation, accorded a comfortable income by the State, and permitted to make femininity happy by the score instead of miserable by the unit.

No wonder handsome men are so scarce. The sex dreads beauty like a scourge. If nature insists upon wreaking her vengeance upon him, he gallantly strives to make the best of it, to affect satisfaction, to glory in his shame. But he knows, and we know, that he is handicapped beyond his strength.

This antagonism of the masculine sex to the beauteous among them is very real. A beautiful woman can often stand well with her own sex if she isn't an obvious poacher, but the beautiful man has poaching thrust upon him and the more he is admired by the other sex, the more he is disliked by his own. A beautiful woman, even when her own sex withholds affection, can at least rest comfortable in the admiration of the other, and get quite a lot of consolation out of it. The Adonis who resigns himself to the enjoyment of the admiration of the other sex is promptly blasted in business and incurs the enmity of both his own sex in toto and all of the other whom his approval has failed to light upon.

One can readily understand why Adonis invariably marries a plain woman. It is his instinct to do his best by his offspring. He knows he can never leave them a fortune—if he makes a bare living he is lucky—and he doesn't want to see the poor mites handicapped by the curse of masculine beauty.

When a plain man succeeds in being a very devil among the ladies, it doesn't have the same antagonizing effect upon his confreres at all. They are then assured it is sheer intelligence and diplomacy, politics at its cleverest, and lives there a male who does not admire political acumen? But with the handsome man, ah, that can only be his beauty, unattended by brains, and they affect to despise him for that fearsome thing, a handsome lady-killer.

Pity poor Adonis. He is deserving of our deepest sympathy. Yet if you are the wrong sex your sympathy will but imperil his livelihood afresh, unless you disguise it under a cloak of dislike, a cold and chilly disapproval that may decoy masculinity to his succor.

Optic.

Dainty Mary Pickford in "What the Daisy Said," heads the all-comedy bill which opens tomorrow at the Optic Theater. The film gives great opportunity for the fascinating star to show her ability.

"Lost in the Jungle" and "The Close Shave" are two cartoon comedies which are said to reach a high-water mark of laugh production. "Sunny Jim at the Mardi Gras" shows that humorous individual amid the pleasures of Coney Island during a fete. The funny adventures of the Jarr family are pictured in "Jarr and the Beauty Treatment," while "Jones's Hypnotic Eye" is said to be a side-splitter.

Woodley.

"The Darkening Trail," a stirring drama of the Alaskan wilds, will be the feature at Woodley's this week, beginning tomorrow. William S. Hart has the leading role in this western classic, with Enid Markey playing opposite him.

The story is of the love of Yukon Ed for a pretty little unsophisticated girl who wastes her affections on a worthless spendthrift.

The added attraction will be the fifth chapter of "The Goddess."

Superba.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the Superba will offer an all-star Mutual programme as follows: "The Scales of Justice," featuring Clara Williams and Walter Edwards; beautiful Florence la Badie in "The Country Girl;" "Merely a Married Man," a Keystone film with Harry McCoy, and the last edition of the Mutual weekly.

Garrick.

The Garrick is to be closed for one week in order that the postponed improvements in the house may be made.

The Garrick will reopen on June 28 with the stirring film drama, "The Builder of Bridges," a picturization of Kyrle Bellew's famous stage success, by Alfred Sutro. The leading role is taken by C. Aubrey Smith, who is supported by a strong cast including Marie Edith Wells, a charming young actress whose beauty and talent have caused her to have a rapid rise in her profession.

Palace of Pictures.

The struggle between practical politics and political ideals is powerfully portrayed in "For the Commonwealth," the latest of the "Who Pays?" dramas which comes to the Palace of Pictures tomorrow. Charlie Chaplin, in his latest side-splitting comedy, "Work," fills the other part of the programme and offers an ideal contrast to the tenseness of "For the Commonwealth."

It has been several weeks since a new Chaplin comedy has been released and his followers, whose name is legion, are awaiting "Work" with smiles of anticipation. The film is said to contain even more funny situations than his previous Essanay offerings and gives him numerous opportunities for his original mannerisms and laugh-producing abilities.

ART AND ARTISTS.

ANTONY ANDERSON.

When the Sultan Goes to Ispahan.

When the Sultan Shah-Zaman
Goes to the city of Ispahan,
Even before he gets so far
As the place where the clustered palm-trees are,
At the last of the thirty palace-gates,
The flower of the harem, Rose-in-Bloom,
Orders a feast in his favorite room—
Glittering squares of colored ice,
Sweetened with syrup, tinctured with spice,
Creams, and cordials, and sugared dates,
Syrian apples, Othmanee quinces,
Limes, and citrons, and apricots,
And wines that are known to Eastern princes;
And Nubian slaves with smoking pots
Of spiced meats and costliest fish
And all that the curious palate could wish,
Pass in and out of the cedarn doors;
Scattered over mosaic floors
Are anemones, myrtles and violets,
And a musical fountain throws its jets
Of a hundred colors into the air.

At Exposition Park.

With the coming of warmer weather, art activities, at least so far as exhibitions are concerned, are apt to slow their pulses.

With the artists themselves, the makers of art, the case is very different, especially if they happen to be landscape painters. The busiest season of their busy year is just beginning, and they are scattering with the four winds, some to the mountains, some to the sea, some toward the chromatic splendors of the sun-smitten desert.

We whom business keeps in the town, we who are the consumers of art, so to speak, may well fear for the shortening of our delectable rations. Are we to suffer esthetic starvation? Are we to be denied all paint and plaster? But a kind Fate will intervene in our behalf, as she has a habit of doing in humanity's straits, providing at least enough sustenance to tide us over to the period of plenty.

Fate's ablest assistants, in Los Angeles, are stationed at Exposition Park, and though they have been at work for some weeks carting away many of our cherished treasures, they have been equally concerned with the hauling in of new ones of value.

The Alexander Culver collection of American landscapes has just gone, perhaps never to return. This is a distinct loss to us, for among the paintings are a few of the very finest painted by Americans. However, through Mr. Culver's large generosity we have enjoyed them ever since the gallery was opened in Exposition Park—and we must remember that after all they are his, and that he should be permitted a little chance at them himself. And they may come back again. We shall cherish that hope.

The newly-acquired treasures are sufficiently numerous, you will find, to keep you pleased through the summer months. Not a few of them, indeed, you will be loth to part with when the time for relinquishment arrives. For lack of proper wall space in its own cramped quarters the Public Library of Los Angeles has lent to the gallery in Exposition Park its choice collection of Japanese prints, many of which are by the big masters of wood-block design. This admirable collection will shortly be augmented by the fine Sargent collection of several hundred examples. But we will not begin to talk much about the prints till they are in place and can be seen by everybody.

A new painting now in the gallery, and one which you must run out to look at this afternoon, because it will go to the exposition in San Diego in a week or so, is Guy Rose's superbly painted portrait of Miss Lucretia Del Valle as Senora Josefa Yorba, in John McGroarty's famous pageant play. It is unique and striking, a really fine piece of painting. Near it you will find half a dozen of the strong cartoons in color that Allen Tupper True recently made for his decorative panels in the State Capitol of Colorado. They are Indian subjects, treated with admirable breadth, typical scenes in the wild, free lives of the native sons of America. They were exhibited, with many others by True, last year in the Friday Morning Club, but they are well worth further study.

If you have not already seen the forty or fifty monotypes in color that Clark Hobart has been showing for the past two weeks in the gallery, don't let the opportunity slip by. They will not be shown after today, for they, with the Guy Rose portrait, are booked for San Diego. Hobart's monotypes are imaginative and colorful, small squares of cloth-of-gold that are a delight to the eye and the spirit.

Curator Maxwell recently extended the hand of invitation to a number of the best painters of California, north and south, who responded generously with some of their most recent works. William Wendt sent in two of his sonorous California landscapes. A notably fine landscape from the brush of Hanson Puthuff has just arrived. Gardner Symons shipped from New York a regular "prize winner," a large canvas entitled "Across the River" which I consider far superior in every day to the one that has been hanging in the gallery for a year, fine as that is. Unfortunately, it cannot be purchased for Exposition Park, as it has already been spoken for by an eastern gallery.

Two extremely interesting figure studies were contributed by Henrietta M. Shore, "Girl in Green" and "Girl With Cats." Anne Bremmer of San Francisco also responded with two intensely "modern" studies of the female figure. John Hubbard Rich and William V. Cahill will each show a figure, the work of the one being a charming child portrait head, that of the other a delightful presentation of a young girl seated in an arbor enriched with arabesques of sun and shade.

Other pictures of distinguished merit come from John O'Shea, whose classical conception of California, "Arcady Poplars," will be exhibited: from C. P. Townsley, director of the art school in Pasadena; from Henry Varnum Poor, director of art in a northern university; from Helena Dunlap, Maurice Braun, Armin C. Hansen, Duncan Gleason, Granville Redmond, Jack Gage Stark, Louis Kronberg, William Keith (two landscapes lent by Elizabeth Borglum.)

These are but brief outlines, to be filled in and rounded out later, of the good cheer that will be provided for us at Exposition Park in the days of dearth. The downtown galleries may also be depended upon for many things of interest and value. My first paragraph, it would seem, was penned without due consideration of the art resources of Los Angeles.

Pictures from Everywhere.

My caption may sound a trifle too comprehensive, but if the paintings by E. W. Christmas, R.B.A., are not precisely from everywhere, they are at any rate from so many diverse localities that the painter appears to have been in every part of the paintable and attainable world.

He left London just "before the war"—luckily—and went straight to the iridescent lovelinesses and grandeurs of the huge glaciers in Alaska, in whose chill proximity he remained long enough to paint a few notably strong and beautiful pictures in oil and water color. This, I believe, is Mr. Christmas's first trip to America, and he certainly chose a sternly picturesque part of it—as the adventurous Englishman is sure to do in any country. His pictures from Alaska were recently exhibited in San Francisco, and are now to be seen in the Steckel gallery, where they will remain to June 30.

The Alaskan paintings, however, are only a very small part of the collection he has brought with him, which comprises numerous scenes from the frozen North, and from such far-off antipodal places as New Zealand, Australia, England, France and Argentina. A few of the most striking come from the high and almost inaccessible Andes of South America, scenes never before painted by any man. Thirty-two of the pictures done there have been reproduced in full color in W. H. Koebel's recent book of travel, "Argentina Past and Present." No color-printing that has come to my notice was ever more finely executed. It follows the artist's intention with a fine fidelity, attaining to the spirit as well as the letter of his interpretations of mountain grandeurs.

Two pictures by friends of Mr. Christmas are also found in the present exhibition. G. C. H shows a well-painted "Market Place in Bruges" in water color. A small oil from the brush of Hounson Byles, superbly drawn and painted, represents a nude bacchante dancing in a round dais before a group of spectators in some Greek or Roman festival. A yellow sunset sky repeats the gold of the silken scarf the girl is waving in the wind. The action of the figure suggests a beautiful abandon.

One of the most striking of the paintings by Mr. Christmas is a study at Mt. Shasta as seen in the blue luminosity of later afternoon, the tenderness of an afterglow suffusing with delicate pink the whiteness of the peak's crown of snow. Another particularly good picture is "Frederick Sound, Alaska," the quiet water treated with rare discrimination, the sky holding the loveliest blue found on a painter's palette.

"Sunset on Sausilita Bay" a water color; "Along Ocean Beach," a vigorous oil; "Deserted Cottage," in tones of dull pinkish gray; "Mid-Atlantic," painted from the deck of the Olympic in 1913; "An Australian River," "Mt. Rainier"—all these pictures are noteworthy through their power of interpretation or their delicacy of color, or through both.

The paintings already spoken of, with others, will be given further consideration in this column next week.

Marco Zim in San Diego.

Through the month of June the Little Gallery in the exposition at San Diego will be devoted to the works in painting and sculpture by Marco Zim, formerly of Los Angeles, now located in Santa Barbara.

Marco Zim is an artist of various gifts, who expresses himself in many mediums. He has made attractive etchings, though none are shown in the present exhibition. In sculpture he works with freedom and breadth, following in the footsteps of Rodin, from whom he has had the benefit of criticisms and suggestions. Among the sculptures in relief he shows a small portrait of Rodin, as well as a study of Israel Zangwill, and one of Dr. E. L. Hewitt, director of the art and archaeology section of the exposition. There are six other studies in relief. Among the six sculptures in the round appears a portrait bust of Gerald Cassidy, the painter of Indian life.

Zim exhibits nineteen paintings, many of them highly decorative in intention and execution. The titles of some of them are toothsome—"Shimmering Light," "Wonderland," "The Opal Gorge," "Symphony in Silver Grays," "Moon Glint," "Golden Glow" and so on. Unfortunately, I have not seen them, so cannot give any further specific information about them.

The artist is endowed with the modern spirit, and tries to see and record the many beautiful phases of nature in his own way.

ART NOTES.

Catharine Dupont-Joyce, the charming English actress, who has been in America for the past seven months, and who is now visiting in Los Angeles, has been painted and drawn many times by various famous artists because of her oriental type of loveliness, among them being Everett Shinn, Henry Clews, Jr., Prince Troubetsky, Douglas Crane, Victor Hecht, Benali Haggin and Charles Dana Gibson.

H. R. Henry, whose landscapes of Southern California have been showing in Boyar's for the past two weeks, will continue the exhibition for another week in the same gallery.

Louis Hovey Sharp, portrait painter and interpreter of Indian life and desert scenes, will go to Arizona in July to work on some of his favorite subjects.

The Normal School is holding its annual exhibition of the work of the students in the art department.

A Polite Scientist.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer:] One of Sir Douglas's companion on his last Antarctic expedition was a scientist called David. This dialogue, according to Sir Douglas, took place between the two:

"Mawson!"

"Yes."

"Are you busy, Mawson?"

"Yes."

"If you're not too busy, Mawson please?"

"Damned busy."

"Well, Mawson."

"What?"

"If you're not too busy, Mawson, please come and haul me out. I've fallen down a crevasse."

This same David, though a man of high attainments scientifically, was, in other respects, not quite so well educated. Once he showed to several members of the expedition a geological specimen and described it in detail.

"David," said one of his hearers at the end of the disquisition, "that's what I call a most lucid explanation."

"Tain't," snapped David. "It's all right."

A DEBUTANTE'S LETTER.

Los Angeles, June, 18.

Dearest Katherine: What a fine actress you are! I saw Irene Vanbrugh in that "twelve-pound-book" in London, and Ethel Barrymore over here, but you certainly gave every whit as finished a representation and held us interested to the end. You are certainly an artist in more ways than one, Cherie, and one envies you your charming versatility. Painting, acting, golf, and mammahood, you shine at them all and succeed in remaining popular because you bear your honors so gracefully.

The amateur players are certainly becoming a fixed institution that Los Angeles would be the sadder without. Whoever originated the idea is deserving of our gratitude. It was Anne Banning, wasn't it?

As for Norwood Howard, he played the part of that difficult husband so very well, that one almost suspects him of remaining a bachelor for fear he grew like that in real life.

And talking of bachelors, isn't it too sweet for anything, the way that irredeemable unattached one, Y. L. Mott, enthuses over the entertainment of other people's offspring? He is going about with a wounderful scenario in his pocket these days, of that Fourth of July affair at the Los Angeles Country Club for the children. He beams with sublime paternalism as he dilates upon the gorgeous set pieces that have been concocted to stir the imagination—one all about wild Indians, feathers and bows and arrows complete, finds him as buoyantly exhilarated as a gentleman who has just done the links in par for the first time. They are leaving it all to him, for no fond father could be more sympathetically comprehensive on the tastes of the young. He has even ordered the special children's dinner and it speaks volumes for his capability that we have heard no anxious mutterings from careful mammas as yet.

It is going to be a gala occasion, in which the Fulton babies, the Waddell babies, the Cook girlie, the Keller quiverful, both the Bishop families, little Alice Hicks, Ernest and Susannah Bryant, the Garland boys, the Cochrane lambs, the Leeds lone heir, the Cooper kiddies, the Barry darlings, Hamilton Cotton's youthful maiden et al., will all be either guests or hosts of large merry parties. The programme includes clowns (oh joy!) a firework boxing contest, dazzling fountains of light ala the San Francisco exhibition, and a full blown band, to say nothing of tons of suitable refreshment. They are planning to entertain several hundred children on that glad day.

We are off to Coronado on Monday for a week and will take in the Erskine party, which includes a few English nabobs, but we mean to be home in time for the club celebrations, I can tell you.

Is it true that Lucy's engagement trembles on the brink of announcement? Another naval officer! Do you remember when the British gunboat was here about four years ago? Lucy had been nearly engaged to that tall, slim, patrician lieutenant on a visit to England a couple of years before. Something had evidently happened and Lucy was flutterful and demanded a new frock from da[illegible] de- was a peach and evidently [illegible]ddy. It [illegible] satisfied radiant mity to rb sang r seen under necessity of reminding her who he was and looked decidedly troubled. She was the quintessential essence of graceful sweetness. Recollected him after a while, and patronized him deliciously. Quite a pretty little comedy, which obviously satisfied a long-planned hope of Lucy's. I do hope he did not really deserve it.

Have you noticed what a lot of people are giving up their houses lately and going to live in big hotels and apartment houses I'll tell you what it means, cherie—there is an underlying tragedy behind this movement. It usually occurs about this time of year when sons and daughters are busy setting up domiciles of their own. And alas, so many mammas have but one lone offspring! They have usually centered their entire interest in these young people and when the time comes for matrimony, they are left high and dry, in a lonely house, with the chief raison de'tre gone out of their lives. I know of at least half a dozen cases in which the deserted mothers are pitiable objects. Father has so many outside interests, generally including golf, that the loss is not quite so patent to him, but mother feels utterly desolate, and only in rare instances can she hope to wait patiently for a grandchild to adore. Modern girls are so very spry.

So the majority of the couples in these large residential hotels are deserted parents. They have rushed there for company, for a sense of inhabited quarters, for distraction of heart and mind. They dance, they flirt, they play endless bridge, they quarrel and make it up—and they stifle their tears as best they may. If ever I get married I shall make a point of raising a large family—it won't be half as trying as being left childless and desolate at forty.

I hear the Clinton La Montagues are entertaining in great style at San Francisco. You remember they were married last fall. He is the son of Mrs. Charles E. Maude and wears tassels on his golf stockings. They gave a very smart affair at the San Francisco Golf Club last week for Linda, who is engaged to the nice Corbett man. No relation to a famous Jim of that name, although he has a penchant for belligerent athletics.

Helen Crocker is back from New York, too and has brought Margaret La Farge back with her, hence a round of entertaining is about to blossom. They have been teasing the life out of Mr. Crocker because latterly the advertisements of the Crocker safe vaults have burst into poetry of a gay, optimistic nature. Society en bloc decided to aid him in the good work. He has been the recipient of tons of voluntary poetic contributions, many of them brilliantly clever but quite unprintable.

The Little Theater is not to be wasted after all. It is the mode now to hire it for the purposes of a reception when one returns from abroad, when it is good form to read one's "notes" on travel to a respectful company. Rather a bright idea for getting travelogues off one's chest. People listen so much more attentively when they have been well fed.

The Lowe-Boles wedding was the acme of good taste, so simple and well bred. These cavalry lieutenants make stunning bridegrooms, cherie, and Irene is a proud and happy maiden. They have designed a veritable fairyland tour for the honeymoon and won't be home for months.

We are going to have a strenuous time entertaining all the returning honeymooners in the fall. If only the war would kindly desist from further troubling, we ought to have a gorgeous season next winter. They talk of keeping the fairs open until February, and of course, that will enable all the disappointed European nabobs to come after all, if the belligerents permit.

I am afraid that widow's hopes will come to naught. We were shocked to overhear the lordly swain in a descriptive mood yesterday, when he confided that her mouth "exceeded all reasonable requirements."

Well, so long, dear,

Your affectionate BETTY.

THE WEEK.

PARTIES, RECEPTIONS, DINNERS, WEDDINGS AND THE LIKE.

Ere turning to her own summer plans and social gaiety, every hostess in Los Angeles has temporarily suspended her own activities and is entering with avidity into the lavish preparations which are this week to be extended our honored guests, coming with either the Convention of Real Estate Men or the Federation of Musical Clubs, and from every corner of the United States.

The city is en fete. Alluring festivals and pageants and luncheons and balls and receptions without number are to rule.

And the gracious hospitality starts in tomorrow, with an elaborate luncheon at the Los Angeles Country Club at 12:30 o'clock for the ladies who accompany the delegates to the National Realty Association convention, while the men are attending at luncheon at the Alexandria. Mrs. W. M. Garland is in charge, assisted by Mrs. W. W. Mines, and fifty wives of members of the Realty Board are to serve as hostesses. In addition to this, several ladies are to have charge of tables, those to preside including Mrs. Garland, Mrs. Mines, Mrs. C. G. Andrews, Mrs. William H. Akin, Mrs. Roland Bishop, Mrs. Richard Bishop, Mrs. Harold Cook, Mrs. Leo Chandler, Mrs. H. L. Cornish, Mrs. William Irving Hollingsworth, Mrs. Herman Janss, Mrs. Roy King, Mrs. R. I. Rogers, Mrs. R. J. Schweppe, Mrs. Raymond Stephens, Mrs. Walter Story, Mrs. C. C. C. Tatum, Mrs. J. R. H. Wagner, Mrs. Phillip D. Wilson, Mrs. R. A. Rowan and Mrs. E. A. McCarthy.

This initial social feature is to be replete with unusually beautiful decorations—a wealth of summer flowers in riotous coloring heaped into a central mound, from which individual corsages are to be withdrawn. The De Nubila orchestra will play.

The Ladies' Entertainment Committee—those who actually are to attend and contribute to the hospitality—is as follows: Mmes. Charles G. Andrews, Robert Armstrong, William H. Akin, W. H. Booth, Richard Bishop, Thomas C. Bundy, Lawrence B. Burck, R. P. Bishop, H. L. Cornish, H. R. Callender, H. S. Cook, W. Ross Campbell, Theodore Cadwalader, Elmer E. Cole, Leo S. Chandler, F. H. Edwards, Fred W. Forrester, W. M. Garland, Charles D. Goldthwaite, C. S. Holman, W. I. Hollingsworth, Horace G. Hamilton, Herman Janss, Edwin Janss, Roy B. King, Arthur Kinney, C. S. Mann, D. F. McGarry, E. A. McCarthy, W. W. Mines, F. A. Pattee, John R. Powers, W. J. Pearson, R. A. Rowan, Guy M. Rush, R. I. Rogers, R. J. Schweppe, Walter P. Story, C. C. C. Tatum, O. A. Vickrey, J. R. H. Wagner, Phillip D. Wilson, Phillip L. Wilson, Benton Van Nuys, R. H. Arnold and Raymond Stephens.

The next event of social import is that much-talked-of moonlight dancing party and garden fete, when all Chester place and the spacious Edward Lawrence Doheny grounds will be thrown open, as will St. James Park, for the brilliant festivity—a la carnival.

This much anticipated party will be Wednesday evening, and is to be preceded by a number of fashionable dinners, among those to be hosts numbering Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Mines, Mr. and Mrs. Joy Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Erasmus Wilson and numerous other popular society folk.

The visitors are to have a glimpse into our beauties on this midsummer night for sub-tropical foliage, flowering shrubs and beds and trees (for the acacias and Jacarandas are in their beauty just now,) with palms and ferns for a setting, together with the wonderful electrical illumination introducing novel color effects, will produce an Alladin-like scene never to be forgotten. Overhead will be strung myriads of twinkling incandescents. And fitting into the scene will be music—strolling bands of troubadours and orchestras stationed at various points. Refreshments will be served throughout the evening. The attractive parkway will "shine," and the guests will dance merrily until the wee, sma' hours. Proper facilities for handling the guests are being arranged, with checking places for cloaks, etc. Admission will be by card only. The beautiful homes in the park will add to the beauty of the scene. And surely these visitors from afar, especially the East, who are fortunate enough to be present should be convinced that the glorious climate of Southern California is even more delightful in summer than winter.

President Mines of the Realty Board has asked Mrs. William May Garland to head the Reception Committee for that night to be ably assisted by Mrs. Mines and the following patronesses. Mmes. M. J. Connell, F. W. Flint, Jr. Randolph H. Miner, Joseph F. Sartori, Russell McD. Taylor, Harold S. Cook, R. W. Schweppe, Frank Griffith, W. A. Clark, Jr., E. Avery McCarthy, Walter J. Barlow, Granville MacGowan, Rea Smith, Guy Cochran, E. A. Bryant, A. L. Cheney, J. D. Foster, Earl C. Anthony, H. C. Lee, J. Kingsley Macomber, John G. Mott, Godfrey Holterhoff, Edward Lawrence Doheny, H. L. MacNeil, Robert A. Rowan, Lawrence B. Burck, Guy Barham, M. F. Ihmsen, Robert Marsh, Phillip L. Wilson, Walter P. Story, Erasmus Wilson, James H. Adams, Herman Janss, Joy Clark, Artimisia S. Vermilion, Herbert G. Wyley, Carl Leonardt, J. Ross Clark, George J. Denis, Thomas Lee Woolwine, C. Modini Wood, John P. Holabird, Sidney Wailes, Dean Mason, Guy M. Rush, J. R. H. Wagner, George W. King, Margaret Hughes, O. D. Bennett, William W. Johnston and E. P. Clark.

Efforts are being made to secure Miss Ruth St. Denis, exponent of classic, rhythmic dancing, for an exhibition. One worthy feature will be an attractive display of the season's fruits, to be artistically arranged by Arthur A. Dodworth.

Summer garb will reign, just to accentuate the fact that this is a really, truly garden party.

Attractive social features will enter into the Convention of the National Federation of Musical Clubs, as well.

Tomorrow and Tuesday will be devoted largely to board meetings, but Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, Mrs. Harmon Ryus, curator of the Ebell Club's music section, and the club will extend to all delegates and officers, artists and others an invitation to an interpretative lecture on "Fairyland," the $10,000 prize opera which is to have its premiere in this city July 1. Ethel Graham-Lynde will lecture assisted by Paul Eisler at the piano. Mr. Eisler is assistant director of the Metropolitan Opera Company who came with Mr. Hertz to Los Angeles several weeks ago to rehearse the principals of the "Fairyland" cast. Wednesday he will play some of the music of the opera, and also accompany Mrs. Jessie MacDonald Patterson of the original cast, who will sing the aria of Rosemund, the whining woman; and Ethel Fitch Muir, who sings the Myriel role in the alternate cast. Roland Paul, alternate of the Auburn role, will give an aria. Mrs. Lynde is to unfold the symbolism of the work, go into the dramatic action, stage direction, effect and themic analysis and present a mental picture of the work as it will appear. The artists are appearing as a tribute to this brilliant lecturer-musician's ability.

Special guests are to number Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, Miss Marcella Craft, Mrs. Julius Eugene Kinney, president of National Federation of Music; Mrs. Emerson H. Brush, vice-president of National Federation of Music; Cecil Fanning, Charles Wakefield Cadman and others.

The interpretative lecture will be followed by a luncheon at which 200 guests are expected.

On the same evening, Wednesday, an elaborate banquet is to be served at Ebell clubhouse, with the Dominant Club hosts, at 6 o'clock. A distinguished personnel will be seated at the table—officers of the biennial, opera stars and artists who appear on the programme.

A reception at the Alexandria is scheduled for Thursday evening. For this event the 1500 federated musicians in this city are to secure cards of admission from their own secretaries. No formal invitations will be issued.

Saturday, between the hours of 5 and 8, the officers, visiting artists and delegates are to be given a high tea by the Friday Morning Club. President Mrs. Russell J. Waters has appointed Mrs. Edward Rankin Brainerd chairman of arrangements. Autos will be at Trinity Auditorium to convey the honored guests to the affair. Mrs. W. E. Mabee is managing the transportation. The guests will also be returned to Trinity for the Symphony concert that evening.

Ebell Club will hold its reception to the guests from 4 to 6 on the evening of the 30th.

On the afternoon of July 1, from 2 to 5 o'clock, an automobile ride will be extended the visitors, which will cover in an official route the residence district of Los Angeles, Santa Monica and Venice. Gamut Club is the starting point, and each car is to bear an orange-colored banner—the musical biennial's color. Katherine Kimball Forest and Helen Louise Kimball are attending to the sightseeing tour.

A luncheon at the Jonathan Club on July 3 will honor George W. Chadwick. The New England Conservatory Association is giving it.

Any number of charming dinners preceded the affair, Mrs. Albert Sherman Hoyt bringing over a large number of guests from Pasadena. Miss Blanche Cutrer of Memphis, who came from school with Miss Ruth Hoyt to spend much of the summer in the Hoyt home, was the motif for the handsomely appointed party, others being Miss Emily McBride, Miss Barbara Blankenhorn, Miss Louise Up de Graff, Miss Marie Holm, Misses Ruth and Blossom Hoyt, and Messrs. Brainerd, Harbetzelle of New York, Andrew White and Gregory Cuppa. These were in the center of the gayety of the dance that followed.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Coburn Turner gave a dinner with covers for Mr. and Mrs. Norman Macbeth, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Niven and the hosts, and Miss Anita Thomas entertained for her house guest, Miss Harriet Bush of Kalamazoo, Mich., with Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Thomas, Miss Helen Jones and Messrs. Robert Wells, Wills Morris and Livingston Wolfe.

George H. and Hancock Banning, Jr., the sons of the Hancock Bannings, who are so popular with the younger set, had a merry little dinner. Their mother, Mrs. Hancock Banning, is president of the Players, and it is her interest in the organization that largely spells its success. She has lived apart from things social since she retired into mourning, centering her efforts upon the students of the drama and things philanthropic.

Mrs. Samuel Brown Thomas and several friends, and Mr. and Mrs. Fielding J. Stilson were also in the fore with interesting folk. And such a lot of really interesting folks there were! Any number of artists and writers and celebrities in evidence. Among those noticed were Douglas Gerrard, formerly leading man with Grace George and an English actor of note, and Courtenay Foote, who was in the original "Disraeli" cast with George Arliss, playing juvenile lead, but best known by his association with Sir Beerbohm Tree. Mr. Foote, by the way, played opposite Mrs. Fielding J. Stilson's clever sister-in-law, Elsie Leslie. Frank Elliot, also an English actor of Drury Lane fame was there. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mills, both of whom are favorably known in the professional world, Mr. Mills having been leading man for Olga Nethersole and his charming wife, Helen Macbeth, and ever so many others were on hand. Local artists and leading lights in the profession numbered Herr Adolph and Mrs. Tandler, Sigmund Beel, Mme. Esther Pallister, Mrs. Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith and others who really go in for the worth-while in drama and art.

Reverting to the Hoyts, two new arrivals are expected Saturday—the Misses Ingrass of San Francisco and Macnear of Chicago, who are coming for the major part of the summer to be house guests of the Hoyts at their charming Pasadena home. The younger set are a-flutter, for functions without number have been promised by both Pasadena and Los Angeles society folk in their honor. Mrs. Dean Mason, Mrs. Irving E. Ingraham and ever so many others mean to entertain at elaborate parties in the near future for them, and Miss Cutrer of Memphis, who has received no end of attention. She is the grand-daughter of ex-Gov. Clark of Tennessee.

Miss Louise UpdeGraff is giving a luncheon for Miss Cutrer and Misses Ruth and Blossom Hoyt, to be followed by a matinee, this week, and Mrs. John A. Jardine gave a glorious tennis party Friday.

Mrs. Harry C. Turner, with Burnett, Lucia Frances and baby John Stewart, and Mrs. Turner's sister, Miss Theo Burnett, are leaving today for San Francisco, and will sail the 30th inst. for Honolulu on the Wilhelmina. The Sidney Ballous of Washington, D. C., who spent several weeks delightfully in Los Angeles not long ago, have a home in Honolulu, and here the Angelenos will spend July, August and a part of September. They will all return the last of September or early October, the Ballous going direct to the national capital. Mrs. Ballou and Mrs. Turner are sisters.

Dr. Walter Lindley, Miss Dorothy Lindley and Francis Haynes Lindley sail from San Pedro this afternoon for an Alaskan cruise. They plan a month's trip.

Munroes Going North.

Lieut. and Mrs. William Robert Munroe, U.S.N., are leaving the 28th for San Francisco, to spend at least a fortnight. Lieut. Munroe goes to do inspection work in the submarine flotilla, but they are to combine much pleasure from the mission, with exposition festivities galore and social attractions planned for the newlyweds.

The days before their departure are being crowded with functions of an informal nature, Miss Conchita Sepulveda having entertained them at a dinner on Thursday evening, and Miss Emeleen Childs will give a dinner tomorrow night, and Paul Grimms being this rather delightful

Club Luncheon.

A profusion of King Edward sweet peas adorned the table presided over by Mrs. John S. Meyers Friday at her home, No. 1085 West Thirty-fifth street, when she entertained a club of which she is a member at luncheon. Water-color cards adorned with the same blossoms marked covers for twenty. The hostess was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Thomas E. Loynahan.

The Mitchell Dinner.

Preceding the Sunset Yacht Club dance at Hotel Virginia last night, Mrs. Alexander J. Mitchell entertained at dinner in compliment to her interesting and pretty house guest, Miss Margaret Hughes of Denver. Covers were laid for Miss Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Barham, Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Story, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. O'Leary, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Lloyd Jones, Mrs. Bry Keley and Messrs. Tim Brown, Harold Lane and Ward Dawson and the hostess. Commodore Mitchell was called unexpectedly out of town. Red, white and blue adorned the pretty board, with place cards bearing the insignia of the Sunset Yacht Club.

Miss Hughes, who is a prominent society debutante of the Colorado city, is going to San Diego tomororw, returning later for a few days' stay, but is not remaining, as was first expected, for the summer.

On account of her departure many affairs scheduled in her honor were cancelled, and others hurried their preparations and got in a few delightful events the past week.

Mrs. Mitchell gave a bridge luncheon on Thursday for her guests, the board being done in red sweet peas intermingled with gypsophila.

Mrs. Reginald Lloyd Jones also complimented Miss Hughes with a pretty tea at the Alexandria on Thursday afternoon.

Score for Cupid.

Miss Alice L. Schopper and Walter L. Holy, formerly of St. Louis, were married Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Thomas Church, Father Lucy officiating. The altar was decorated with white Shasta daisies and sweet peas. James L. Collins gave the bride away. She wore a gown of white satin trimmed with rose-point lace, and a long veil, and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Robert M. Miller assisted her sister as matron of honor, and she wore a white lace dress trimmed with pink, with a hat to match. Little Louise Collins, in a dainty white frock with a pink sash, carried a basket of rose petals. Miss Anna Stanton and Miss Rita E. Rynearson were bridesmaids. Both were attired in pink silk taffeta with chiffon hats to match and carried pink roses. Anthony Cajahl served Mr. Holy as best man and C. McCracken acted as usher. After the ceremony breakfast was served at the home of Mrs. J. Collins, the bride and groom leaving immediately following for San Francisco. After the 26th Mr. and Mrs. Holy will be home at No. 2807 Fourth avenue.

Webster-Sundin.

The season has hardly seen a prettier wedding or bonnier bride than when on Thursday evening Mrs. Eugene C. Webster gave her daughter, Leila Ione, into the keeping of Dr. P. O. Sundin. The marriage ceremony, which took place at the Webster home, was marked by dignified simplicity, and was witnessed only by immediate relatives and very close friends. Dr. Jesse McKnight of the Wilshire-boulevard Christian Church officiated.

The floral decorations were noticeably pretty and artistic, the color scheme of pink and white being used throughout the rooms by a profusion of Enchantress carnations, intermingled with feathery gypsophila, together with regal gladioli and ferns.

Both the young persons are well known and popular in social circles of the city, Dr. Sundin being a practicing physician and his bride the accomplished daughter of the late Eugene C. Webster, and herself a musician of note. Coupled with this is a charming personality. Both are graduates of the University of Southern California, the marriage being the happy culmination of a romance dating back to school days.

After a brief wedding journey, Dr. and Mrs. Sundin will be at home to their friends at No. 709 Catalina street.

Noted Beauty Coming.

Mrs. Ord Preston, a popular young matron of Washington, with her children, is going to spend the summer in California, with her parents, Gen. and Arthur Murray. Mrs. Preston, e popular Carolyn Murray, was one of the belles of Washington when her father was stationed there, and since her marriage and permanent residence in the national capital has been a leader among the younger married set. She is noted for her beauty.

Farewell to Guest.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Henry Clay King entertained at her home, No. 266 Rampart, at a prettily-appointed tea, which complimented her sister-in-law, Mrs. Zeneus Jones, who left the following day for her home in Chicago, after a pleasant visit here. The rooms were beautified with flowers, pink hydrangeas, gladioli and hollyhocks being artistically arranged in the drawing-room and roses formulated into a clever breakfast-room adornment. Mrs. King was assisted by Mrs. Baker P. Lee and Mrs. J. Patterson Moffett, with Misses Dorothy Trask, Marjorie O'Neil, Enid Lewis and Helen Simpkins serving punch. Invitations were accepted by eighty ladies.

Here and There.

The George J. Birkels have just returned from their country home back of the Laurel Canyon, having returned only Thursday.

Mrs. Paul Richey of Indianapolis is in the city.

Miss Cora Kennie has recently returned from an extensive visit to Vancouver.

Mrs. Harry M. Spinning and son, Howard M., left last Monday to attend the wedding of her niece, Florence J. Morse of Rochester. Before returning they will visit Mrs. Spinning's brother at Pittsburgh and her parents at Salineville, O.

Betrothal Announcement.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Meyer of No. 1540 Fourth avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Fannie, to Albert C. Sternberger of No. 1732 Harvard boulevard. In honor of the betrothal the Meyers will be at home from 2 to 5 o'clock on the afternoon of the 27th inst.

Luncheon at Alexandria.

Mrs. Elizabeth Coakley, who left Friday for Boston, after a decidedly happy visit in Los Angeles, gave a farewell luncheon at the Alexandria on Wednesday, with covers for Mrs. Lester Robinson, Mrs. George H. Rector, Mrs. Thomas Wright, Mrs. Turner Elmer Weatherholt, Mrs. G. Alexander Bobrick, Mrs. George W. Saurret, Mrs. J. Harry Peiper and Mrs. Coakley.

Pink gladioli and gypsophila decked the pretty board.

Mrs. Bobrick Hostess.

A smart function of the social calendar was the bridge luncheon planned in honor of Mrs. Elizabeth Coakley by Mrs. G. Alexander Bobrick on Thursday. Imported lace covered the two tables, where were seated those bidden in farewell to the honoree, each holding a unique central decoration—a cool, limpid pool banked in ferns and surrounded by red sweet-peas, gypsophila and fern fronds into a border, which composed individual corsages. Cards were enjoyed in the drawing-room, which was in Enchantress carnations. At table were Mmes. Elizabeth Coakley, H. H. Rose, W. W. Neuer, George H. Rector, Michael F. Regan, F. H. Nicholas, Robert Brunton, Estelle Larned, Ralph Hickox, Turner Elmer Weatherholt, Thomas Wright, Frank Blinn, Clair S. Tappan, H. Harrington, J. C. Cline, F. M. Pennell, J. H. Pieper, Ralph Deming, P. H. Bresee, George W. Saurret, Ira Chapman, J. Filbert Warfield, Frank Jay, Henry Bell, Ralph Hagan, R. J. Gibson and Lester Robinson.

Farewell Social Event.

With wicker baskets of Enchantress carnations and ferns tied fetchingly in tulle bows for individual favors and a gilded canoe of the same flowers with butterfly bows of the tulle perking on ropes of asparagus fern for an effective centerpiece of the handsome lace-covered board, Mrs. Roy Gradle of La Cresta Court gave a luncheon Thursday as a pretty courtesy to her sister, Miss Laura Gurr of Chicago, who within a fortnight is going to Denver to visit in the Senator Knauss home (Mrs. Knauss being another sister.) Miss Mary Ann Richards, who is returning to her home in Grand Rapids, Mich., the coming week, was also an honored guest. Others at table were Mrs. Charles Canterbury, Miss Ellen Williams, Mrs. George Cherington and Mrs. Alvin Sumner.

For Miss Ballinger.

Miss Perle George contributed a prenuptial china shower to a bride-to-be, Miss Sabra Ballinger, on Saturday, with invitations extended to the Misses Delta Kopp, Mildred Snowden, Camille Moore, Lois Shilder, Lorilla Brentner, Mary Chaffee, Ethelyn Smith, Bertha Bond, Alice Gill, Velma Gist, Florence Scott, Edith Wilkerson, Aleulia Huttenlocker, Miss Pitts, Mrs. Lewis Martin, Mrs. Alfred Wright, Mrs. Elizabeth Jennings and Mrs. Ballinger. The hostess was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Harry B. George, and the Misses Jeannette Doyle and Edna Sallada.

The honoree is to marry Lewis Foley the latter part of the month.

Jolly Masquerade.

The H. J. Rodmans, who have just taken possession of their new home, No. 2355 West Twentieth street, gave a house warming last night in the form of a masquerade "hard-times" party, to which were bidden nearly forty guests. Straw was stacked about, and ludicrous signs directed the merry throng to all sorts of amusing corners. Unmasking did not take place until 10:30 o'clock, and there were surprises a-plenty in the quaint characterizations. The chief amusement was dancing, with a hearty supper to conclude the most delightful evening.

Courtesies Reciprocated.

In compliment to the many friends who have entertained her since returning from the Orient, Mrs. Harriet S. Cole was a hostess on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. H. M. Binford on Van Ness avenue, those included in the personnel numbering Mrs. Binford, Mrs. Percy Clark, Mrs. Mary Strohn, Mrs. Frederick B. West, Mrs. Valentine Peyton, Mrs. William H. Cook, Mrs. Stoddard Jess, Mrs. George Ross, Mrs. A. J. Salisbury, Mrs. S. K. Lindley, Mrs. Edwin S. Summer Furniture for Summer Comfort

COOL, restful summer furniture is just as important in summer as light, airy clothing. Yes, more important, for it is a year-round investment. If you will come to the "California's" Summer Furniture Section you will be amazed at the selections offered to make comfortable the living-room, sunroom, open-air breakfast-room, porch and garden.

Instead of a few simple pieces, the newer summer furniture includes almost everything available in ordinary furniture—even tea wagons, muffin stands and book troughs. Styles that will specially interest you are.

GERMAN REED—Comes in a great variety of practical pieces, is hand-wrought, very pliant, durable and handsome.

VERY EXCLUSIVE—A pleasing variant in summer furniture. The frames are of oak, finished in quiet French Gray or Silver Gray. The seats are of white enameled cane, the backs are of fine reed. Unusually effective with cushions.

CANE PORCH PIECES—Rockers and chairs, with double cane seats; frames and arms of carefully finished natural maple. For comfort, service and real value, we know of nothing better. A large, roomy arm rocker may be had for as little as $5.50.

FIBER ROCKERS—A handsome, brown, serviceable fiber, firmly woven into attractive designs. For in or out door use. Arm rocker, $4.50 up.

Also "Old Hickory" lawn pieces; arm rockers for as little as $2.50—swinging porch and garden couches—and numerous other conveniences.

SOCIETY.

Can, Mrs. S. M. Goddard, Mrs. William T. Miller and Miss Waddilove. The decorations consisted of an effective arrangement of pink flowers, the guests being seated at small tables for luncheon. The place cards bore the monogram of the hostess, with a verse from "Auld Lang Syne" in gold letters. After luncheon auction bridge was played.

Bridge Party Shower.

Honoring Miss Mildred Power, the fiancee of Dr. Edwin Spate, Mrs. T. Dwight Brigden of No. 1119 Grand View avenue entertained yesterday afternoon at auction bridge, followed by a china shower, which was one of the happy affairs of the social calendar. Bronze bowls of gladioli, coreopsis, corn flowers, Shasta daisies and other garden flowers were mingled in decorations, where were scattered the tables for cards, and a delicious luncheon was served. Bridal suggestions were effectively carried out in the menu and confections. Mrs. J. Clyde Power, Mrs. Cecil Gardner, Mrs. Clyde Martin, Mrs. E. R. Yates and Miss Cora Kennie assisted the hostess. Among the out-of-town guests was Mrs. Paul Richey of Indianapolis.

The honoree wore a beautiful frock of light blue taffeta, trimmed in pink rosebuds, and the hostess was in apricot chiffon with iridescent overdress.

The Brigdens returned Thursday from a motoring trip to Pinecrest in the San Bernardino range, coming home expressly for the delightful prenuptial compliment.

Seventeenth Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Meredith entertained a company of guests at the home of their mother, Mrs. Charters of Kensington road, on Wednesday night, upon the occasion of their seventeenth wedding anniversary. Hearts furnished a pleasant diversion, and a collation was served.

Commencement Dance.

The closing event of the graduating week of the Girls' Collegiate School took place on Tuesday evening, when Miss Parsons and Miss Dennen entertained with a large dancing party at Kramer's, in honor of the graduating class.

At noon of the same day the alumnae met at a beautifully-appointed luncheon, served in the gymnasium of the school. Mrs. David Barmore, president of the Alumnae Association, presided, and the toastmistress of the occasion was Miss Helen Switzer.

Visitors for a Time.

At the Country Club.

Wednesday evening's dinner dance at the Los Angeles Country Club brought out society en force, with many dinners being given.

Miss Anita Thomas, the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Thomas, who but recently returned from school, bringing with her a most delightful summer visitor, Miss Harriet Bush, had one of the prettiest dinners of the evening, the table being done in lilies of the valley, Canterbury bells and ferns. In her coterie were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Silent and the latter's sister, Miss Josephine Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Grimm, Miss Amy Busch, Miss Juliette Boileau, Miss Marjorie Ramsey, Miss Helen Jones, Miss Emmeleen Childs, Miss Lucile Ballard, Miss Louise Hunt, and Messrs. Reception to Newly-weds.

A reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Barker, who were married in St. Louis Thursday, June 10, was given Thursday night by Miss Lucile Savage at the home of her father, W. H. Savage, in Ocean Park.

Miss Savage, whose marriage to Dr. Joseph K. Williams will be solemnized in Trinity Methodist Auditorium July 27, planned the affair both as a means of introducing Mr. and Mrs. Barker to her friends in Southern California and of having the bridesmaids and groomsmen for her own wedding become better acquainted.

Assisting Miss Savage was her sister, Miss Ruth Savage, who is to be the maid of honor at the former's wedding, and Mrs. Savage.

Among the guests invited to meet Mr. and Mrs. Barker were Misses Martha Savage, Fannie Mitchell, Bernice Tibbens, Ella Lee Herbert, Gretchen Rider and Helen Hargis, Miss Savage's bridesmaids to be, and Messrs. San Gabriel.

A CHARMING simplicity well suited to the balmy mildness of the tranquil June days has characterized all of the social activities of the week. Many are already planning their annual vacations and now that the schools have closed there will be a general flitting to the mountains and seashore. Among the pleasant events of the week none was more charming than the entertainment offered by Mrs. A. E. Johnston to nineteen of her friends on Tuesday previous to her contemplated departure for the Victor Valley. The house was prettily embellished for the occasion and a delightfully informal afternoon was enjoyed by the congenial coterie of guests who were entertained with informal diversions. Before the departure of the happy gathering the serving of delectable refreshments added an additional note of pleasure to the occasion. Mrs. Johnston has a host of friends in this vicinity who sincerely regret her departure.

The Masonic Home is in a state of delightful anticipation over the departure of the children tomorrow for San Francisco, where they will remain for two weeks visiting the exposition and other points of interest in the northern city. It is expected by several of the little folks that a trip to Decoto will be included in their outing.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Stouffer are entertaining Mrs. Stouffer's mother, Mrs. Elmira Morris of Belknap, Iowa, who will be domiciled at the Stouffer home on Mission drive indefinitely.

A very pleasant affair of the week was the hospitality offered by Mrs. O. J. Chandler, retiring president of the San Gabriel Woman's Club, to her officers on Monday afternoon. In anticipation of the pleasant occasion the house had been prettily embellished and a delightful time was enjoyed by the honorees.

Roses and ferns were used in generous profusion at the home of Mrs. Frank Daner on Thursday afternoon when she entertained at an elaborate dinner arranged as a compliment to Mrs. Bessie Renner of Oakland, who is spending a few weeks in Southern California. Twelve guests were asked to meet Mrs. Renner and the dining-room was exceptionally beautiful in Cecile Brunner roses and maidenhair ferns. Dainty gilt baskets filled with bon bons were used as favors and place cards were of hand-painted kewpies. Concluding luncheon, which was a full course affair, the afternoon was spent in informal diversions and music.

Alhambra.

THE iridescent splendor of the dreamy June days and the enticing beauty of the evenings are adding right royally to the many delightful, although for the most part, informal affairs that have been pleasing the socially inclined during the last fortnight. Chief interest is centered, of course, in the sweet girl graduate, and she has been the recipient of much attention on the part of admiring friends and associates recently. Al fresco affairs are being thoroughly enjoyed, and one delighting a number of distinguished guests was recently given by Mr. and M[illegible] Henry Christeen Warnack at [illegible] Canyon. The affair was [illegible] ment to Peter B. Kyn[illegible] cisco, who has r[illegible] at the expos[illegible] guests i[illegible] les[illegible] [illegible]cle- [illegible]cele- [illegible]rt Edward [illegible]as Gray and C. [illegible]sting Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] their pleasant hospitality [illegible]s. Louise Brunner and Fritz [illegible]ner.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Hall left Sunday for San Francisco, where for several weeks they plan to visit the exposition and renew acquaintance with old friends in the northern city.

A delightful compliment was paid by L. V. Hoff, recently to a number of friends previous to his departure for the East, where he will remain indefinitely. Mr. Hoff was assisted in his arrangements by Messrs. Clyde Champion, Dick Hazelhurst, Wallace Dunbar, Bert Lichty and William Carr. The entertainment took the form of a Hawaiian fete and the young men received their guests in a setting made tropically beautiful by a profusion of tropical plants and quantities of bamboo, which converted the rooms into oriental splendor, softened by the glow of shaded colored lights. Cushions replaced chairs, exquisite Hawaiian music prevailed during the evening for the dancing and singing which was thoroughly enjoyed by the guests who were presented with lei by their hosts on their arrival. After an evening of unusual pleasure had been enjoyed by the young people a delicious supper typical of the enchanted island was served. During the repast the guests were treated to the novel feature of the entertainment, an eruption of a very realistic volcano, which was erected in a corner of one of the rooms.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Phelps entertained on Saturday evening, a congenial corterie of guests, who were bidden to spend the evening at cards.

Many of the socially inclined are looking forward with pleasure to the card party to be given tomorrow night at K. P. Hall by the Rebekahs.

One of the most elaborate of recent parties was that given by Mrs. Karl S. Hovey when she entertained a number of juveniles and their mothers in honor of the birthday of her little daughter, Eloise.

Azusa.

WITH vacation drawing near, many plans for delightful outings are being made by the fortunate ones who are able to hie them to valley, mountain and seashore resorts during the play-time season of the year. These plans have been divided with affairs to the young graduates, who are just now claiming the extreme amount of social attention. On Tuesday evening the senior class entertainment was given, which delighted the favored friends of the blithe young people attending the affair. The High School orchestra gave a number of pleasing selections during the evening; the boy's quartette gave a number of splendid vocal selections, and Miss Mary Netzley and Miss Lola Hummel both gave interesting contributions to the brilliant evening.

The Azusa Embroidery Club, which has been meeting at the homes of the different members of the organization during the season, held its last meeting for the summer Tuesday at the home of Mrs. O. J. Daniels. Cut flowers and greens made the home attractive, and after luncheon the afternoon was spent in the pursuit of artistic needlework, which is the chief accomplishment fostered by the organization.

Accompanied by her daughter and grandson of St. Louis, Mrs. John Krapf of Chicago arrived in California recently, and were guests last week at the home of Mrs. M. M. Wiegand and Mrs. Annie A. Heidner.

One of the prettiest of recent social affairs was the dinner given by Mrs. O. J. Berner as a compliment to her aunt, Mrs. William Gebb, who is at present her guest.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Salisbury of Kansas City, who are in California enjoying an extensive honeymoon trip, are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gauldin.

A delightful entertainment was that offered the members of Verbena Circle at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Randall on Pasadena avenue last Thursday evening. The guests enjoyed a evening given over to music and informal amusements, and after a merry social hour were regaled with delicious refreshments offered by the hostess of the occasion's pleasantry.

The annual flower mission social, given under the auspices of the local branch of the W.C.T.U., was one of the notably charming affairs of the week. The beautiful home of Mrs. H. L. Ward, on the Foothill boulevard, and the verdant outdoor setting of the spacious grounds made a wonderful setting for the floral pageant that was presented by Queen Sara Anderson and retinue. Queen Sara was assisted by Miss Margaret Martin, Miss June Martin, Robert Muckes, Delmar Wright, Glenn Manning, Carlton Wright, Tommie Smith, Clarence Ward and Lorne Ward.

Graham.

AT the home of Miss Lola Wood in Juniper street Wednesday evening, gathered the members of a social club crying out for a suitable nom de plume. The guests are always so occupied with pleasure-seeking, at their tri-monthly meetings, that the real thoughtful consideration required to choose a desirable name has been overlooked. This delightful affair was followed by the serving of dainty refreshments, which carried out the color motif—yellow and white—of Shasta daisies, with ten covers marked by gold-edged placecards for Mr. and Mrs. George Wood, Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McClelland, Miss Dorothy Choate, Miss Lola Wood, Ed Choate and Fred Spradling.

Flowers and ferns found a component part of the delightful affair, with the eighth grade pupils presiding at the punch bowls, dispensing refreshment and good cheer.

Compton.

THE most important event of the year, from the social standpoint, of the Compton Union High School, is the annual banquet given by the junior class for the seniors, and each year's function is marked by a friendly but earnest effort to outdo in brilliance that of the year preceding. Given this year in the Pathfinder Clubhouse, the affair set new marks in its picturesque elaboration of detail. An immense number of white carnations and ferns were used in the decorations, with painstaking effort devoted to harmonizing effects in the use of the class colors. Characterized by an elegant simplicity in their appointments, the six banquet tables seated seventy-five, with covers marked by gold-lettered place cards. The five-course menu—soup, salad, turkey and accessories, brick ice cream in the class colors of green and white, and coffee, was followed by speeches complimentary to the seniors. A cleverly-arranged series of games and short literary and musical programme filled the remaining hours. Glimpses of the future were caught in the shadow pictures given by the hosts for their guests—a novel way of entertaining that afforded much amusement. Guests present were Miss Glenn Ayers, Miss E. Dorsett, Miss C. Schildwachter, Miss Eleanor Ahlstrom, Miss Nellie Bland, Miss Gladys Cottrell, Miss Karin Fredericks, Miss Clara Green, Miss Anna Legg, Miss Olive Lee, Miss Margaret Osler, Miss Ella Riese, Harry Hamilton, Francis Lee, Harold Miner, Stanley Marble and Ira Priddy. L. Gallup of Los Angeles, H. J. Kent, and the hostesses.

One of the most delightfully informal luncheons of the week was given Monday in compliment to the hostess' birthday at the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Elliott in Acacia street, when Mrs. Elliott entertained the B.C.C. Club. Lee Shepard, Mrs. J. B. Norton, Miss Marjorie Morrison and Miss Lillian Morrison. A guessing contest of familiar advertisements followed the dessert, which kept the guests at the table until late in the afternoon. Mrs. H. T. Dunning was awarded the first prize, consisting of a shoulder bouquet of forget-me-nots and small pink roses tied with streamers and loops of black velvet baby ribbon, dotted with the artificial flowers. A large white cake adorned with red candles twinkling merrily throughout the meal centered the dining table Sunday when Mrs. Mark McConaha entertained for her sister, Mrs. Roy McConaha, whose birthday anniversary occasioned the event. Resner was awarded second, and the consolation went to Mrs. C. F. Doran. First gentleman's prize was won by J. L. DuBois and V. R. Franklin carried off the second. Kayser's Silk Gloves

Although she wears imported gowns and hats, for years she has preferred the American silk glove

Double tips on silk gloves were introduced not so very long ago, yet today they are so generally used that few people remember that they were originated by Julius Kayser & Co.

In fact, American improvements in silk gloves are now considered so important that foreign manufacturers concede that they cannot compete with the American silk glove.

Of the millions of silk gloves American women wear, Julius Kayser & Co. supply more than all other manufacturers combined. Experience has proved the Kayser Glove to be the best silk glove made, yet it costs no more than the ordinary kind.

Two clasp Kayser Silk Gloves are always 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 and up; twelve and sixteen button lengths are always 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and up. The name "Kayser" is in the hem and with each pair is a guarantee ticket that the tips will outwear the gloves.

MISS ENOLA SHERWOOD was hostess on Thursday to Miss Leila Chaffee of Long Beach and in the afternoon they were both most agreeably surprised by the arrival of a large number of girl friends, who complimented Miss Sherwood with a miscellaneous shower of gifts. Miss Sherwood is to become a bride on June 22 and has had frequent pre-nuptial courtesies during the last few weeks. The surprise was complete on this occasion and in addition to the pretty gifts, delicious refreshments were taken by the guests, rounding out an afternoon of enjoyment.

Miss Anna Nimmo was the house guest of Miss Carrie Kimbois on last Saturday and in her honor a number of girls from Santa Ana were invited to spend the day at the Kimbois home. Miss Helen Hoffman, Miss Cammie Mitchell, Miss Hazel Chapman and Miss Carol Van Cleave were the young women who enjoyed the hospitality of Miss Kimbois. The day was most delightfully spent, an elaborate dinner being served before the return of the young women in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. U. Herner and daughter, Mrs. Jacobs, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Brown and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Hayes and family recently enjoyed a most delightful motor trip, which included stops at a magnificent cherry orchard in the vicinity of Redlands, the city of Redlands and Riverside and the summit of Mt. Rubidoux. The party, while at Redlands, called on the Rev. Mr. Ashley, former pastor of the Methodist Church at Garden Grove. A splendid picnic dinner abounding in delicacies of all sorts was enjoyed during the outing, the party returning home late Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Harper, Miss Mina Harper and Mark Harper, Mr. and Mrs. George Rolfe and C. A. Reeks returned Saturday from a glorious motor trip of a month, the party having left Garden Grove on May 8 for a tour of Northern California and a visit to the Panama-Pacific Exposition. They visited friends and relatives as well while on their tour and made the going trip by the inland route and the returning trip on the Coast road. They particularly enjoyed calling on the Herrons, Mrs. Knight and Mrs. Mabel Hardesty, formerly of Garden Grove, but now of Modesto.

After an afternoon of merry chat, indulged in as the ladies busied themselves with pretty pieces of fancy work, the ladies were invited to the dining-room where a delicious little spread was enjoyed.

One of the most enjoyable reunions of the congenial Tustin Twelve was held at the home of Mrs. J. S. House, on last Tuesday afternoon. The rooms had been handsomely decorated with Shasta daisies and greenery in honor of the gathering of the ladies and in the midst of the pretty environment the ladies spent a charming afternoon in conversation and fancy work. Music is always a feature of the Tustin Twelve meetings and Mrs. Charles Johnson entertained the company with a number of vocal selections. Delicate sandwiches, pickles, fruit salad, homemade cake and punch constituted the appetizing refreshments served by Mrs. House.

IN A BRIDAL bower fashioned of fern, pepper sprays and Shasta daisies, surmounted by an airy Cupid around whom centered narrow pink ribbons strung with tiny pink hearts, the nuptial vows of Miss Edith Helen Potts and Leon Horace Wentworth were plighted Tuesday at high noon with impressive ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Potts. Mrs. Fay Frink, a cousin of the bride, from Los Angeles, played the wedding music as the bridal party took their places before the officiating clergyman, Rev. R. M. Davis, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. The attendants were Miss Ethel Eberhardt, who wore a fetching gown of nile green satin and shadow lace, and Dr. A. J. Jones, a University of Vermont friend of the groom, both of Los Angeles. White lace cloth over white messaline with overdrape of oriental lace fashioned the lovely wedding frock of the bride. Her flowers were white carnations and fern, those of the bridesmaid, pink carnations and fern. Following the service a reception was held and an elaborate wedding luncheon served. Later in the afternoon the happy pair left for San Diego, from whence they will proceed to Heber, where Mr. Wentworth is temporarily located. Among the guests witnessing the nuptials were Mrs. J. A. Gunsolus, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Everest, Mrs. M. Stuart, Mrs. Fay Frink, Miss Ethel Eberhardt, Miss Roberta Easton and Dr. A. J. Jones, Los Angeles; Mayor and Mrs. W. B. Culrose, Supervisor and Mrs. R. R. Riley and daughter, Miss Thelma, Rev. and Mrs. R. M. Davis, Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Dockham, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. M. Q. Brunton, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Potts, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Potts and son, and the Misses Marion Lantz and Lenna King.

Another wedding, much more quietly solemnized, but of wide interest, was that of Wednesday, when Miss Lura Sawyer of El Centro became the bride of Liston Oak, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ora Oak of this city. For a short time the couple are with the groom's parents here, but are to later go up into Oregon for residence. The bride has been teaching school at El Centro.

On Sunday Miss Mable Lytle and John L. Dexter, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Dexter of San Bernardino, plighted their troth at a simple little home wedding at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Lytle, on Grand Terrace. A honeymoon is being spent at Strawberry Peak.

The thirty-fourth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McDonald was made the occasion for a happy courtesy to be extended the couple Tuesday evening by a large delegation of members of the Eastern Star. The honor was a complete surprise, and after a merry time with games and music, dainty refreshments were served. Mrs. McDonald was still further surprised with the gift of a beautiful Boston palm.

Hospitality of a very delightful nature was dispensed Thursday by Mrs. T. E. Moon at her attractive home on Grand Terrace, the occasion being the all-day entertainment of members of the W.C.T.U. and a number of visitors. At noontime a bounteous luncheon was served in cafeteria style, and later in the afternoon there were refreshments of ice cream and cake, following a programme of interest. A special guest was Mrs. F. Joris, the county president.

Downey.

THE Alumni Association of the Downey High School gathered at the High School auditorium for their regular annual reception and welcome to the new class of 1915. The president, Miss Alice Williamson, presided over the meeting.

Miss Elsie Webber delivered the address of welcome to the 1915 class, which was gracefully responded to by Miss Jeune Hull. Miss Faith Snyder delighted the party by singing "I Hear You Calling Me." The election of officers resulted in choosing the following: Myron Mount, president; Miss Jeune Hull, vice-president; Miss Gladys Standles, secretary and treasurer. Cake and punch were served, and a pleasant social time followed.

The local chapter of the Eastern Star visited Norwalk chapter Tuesday evening on invitation. The delightful evening was completed with delicious refreshments. Seventy-five couples of visitors and members formed in line in the spacious hall and marched to piano music into the banquet-room. Those present from Downey were Mmes. Mary Bartels, A. G. Haygood, D. E. Hull, Toy Gibson, Antinette Houghton, Miss Bartels, Mr. and Mrs. John Rudd, Mr. W. J. Maine, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Booth.

MRS. F. V. TRUITT and Mrs. L. W. Hemphill entertained with a charming miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Truitt on Friday evening, the affair being complimentary to Miss Lenore Rose, who is one of the attractive June brides-to-be. Miss Rose is affianced to M. M. Fishback, a prominent educator of Southern California. Flowers and greenery were used in the very beautiful decorations of the house and table, and novel ideas of entertainment made the event an out-of-the-ordinary one. The bestowal of many valuable gifts on the guest of honor was a particularly interesting feature of the evening. At the prettily appointed supper, served at a late hour, June 30 was formally announced as the date of the approaching wedding.

The Wednesday Afternoon Embroidery Club held one of its most delightful gatherings at the home of Mrs. Harry Winslow in Nutwood place. The club women were delighted to welcome three former members, Miss Mabel Reeves, Mrs. Hopper and Miss Iva Reeves. The afternoon was passed as usual with interesting conversation and fancywork, and at its close a dainty collation was served by the hostess, with her daughter Adeline assisting. The feast was served al fresco, the tables being arranged on the emerald lawn, the snowy covers forming a charming contrast to the masses of flowers used in decoration. Covers were laid for fifteen, and before the conclusion of the "feast of reason and flow of soul" the club accepted an invitation to meet within the next fortnight at the South Batavia home of Mrs. P. W. Ryland.

Shasta daisies were used in profusion to decorate the home of Mrs. Charles Paxton of Anaheim on last Wednesday, when she invited a number of her Orange friends to be guests at an old-fashioned, all-day quilting party. The motive for the affair was the birthday of the hostess, and the anniversary was most enjoyably celebrated. The event of the day was the elaborate mid-day dinner, at which covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Valentine, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. McDaniel, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wachter, Mrs. Ray Valentine, Mrs. W. L. Whiteman, Mrs. A. Fry and Mr. and Mrs. Paxton and family.

Miss Arline Davis, who is here from Riverside on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Evan Davis of East Palmyra street, was complimented on Thursday evening with a happy surprise visit from the members of the Babel Campfire Girls. Mrs. Davis had daintily adorned the house with sweet peas, roses, carnations and ferns prior to the arrival of the "surprised" party. The visitors took with them refreshments and some lovely birthday gifts. An evening of conversation and music was enjoyed by Miss Davis, Miss Margaret Palmer, Miss Ruth Collings, Miss Gladys Bush, Miss Katie Oehlke and Miss Bertha Oehlke.

Pomona.

THE forthcoming marriage of Miss Hazel Sangster and Charles A. Butler, Jr., was the occasion for the Five Hundred party which was given this week by Mrs. Hayden Jones, sister of the groom-elect. The wedding is to occur at the Methodist Church in San Dimas Thursday, July 22. The groom-to-be, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Butler, who reside on East Fifth street in this city, is erecting a Swiss chalet on Fifth street, adjoining the homes of his parents and sister, and it is there that the young couple will begin housekeeping. Mrs. Jones had her home beautifully decorated for the party, at which the engagement was announced. The time was spent in playing games. Refreshments were served at little tables covered with summer blossoms. The guests were Mmes. Harmon Bixby, James Sangster, T. R. Hobbs, Edward Bixby, A. L. Stevens, Mary Goodell and the Misses Agnes McDonald, Agnes Ferry, Ruth Whitsel, Nadine Thomas, Hester Jewell, Gladys Banks, Ruby Hobbs, Clara and Nell Mize, Mildred Hoke, Ethel Groves, Grace Smith, Marie Fordman and Grace Gore.

An all-day picnic in Ganesha Park Monday was the affair that closed the Pomona Women's Club programme for the season. A delicious luncheon was served at noon, after which the initiation of new officers took place. Including members and special guests, the attendance reached fifty. A number of men were in attendance, by special invitation. At the business session one of the special features was the presentation of club spoons to three members, who are Mrs. E. T. Robinson, who was retiring from active to associate membership; Mrs. S. B. Barnes, who has generously given the use of her home for club meetings during the forthcoming year, and Mrs. W. F. True, who recently provided the club members with a most delightful all-day session at her home. A paper by Mrs. F. N. Goodspeed reviewed briefly all of the main events of the year, making entertaining reference to members of the club. Mrs. T. J. Sturm read a child story, entitled "House for Sale." Officers initiated at the business meeting were: Mrs. John Findlay, president; Mrs. E. J. Wood, vice-president; Mrs. F. N. Goodspeed, secretary; Mrs. S. B. Barnes, treasurer. The next meeting of the club will be held October 4.

The members of Mary Milliken Guild of the First Presbyterian Church were delightfully entertained in the garden of the A. M. Lichty home at No. 585 East Holt avenue Monday afternoon. The guild ladies had as their guests the Women's Missionary Society. Mrs. Sidney Boyd acted as chairman of the Reception Committee. Mrs. J. C. Owen headed a special committee in charge of the refreshments. Under the direction of Miss Whyman, an interesting programme was presented. It included a violin solo by Miss Geneve Baker; a reading, entitled "The Third Baby," by Miss Loree Norcross; two songs, entitled "Snow Flakes" and "Three Green Bonnets," by Addie Richmond, followed by selections rendered by the Girls' Glee Club of the High School. More than 100 persons enjoyed the affair.

Sunday, June 27, is the date set for the wedding of Miss Agnes Belle Gray and Lloyd L. Brehaut. The bride-elect, in whose honor quite a number of joyous pre-nuptial events have been given, is a daughter of J. E. Gray, who resides here, and Mr. Brehaut is a son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Brehaut, who reside on West Holt avenue. The engagement of the young couple was announced earlier in the season at a party given by Miss Nellie Weist.

The informal party which was given by the Young People's Christian Endeavor Society of the Pilgrim Congregational Church in the court of the church Wednesday evening was one of the most pleasing of the pre-nuptial entertainments in honor of Miss Mabel Cook and Theodore Rice, who were married Saturday. The evening was spent in playing games. Punch and cookies were served. The company of young people presented the bride-elect with a beautiful set of silver teaspoons. Among those in attendance were the Misses Edith Marshall, Emma Richardson, Eleanor Frater, Clara Deitrich, Anna Oathout, Juanita Case, Florence Case, Martina Case, Ruth Bishop, Lucille Joos, Flora Taylor, Ella Hardin, Jean Wood, Gertrude Hall, Eva St. Clair and Messrs. Maurice St. Clair, George Nichols, Leonard Bishop, Ralph Scoville and Eugene Adams. Mr. Rice and his bride expect to reside on a ranch near Whittier.

Claremont.

THE marriage of Miss Barbara Sanford and Walter Allen took place at the home of the bride's parents in Claremont on Thursday evening, June 17. The wedding was made particularly gay and joyous by the presence of a large number of young college friends, several from the University of California, where the bride was a student for a short time, and from Stanford, where she has many friends, and many from Pomona College, from which she was graduated the day before, and in whose faculty Mr. Allen is a professor of music. Mrs. Allen is a member of the Alpha Phi Sorority and Mr. Allen is a Beta Theta Pi from Beloit and Yale.

The wedding was more closely connected with the events of the happy commencement week just celebrated in the little college town, by the fact that Dr. James A. Blaisdell, president of Pomona College, performed the ceremony in his impressive manner.

The bride wore a white crepe de chine gown with correct train, tulle veil and orange blossoms, and her maid of honor, Miss Marguerite Allen, sister of the groom, wore pale green taffeta. She was further attended by six bridesmaids wearing white gowns and carrying baskets of matilija poppies. The bridesmaids were Misses Louise Keeney, Marjorie Atsatt and Florence Wheeler of Los Angeles, Clarice Spear of Monrovia, Velma Woodworth of San Diego and Margaret Moles of Claremont.

John D. Sanford, the bride's brother, was best man and the ushers were Messrs. I. O. Pecks and W. S. Ament, Mr. Allen's colleagues in Pomona College, and Messrs. Archie Postlethwaite and A. D. Thorburn, classmate and uncle respectively of Miss Sanford.

The lawn enclosed by a wall of green and lighted by yellow-shaded lanterns, made a beautiful setting for the service, in which the double ring ceremony was used, and the father of the bride gave her in marriage.

Signor Valenza of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, a friend of Mr. Allen, played the wedding march and delighted the company with the music of his harp throughout the evening.

Refreshments were served in the house, where a decorative scheme in yellow and white for which matilija poppies furnished the keynote, was gracefully arranged.

Mrs. F. J. Sauber and Mrs. C. S. Woodward presided at the table and Misses Edith Kingman of Claremont, Ruth Boyer of Los Angeles, Vesta Cornell of Long Beach and Katherine Cook of Worcester, Mass., assisted in the entertainment of guests. Six High School girls also assisted in serving—Misses Grace Hamilton, Esther Romick, Mary Lyman, Susie Case, Edyth Ernst and Daisy Ernst.

Among the guests from a distance were Miss Marian Elizabeth Rose of Worcester, Mass., and Mrs. Frederick Jerome Sauber and her daughter, Emily, from New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen left for a two-months' sojourn in the Yosemite. They will be "at home" in Claremont after October 1.

Of equal interest with the many June weddings which are going on, are the June announcements of engagements. One of these came last week, when Miss Margaret Metcalf announced her engagement to Frank Ford of Redlands at a dinner party last Friday evening for a few of her old prep-day school friends. Miss Metcalf was a graduate of Pomona College Preparatory in 1909 and of Pomona College in 1913. For the last year she has been teaching in the Claremont grammar school and will also continue next year, the wedding not taking place for at least a year. The guests at the delightful supper

Diamonds and Honor

IN buying a diamond the average man can, of course, decide whether he likes the cut, color and luster, but beyond this his path is paved with doubt.

The dealer, therefore, owes it to him to have a rigid quality standard that will make his purchase of a diamond as safe as a banking transaction.

Feagans & Co. have just such a standard. Here it is impossible to buy any but perfect diamonds, and, in one-fourth carat or greater, only the noted Wesselton, Jaeger and Blue River grades.

Being diamond specialists, and among the largest users of high-grade gems, Feagans & Co. are able to buy on very close terms, and are willing to share this advantage with the purchaser.

We are always glad to show the newest developments in diamond jewelry.

Redfern Corsets

A Supple Corset

The purpose of the modern corset is to shape, support and not to bind.

The active American woman appreciates freedom in her corsets—but she must not let this desire lead her to extremes. Your figure needs the healthful support of a properly designed corset, and this support is hardly possible without the use of boning.

Redfern Corsets are scientifically designed to support the figure in healthful lines of fashion. With the return to a shaped figure this season these models will be particularly appreciated by women who have worn the lightly boned styles of the past year, because the thin Walohn boning in a Redfern is so flexible and comfortable.

Laced-Back or Laced-Front and which will convey no corset consciousness except the satisfying knowledge that your figure has been made.

Skilled fitters will be pleased to show you the Redfern features. Prices $3.00 to $25.00.

SOCIETY.

Another announcement party was that which Miss Clara Bissell gave Monday evening to announce the engagement of Miss Elva Henry of Upland to Lloyd Lorbeer of Claremont. The affair was also in the nature of a Pomona College 1911 class reunion and this time was also taken to announce the engagement of two of its members. Miss Henry has been a teacher in the Upland grammar school recently and Mr. Lorbeer attended the Union Theological Seminary in New York this last year. The date of the wedding has not yet been set, but it will probably occur in the near future.

Guests of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Roland Valle, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Marsh of Pomona, Misses Jean Walden, Mary Maynard, Elsie Hayes, Bessie Davis, Elva Henry, and Messrs. George Churchill, Ernest Fisher and Lloyd Lorbeer.

Rialto.

THE past week has seen the culmination of several interesting romances. One of the greatest surprise weddings of the season had as principals Miss Mabel Needham and Ben H. Tate. Rev. O. W. Reinius read the service at the M. E. manse in the presence of only a small company of relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Tate left directly after the ceremony for a short trip, including San Diego in their itinerary.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hewitt was the scene of a beautiful wedding Wednesday evening, when the nuptial vows of the second daughter, Miss Mary Eva, and Glenn W. Hinkle of Long Beach, were plighted. The bride and groom advanced to the floral bower while the bride's sister, Miss Bernice Hewitt, sang "Oh, Promise Me," accompanied by Mrs. C. A. Wright, the groom's sister. The ceremony was said before an altar of white rosebuds, arranged in lavish profusion, with dainty ferns. The impressive ring service was used by Rev. Ralph V. Hinkle of Redcliff, Alberta, Can., brother of the groom. The bride wore a creation of white net, richly embroidered, and carried a shower bouquet of roses. The bride's sister, Mrs. Frank Reddinger, a bride of only a few months ago, gowned in her own wedding gown, served as matron of honor, and Mr. Reddinger attended the groom. A wedding collation was served in the dining-room with decorations and appointments in orange and white. Coreopsis and greenery centered the table and canopy garlands of crepe paper were added features of the decorations. After an extended trip to the Atlantic coast, visiting interesting cities and the San Francisco exposition en route, the happy couple will return to Long Beach to make their home, where the groom is employed with the Santa Fe. Out-of-town guests were Mmes. G. W. Hinkle, J. V. Hamilton and daughter, Hazel, of Mendon, Mich.; Mmes. Charles A. Wright, Frank Brumfield and two daughters of Belpra, Kan.; Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Shriver of Lomitas, Cal., and Mrs. M. Page and daughter, Clara, of Los Angeles.

A pleasant affair of the week was the all-day session of the Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, which met with Mrs. G. N. Turner Thursday. A sumptuous dinner was served at noon and the afternoon was spent in a short business session and informal good time.

Those who attended the exercises of the Lincoln Club, held at the public library Monday evening (Flag Day) spent an interesting and profitable evening. A beautiful flag was presented to the Woman's Club of Rialto by the Lincoln Club, for the public library. Excellent music was furnished by the ever-willing Misses Bernice Hewitt and Gladys Rowe. Mrs. F. D. Lockwood, the president of the Woman's Club, in well-chosen words, responded to the presentation by Commander R. C. Hunt. A splendid history of the American flag was given by Judge Lawrence McHugh and many others gave impromptu speeches.

San Bernardino.

SIMPLICITY of appointments marked the ceremony Wednesday which united Dr. Louis Milton Coy and Miss Arline Donaldson, both of this city. Rev. S. G. Lamb of Highland, for years pastor of the Coy family, officiated at the marriage service before a circle of relatives and intimate friends at the home of Mrs. Mary J. Coy at No. 434 Sixth street. An elegant wedding luncheon was served following the pronouncement of the fact that "congratulations were in order," and the happy couple left for Camp Baldy to pass two weeks. They will then go to Los Angeles for a visit with relatives. Among guests at the wedding were Mrs. J. Andrew Thornton of San Diego, and Mrs. Alfred M. Lyon and little daughter, Betty, of Hollywood, Miss Ruth Lamb of Highland, Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Mowbray and Miss Zoe Westland of this city, besides members of the family.

The marriage of Miss Iva Poppett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Poppett of No. 1284 D street and Jesse R. Demaree occurred Tuesday, several weeks ahead of the scheduled date, much to the surprise of relatives and friends, who supposed they would be guests at the ceremony. The wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mullin, friends of the couple, Rev. M. B. Shaw performing the ceremony. The bride and groom are spending the honeymoon in San Diego.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Barrows at No. 544 Victoria avenue Tuesday was the setting for the beautifully-appointed ceremony that joined the hearts and hands of Miss Bertha Augusta Barrows, the daughter of the household, and Elmer Derrill Heap. Rev. M. B. Shaw officiated at the ring service. A delightful wedding breakfast followed the ceremony and the lovers left for Los Angeles and other points for their wedding trip.

Announcements have been received in San Bernardino of the marriage of Victor Eugene Forker, formerly of this city, to Miss Louise Brower, daughter of Mrs. Henry Clay Brower of East Orange, N. J., on June 8. The couple are now on the way to California for a visit with relatives. Mr. Forker is connected with a Newark paper at present, but has been an Associated Press correspondent on the Mexican border.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Webster of No. 1352 F street have announced the engagement of their daughter, Corah Neda, to Roy E. Souther, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Souther, a pioneer family of this city. The wedding will occur early in July.

Miss Josie Marie Snell, whose engagement to Peter J. Bertino was an announcement of this week, became a bride at a pretty service at the church St. Bernardine de Siena Thursday morning, the Very Rev. John Brady officiating. Miss Eleanor Sartor and Thomas Moran supported the bridal couple.

Redlands.

MANY of the social affairs of the week have been at the University of Redlands, in connection with the commencement exercises. Wednesday at noon the annual university dinner was served by the ladies of the First Baptist Church, and there were about 200 present. The tables were beautifully decorated with Shasta daisies and each table was presided over by a hostess and corps of waiters, most of them being university girls. There was a short programme of toasts. It was a most enjoyable affair that closed the season of the school Tuesday night, the annual dean's reception at the fine arts building. Dean and Mrs. V. L. Duke and Dean and Mrs. Charles E. Hubach received the guests, who enjoyed the evening. The university orchestra of fifteen pieces was screened behind the palms of the sunroom. Refreshments were served by the girls of Bekins Hall. The big social event of the week was the Zanja Fiesta on Monday evening. The "bowl" back of the administration building, and bounded by the Zanja, the mountain stream from which the festival gets its name, was used for the entertainment. It was a Dutch affair this year; all the decorations were in blue and white of the old Delft china. The main feature of the evening was the presentation on the rustic stage of the operetta, "Katrina," which was written by Edward Cadoret Hopkins of the piano department. The parts were all well taken, mostly by the music students. The cast was: Katrina, Miss Minnie McQuilkin; Vrow Wilhelmina, Bess Smith; Mynheer Voostenwalbert Vanderburg, Gordon Palmer; Mill Fairy, Louise Ford; piper, Milnor Blowers; piper's wife, Olive Hill. Villagers, Helen Rieder, Ira Thomason, Ora Porter, Vernette Krause, Marie Wisdom, Clinton Campbell, Euphemia Beecher, Oliver Weed. Chorus, Katherine Shank, Aileen Stubbs, Clifford Bland, Gladys Thacker, Rita Covington, Floy Gleason, Ann Reddin, Anna Shamblin, Juliet Knopp, Opal Gregg, Villa Nye, Carolina Black, Elmer Mitchell, Ellwood Bayerle, Russell Powell, Everett Honeycutt, Charles Gillette, Otto Husted, William Geistwelt, Arthur Cocking. The booths were all decorated in blue and white. The vaudeville entertainment was given by Robert Bonnell, Louise Ford, Clinton Campbell and Melnor Blowers.

Four luncheons have been given by the High School girls during the week, their guests being friends and parents. The first was a pink luncheon, the second a green luncheon, the third a lavender and the fourth, golden. The girls who prepared and served the luncheons were Mary Salzer, Mona Bean, Edna Huckaby, Dorothy Pray, Glessner Tolle, Irene Pratt, Harriett Bushnell, Berenice Van Boven, Grace Vandecoe, Margaret Sherman, Gladys West, Lillian Thomason, Renella Browning, Agnes Boggust, Maurita Grasse, Katherine Ott, Hazel Truslow, Mary Timpe, Helen Cruickshank, Lois Keep, Frances Chapman, Cleo Ballard, Arta Bell, Lena Patterson, Rose Stocker, Doyne Stockton, Florence Lloyd, Marienne Cattell, Nellie Hughes, Helen Rice, Helen Nelson, Gay Whittemore, Frances Jennings, Zella Cotter, Rosa Freeland, Hazel Truslow, Christine Sweeney, Irene Chambers, Ethel Bergstrom, Marie Danielson, Myrtle Richardville, Marjorie Reynolds. The guests were Mrs. Dodds, Mrs. Tolle, Mrs. Van Boven, Mrs. Charles Shallenberger, Mrs. B. A. Small, Mrs. E. Bean, Miss Edith Truslow, Miss Mabell Ott, Mrs. Cruickshank, Mrs. Chapman, Mrs. Ballard, Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Ide, Miss Mary Gird, H. G. Clement, Miss Chapman, H. L. Wilson, Dr. W. P. Burke, Miss Eva Benefiel, Mrs. Stockton, Mrs. Freedland, Mrs. W. Truslow and Mrs. W. E. Putnam.

Announcement has been received here of the approaching marriage of Joseph Rubin, a graduate of the High School here, to Miss Juanita Skinner of Chicago. Rubin graduates from Bowdoin College this year and has been appointed an instructor in Morgan Park Academy.

The marriage of Miss Nettie Royce, daughter of George Royce, and James Roberts of El Casco, was solemnized Wednesday evening. They will make their home at El Casco, where the groom owns a ranch.

Santa Paula.

ONE of the prettiest of the season's home weddings was that of Miss Vena Glasscock to Lawrence N. Jones of San Fernando, which took place at the Glasscock home in Eliseo Canyon Saturday at noon. A color scheme of white and green was carried out, the living-room, where the ceremony was performed, being a fragrant bower of bamboo, lemon verbena, sweet peas and ferns. The Rev. R. G. Messias performed the ceremony, which was preceded by the wedding march, played by Miss Francis Tamm of San Fernando. The bride was given away by her father, and was attended by her sister, Miss Beth, as bridesmaid, whose costume was peacock blue taffeta. The bride wore a becoming tailored suit of black. The groom was attended by his brother, Albert Jones of San Fernando. After the ceremony a delicious barbecue dinner was served in the picturesque grounds near the Glasscock home to about forty relatives and intimate friends. The bride and groom will live in Orange, where the groom has citrus interests.

Mrs. F. E. Davis was hostess Thursday evening at a dinner party given in honor of her husband, F. E. Davis, and his brother, George Davis, who have just returned from the East, the affair also being a farewell party for Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Harvey and Mrs. H. S. Harvey, who leave today for the East. Maman Cochet roses and ferns were used in decorating. Covers were laid for ten.

The last meeting of the season of the Current Events Club was held at the home of the president, Mrs. J. W. Bercaw, at which the officers, who have served the club so delightfully during the past year, were unanimously re-elected to their respective posts.

The birthday anniversary of Mrs. Lowry and of her grand-daughter, little Miss Virginia McKevett, and the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. McKevett, was made the occasion of a pleasant dinner party Sunday to a few friends at the McKevett home.

The Wednesday Embroidery Club and the Thursday Auction Bridge Club were delightfully entertained at Sulphur Mountain Springs Wednesday, the hostesses being Mmes. Clara Gries, A. Wilson and A. C. Carey of Los Angeles. Needlework and cards, with a picnic luncheon at noon, were enjoyed in the C. C. Teague cottage, where the hostesses are domiciled during their stay at the springs.

At the close of the lodge meeting of the Royal Neighbors Wednesday evening, an entertainment of magic, readings and music was enjoyed, followed by refreshments of punch and wafers.

As a farewell compliment to her daughters, the Misses Jessie and Reita Balcom, Mrs. Henry Balcom, assisted by Mrs. Henry Young, entertained a number of young ladies with a lawn party Saturday, guessing contests and outdoor games being followed by the serving of refreshments.

Oxnard.

MR. AND MRS. H. W. WITMAN were honor guests at a small but delightful farewell dinner party Wednesday evening, the hostess being Mrs. J. T. Donlon. The affair was one of the many preceding the departure of the Witmans for their new home in Santa Ana.

The twelfth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Pidduck was the occasion of a pleasant gathering of a number of friends at their home Thursday night, the host and hostess being surprised by the merry party, which was planned by several intimate friends.

Mrs. Lillian K. Hope was hostess to a number of friends at a beach card party at Hueneme Beach Saturday. The playing of Five Hundred, the game of the afternoon, was preceded by an enjoyable dinner, served picnic fashion.

As a farewell courtesy to Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Coburn, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Clauson entertained about sixty friends at their Hueneme Beach home Saturday evening. The guests came in character costumes, representing books, and a dainty prize was awarded to Mrs. G. V. Wickersam, as most successful guesser of the books represented. Miss Annie Bagust and Mrs. Daisy Williams assisted Mrs. Clauson.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Fulton entertained a number of friends from the east end of the county, and from Oxnard, at a delightful barbecue dinner in Oak Grove Sunday. Another barbecue in the same grove was that of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Hewitt, who entertained about a dozen friends at a temptingly prepared dinner, the host being the chef of the barbecue.

Mr. and Mrs. Thornhill Broome have returned to Santa Barbara after a stay of six weeks' duration at the Guadalasca ranch. They are en route for Chicago, where they will remain during the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Walker are en route for Piedmont, W. V., Washington, D. C., and old-home points in Pennsylvania. They expect to be away some time, and will visit several of the large cities of the East, returning via. San Francisco. They are accompanied by their small son, William.

Mrs. Milton Ray Sanderson, who is spending the summer months with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Cohn, is now in Fresno, where she went to attend the wedding of her friends, Miss Theolinda Mattie, to Dr. Gleason of Michigan University.

ARMY AND NAVY.

Capt. John J. Knapp of the naval examining and retiring board, formerly commander of the battleship Connecticut, has been designated by Secretary Daniels as commandant of the Philadelphia navy yard to succeed Rear-Admiral William S. Benson, now serving as chief of operations.

Rear-Admiral Henry T. Mayo has been selected by Secretary Daniels for the position of first vice-admiral, provided for by Congress. He will be assigned to the Atlantic fleet, under Admiral Fletcher. Admiral Mayo became conspicuous last spring when he demanded from Huerta, then President of Mexico, a salute to the American flag, following indignities to American marines at Tampico. He formerly served as Secretary Daniels's aide for personnel, and is at present in command of the first division of the Atlantic fleet.

Capt. Robert E. Coontz, U.S.N., now commanding the battleship Georgia, has been selected as the new commandant of the Puget Sound navy yard. Capt. Coontz was the executive officer of the battleship Nebraska on the famous cruise of the battleship around the world during the Roosevelt administration. He also commanded the cruise of the Annapolis midshipmen to European waters. In 1912 he was Governor of Guam.

Rear-Admiral Cameron McRae Winslow, commandant of the Newport navy yard, addressing a gathering of prominent men at a luncheon of the Navy League, in New York, last week, asserted that the promotion system of the navy was ruinous; that men able to stand entertaining were advanced, while their sea experience was sadly neglected, and that the age limit was wrong. The navy, he said, should be run by navy men. Unless such men were placed in control, he asserted, the navy could not be efficient.

OVER THE SEA.

King George of England is the inventor of a stove that will serve as an open grate in one room of a house and cook meals in the usual way in another.

Victor Emmanuel, King of Italy, was not always so popular as now. Early in his reign a man approached him and said that for entirely too long the people had not seen him "except on stamps." The remark always stuck in the King's memory.

Herr Unthan, a German, who was born without arms, has been engaged by the German government to give instruction to soldiers who have lost both arms in the war. Herr Unthan is 60 years old. He can play a violin, write letters, eat and wash himself with the use of his feet.

Grand Duke Constantine Constantinovitch of Russia, whose son, Prince Oleg, was killed in October last at the head of his Hussar regiment in charging the German invaders in Muscovite Poland, has now lost his son-in-law, Prince Constantine Bagration, who, at the age of 25, has fallen in the recent fighting around Przemysl, in Galicia. He belonged to the regiment of Chevalier Gardes.

Gen. Joffre of France recently conferred a number of decorations upon members of the cavalry division commanded by Gen. Humbert, but he left to Gen. Humbert himself the duty of pinning the cross of the Legion of Honor on the breast of his son, Jean Humbert, a hero of only 19 years, doubtless the youngest wearer of the coveted red ribbon. Wounded in a night attack in Lorraine, Jean Humbert, as soon as he was able, returned to the front, and was again wounded last month. Being too young to be promoted captain Joffre decided he should have the cross of the brave.

Eduard Scharrer, an officer in the German army and a son-in-law of the late Adolphus Busch, is in command of Turkish troops in one of the forts at Dardanelles, according to letters received by members of the Busch family in St. Louis. In November, while he was a lieutenant, he received the Iron Cross from the Kaiser, and recently another decoration.

PART THREE—SUNDAY . . . .

MEN AND EVENTS.

"Smiling Jimmie" Keath, who recently graduated from the Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia, received his degree propped up on pillows in a wheeled chair as a result of a fall when a young student fell through a skylight that resulted in a broken back, a paralyzed leg, and the other one amputated. His indomitable pluck made him exceedingly popular with the other students.

Albert Edward Brun, five days old, born of a German father and an Italian mother at Clifton, N. J., is said by physicians to be the smallest human being in the world. No record of a smaller one could be found today. The baby weighs one pound and fifteen ounces, but can yell as loudly as the average twelve-pound infant, and is growing rapidly. The mother is 19; father 38.

Two sons are seeking to succeed their fathers as members of the City Council of Alton, Ill. Max Rubenstein, unable to serve because of illness, is backing his son, and Alderman Grossheim, also ill, has launched the candidacy of his son.

Beverly (N. J.) records for school attendance are broken by Albert F. Bryan, who graduated recently from the Farnum grammar school. He has not missed a school session in seven years, and he has been equally regular in his Sunday-school attendance. When a March blizzard closed the school last year the boy made his way through drifts to the schoolhouse, then reported to the home of the principal in order that he might not be marked absent.

Florence Magee, aged 18, turned the tables on her father, William Magee of San Rafael, Cal., known as the "marrying judge of Marin county," when she eloped with Sidney J. Blaser. The judge was irate, although he has married 3500 eloping couples in the last ten years.

Dr. Ivory Lowe of Canaan, Me., the oldest physician in Somerset county, is using a wagon which has been in use continuously for forty-five years. Dr. Lowe says the wagon has made an average of twenty miles a day for forty-five years, thus making the wagon's total trip about 325,000 miles. It still has its original wheels and its original tires.

THE UNCHLOROFORMED.

Mr. and Mrs. David Gray of McClellan township, in Jefferson county, Ill., celebrated the seventieth anniversary of their marriage last week, and they probably hold the record for a long marriage in Illinois. Gray is 89 years of age, and Mrs. Gray is two years his junior. They were born in North Carolina and married in that State. More than fifty years ago they located near Mt. Vernon, and have since lived there. In spite of their years, they are enjoying the best of health. They have nine living children, forty-two grandchildren and thirty-eight great grandchildren, making the number of their descendants eighty-two.

William and James Pickerel, aged 70, twins, of Cedarsville, Pa., recently walked ten miles to catch a train for Marysville, O., that they might participate in an old fiddlers contest held in that city.

Henry L. Gray of Wichita, Kan., was 102 years old March 24 last. He has outlived four wives.

Mrs. Ann Elizabeth Magill, who has just celebrated her one hundred and seventh birthday, is the oldest woman in Philadelphia.

John Dryesdale, 108, and the oldest man in West Virginia, has cut his third set of teeth, and is regaining his eyesight.

John Munsinger of Howard, Kan., 102, retains his faculties in a remarkable degree. He has been twice married and has more than 150 living descendants.

EDUCATORS, SCIENTISTS.

Miss Lydia G. Pierson, who has taught school in Woodbury, N. J., fifty-one years, has declined a re-election and will go on the retired list.

Edward Pierpont Houghton of Amherst College, Mass., has been elected president of Waynesburg College, Pa. to succeed Dr. Ezra F. Baker, resigned. He is aged about 35, and taught in Princeotn University before going to Amherst.

Dr. Frank Johnson Goodnow, president of Johns Hopkins University, left Baltimore last week for China, where, in his capacity as constitutional adviser of the Chinese Republic, he will aid Chinese statesmen in putting the finishing touches on the permanent Constitution, which is to replace the temporary instrument under which the Chinese are now operating.

Miss Elizabeth Smith of Indianapolis, who for several years has been dean of women at DePauw university, has tendered her resignation to the board of trustees. It has been accepted. Before accepting the position at DePauw Miss Smith was an instructor in the art school at Greencastle.

Dr. Edward Herrick of Griffin, professor of philosophy and dean of the college faculty of Johns Hopkins University, has presented his resignation, and will take a long deserved rest. He will spend some time in California.

These advertisements are garnished, too, with wheels which are equipped with wings—showing doubly the purpose of the sale—to move onward, keeping pace with progress, and to move rapidly the goods for sale.

Awning Striped.

The awning stripe has broken out in almost every possible article of feminine attire. There are blouses awning striped, skirts striped similarly, and now comes the "awning-striped yacht suit," which is literally of awning stripe—the very goods from which awnings are compounded. Most of the awning stripes seen heretofore were of silk or other fine fabric, but here is reality with a big, big "R."

Of Another Stripe.

With the crowd of stripes comes a new corduroy—it bears a name which makes you think of pretty girls at play—and which is, in my estimation, one of the very most attractive fabrics for skirts.

This is a corduroy fully fifty inches in width—a great advantage in making the season's skirts—and it is in stripes of black and white—or rather white and black, since the latter is the narrower. I could imagine nothing more chic than a skirt of this material worn with a silken sweater in similar stripes—and I have seen one which almost exactly matched—a simply-trimmed Panama and soft shoes of white buck trimmed in black. A sports suit par excellence, this.

Filched from Fashion's Notebook.

An elaborate facing to evening skirts is the very latest feature of the mode.

Pipings, frillings, gores, gathers and box pleats are having an immense success.

Embroidery has returned, and it is used on both afternoon and evening dresses.

There is still a trace of the Russian influence in many of the new costumes.

Undermuslins are so sheer that they are more like cobwebs than cambrics.

Gray tulle and silver lace is one of the prettiest combinations for evening gowns.

The prettiest trimming for big Leghorn hats is Louis XV wreaths of tiny flowers.

Wings are poised on the crowns of turbans in a manner which gives height to the hat.

For general utility coats few fabrics are better than the warm plaids and tweeds.

Occasionally the bodice of an evening frock is laced at the back in the old-fashioned manner.

Black net dresses are charming fashioned with flounces, the flounces being edged with jet fringe.

Long taffeta coats with short waists and full skirts are very attractive over lingerie dresses.

The charming dress of the moment is the one that seems to have been made with the least effort.

Evening petticoats have their upper halves of pink crepe de chine, with many layers of pink net for the lower half.

White chiffon waists are worn with black taffeta skirts. The waists have flaring tails and are worn over the skirt.

Tassels are used to trim various parts of the gown, but the most interesting use of them is to hang them on a net petticoat and allow them to dangle below the skirt.

For the Commonwealth

Mason read it, his face registering the keen pleasure it gave him. He was too overcome by this most unexpected development to express adequately the pleasure he felt. He looked from one to the other of them, his flushed, glowing face eloquent with the feelings he could not utter, and said, simply: "I thank you, gentlemen; thank you most sincerely. I feel more honored than I find it possible at this moment to express."

"You accept, then?" said Lesser, needlessly.

"Accept? I shall be delighted!"

"Very well. If you will call at the club tonight we can discuss the many details attendant on your nomination. Good-morning."

They started to go, all but Gilson, who had heard Bell's voice in the outer office. Bell had been apprised by one of the clerks of Mason's raid as soon as he entered, and the voice Gilson heard reflected adequately his reception of the news. The succeeding information that Mason had been offered the candidacy by the Commonwealth Club served to restrain his expressed, if not his felt, anger, and he bowed coldly to Mason in the outer office as the latter started eagerly for the home of his sweetheart, Marion Decker, to tell her and her mother of his good fortune.

Gilson approached Bell and spoke without the formality of a greeting. "You have heard?"

"Yes."

"Well?"

"Come into my office. We have no time to lose."

Together the honorary member of the Commonwealth Club, president of the Society for the Abolishment of Child Labor, preceptor of a Bible class and his marionette politician entered the District Attorney's private office to discuss the most effective way of assassinating a reputation inconvenient to their "highest" interests. And while Mason was at the home of his sweetheart, telling her the good news and asking her to be his wife, the other two—Gilson and Bell—were planning a different meeting for that night—a meeting at which the Spanish dancer, the gambling-house manager, the smug hypocritical owner and the recreant District Attorney were to plot the details of a vile plot to discredit the young assistant in the eyes of the world. And now we shall see how the plot worked out.

VI.

The next night Ellis and Marion took a long ride in his motor car. They returned late, and he lingered a few fond minutes before leaving her at her stoop. He came back toward his car, whistling softly, happily to himself, his hands stuck deep in his trousers' pockets, his mind lost in the reverie his whistling belied.

A short, sharp cry, as if of someone in urgent distress, brought him back to a consciousness of outward things, and he looked up in startled surprise to see a young woman staggering on the sidewalk as if about to fall.

He rushed up and caught her quickly, half-carrying her back to the stoop from which he had come. The woman had a deep-black veil on, a veil that entirely concealed her face; but she was otherwise dressed in unrelieved black, so the veil was not provocative of any thought on his part.

"If you will come into this house, miss, we can send for a doctor."

"Oh, I'm all right, thank you," she said, weakly. "Just a weak spell. I get them often. I won't trouble you further. You're very kind. I will go home." She started to walk away from him, but again staggered weakly as though about to fall and was again caught and sustained by Mason.

"If you won't come in here you will at least allow me to take you home," he said, solicitously. "You're in no condition to be out alone."

"Thank you," she said.

He helped her into his automobile and started for her apartment on the upper West Side. She seemed to grow worse as they went along, and when they arrived her seeming plight made it necessary that he carry her up the stairs.

When they arrived at her room after a painful climbing of steps she suddenly recovered sufficiently to rise and take off her hat and veil, and he was shocked and incredulous at recognizing Clarice Adair, dancing girl of the cafe he had raided two nights before. Her recovery was now extraordinarily rapid, and he was suddenly panic-stricken as a realization of what this all meant came upon him. She smiled at him mockingly as she began to take off her outer garments. He had not long to realize, however, for in another moment the door was thrown rudely open and two men entered.

The trap is sprung on young Mason.

CHEMISTS AND THE WAR.

Fighting Battles with Deadly Gases Puts a Responsibility for Patriotism upon Chemical Manipulators.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch:] Gen. Kitchener declared in Parliament that the allies feel justified in opposing with similar means the German use of poisonous gases on the battle line. And, indeed, if no agency is found as effective in protecting their own men from slaughter, what else can they do but oppose poison to poison? It indicates, however, warfare conducted on a lowered plane of humanity from which horrors as yet undreamed of may result. Prohibition of agencies whose principal object is the production of injurious fumes, in distinction from fumes whose production is only incidental to another object, as in detonation of high explosives, was sought at The Hague, but the attempt had only partial indorsement. With poison formally adopted for military uses by both allies and Germans, a contest in the potency of the toxic agencies becomes inevitable. Success in war is thrown more and more into the hands of the chemists, whose discoveries and inventions had previously given the world the smokeless battle and greatly increased the range and destructiveness of weapons.

The patriotic chemists of one side must devise practical reactions that will render the gases used by the enemy innocuous. They must provide fumes more deadly and less escapable than those of the enemy. The gas released by the Germans is identified with chlorine, which has the advantage of being heavy and clinging close to the ground. Other gases and gaseous compound, however, are quicker and less easily resisted.

KING SEES A GYMKANA.

Albert of Belgium Watches the Indians at Play.

Field Sports Held on a French Battleground.

Show Given as Treat to the Peasants and Refugees.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, June 1.—King Albert of the Belgians, who has not had many afternoons off during the last eleven months, took one off to see a show—a gymkana. He has stuck as close to his job in what remains of his kingdom as has many a desk-ridden man who cannot be induced to go to the mountains or to the seashore.

Whether living in their own houses or refugees whose houses in the fighting zone have been demolished by shells, the French people in the rear of the British front have not had many afternoons off either. The women, the old, the crippled, and every child who could hold a hoe, had taken the place of the able-bodied men away at war. With the crops all in and the wheat ripening, word came that strange picturesque mortals from somewhere beyond the Arabian Nights country known as the British Indian troops, who had been refrigerating through the raw Flanders winter in French barns and outbuildings, were going to give an exhibition of horsemanship.

Everybody was invited and there was no admission fee. It was like a free Wild West show on the outskirts of a New England village, with a chance to see a heroic King, and if he was really as tall as the people had said.

The scene was a small plateau, hardened by the hoofs of the caviry drill, the one space in Northern France which the industry of those too weak to fight had not made green with cultixation. Across the sweep the fields and groves which hid the trenches and batteries along the British front was an almost unbroken silence, but farther north a section of the horizon was roaring like a gigantic muffled snare drum.

DEATH NO TERROR.

There French guns, hundreds of French guns, were busy firing away at the German works known as "the labyrinth." There men were being killed or wounded every minute, but those living near the front thought nothing of that. They are as used to it as is anybody living in the neighborhood of Niagara Falls to their roar.

Joy was in the Indians' hearts, the joy of a warming sunshine to children out of a winter icebox at last. The joy was shown in their dark eyes; it glistened on their white teeth and it gleamed on the forest of their lances.

They were free of swaths, the clothing which the King-Emperor had supplied to them to keep out the Flanders cold. Sunshine had oiled their muscles under their bronze skins. Broadway and Kansas in their dog days would not be too hot for them. This would be something like India and home. And white "sahibs" said two more months—July and August—which were warmer, still were coming.

Those who had survived the trench warfare were going to show how well they had kept themselves during the winter. Particularly they were going to show how well they had kept their horses amid the mud and slush. As with the Cossacks, praise their horses and you praise them.

Contrast and picturesqueness, if you please, were in the trot of these easterns, a bit out of Durbars and Delhi in an obscure corner of Northern France, as they were reviewed by this giant, fair-haired King, with drooping straw-colored mustache, giving a Viking air.

MANY "BRAVES."

Groups of Indian officers in the watching crowd rubbed elbows with French peasants. The French of different regiments after a greeting referred to some comrade who had fallen since they last met. Then the war and its horrors were forgotten in the British love of sport. An Indian, emiting a fierce, screaming yell, galloped down the field and impaled a small wooden peg stuck in the ground on the lance.

"Bravo," called the officers, as he rushed by at top speed. Another Indian tried the same thing and failed. "Too bad," was heard, but there were more "Bravos" than Too bads" spoken in the quiet way in which the British show their emotions. These officers were in India in spirit, rather than in France. They were the leaders who had made soldiers out of the human clay of the East, and had held them fast in the face of German shells as a part of the working of that extensive plant called the British empire.

When it came to demonstrativeness, the French were the real fans. Grandfather, mother and children were having the time of their lives. It beat the movies in town, and there was nothing to pay either. They liked the way the Indians yelled. That made them seem like real, sure enough Indians. A British cavalryman would only pick up a peg. He would not yell.

As four riders, looking as wild as any theatrical manager would desire, came tearing down the field abreast, their white teeth gleaming as they uttered their screaming challenges, picked up four of those bits of wood at the same instant and waved their lanceheads aloft, a token of their success, to the King, one old Frenchman said: "I wish it had been four Germans they had speared in a charge."

It was a great day for the hard-worked French peasantry when they could see both the hard-worked King of the Belgians and an Indian gymkana. And the roar kept coming from that distant section of the horizon where the steady hail of shells was eating its way into the German trenches with the mechanical routine of steam shovels cutting into the side of a hill.

EUCALYPTUS TREE ROOTS.

Apparent Corroboration of the Theory That They Extend as far into the Ground as Above It.

[Bulletin of College of Agriculture:] The Eucalyptus tree develops its root system very rapidly as it grows from the young plant to the large tree. It is a general supposition in California that the tap root reaches, if unimpeded, to a depth below the surface of the soil equal to the height of the tree above ground; this in old trees would be fully 100 feet in alluvial lands. Depths of sixty feet have been reported from Southern California. The lateral extension of the roots is well known to be very great, a root one-fourth of an inch thick having been observed by us in an orchard near Riverside, at a distance of seventy-five feet from the tree, and evidently its extension was fully twenty-five feet further. This large lateral devtlopment of the Eucalyptus roots, where the trees have been planted as wind breaks or for ornament, is a well-known sourct of danger to adjacent fruit orchards because of their great absorption of soil moisture; in some cases deep trenches have been dug to cut the Eucalyptus roots and protect the orchard trtes.

Tht Eucalyptus Timber Corporation of Tulare county has made observations of the root development of young trees and found the downward development is even greater than they are usually credited with; and if the same ratio of increase is maintained, a tree 100 feet high would have a tap root from 110 to 123 feet below the surface of the ground. This is not to be greatly doubted where depth of soil strata permits, for this deep penetration of the roots of other trees both ornamental and orchard, as well as of plants and grasses, in California soils is of common observation, as reported in previous publications of this Station. The roots of wheat, barley and the California poppy (Eschscholtzia californica) have been followed to depths of thirteen feet in the loam soil of the University Farm at Davis, Yolo county, California.

READ WITH THE EARS.

With the Aid of Selenium and a Telephone the Blind May Learn to Read in a New Way.

[Louisville Courier-Journal:] Under certain conditions light is audible. The blind may be enabled to see with their ears, therefore, paradoxical as the statement is. At least, Dr. E. E. Fournier Alba claims to have perfected an instrument at last whereby the blind may read ordinary newspaper print as soon as they have mastered a sound alphabet that is no more complicated than the Morse code.

This instrument, according to the Louisville Courier-Journal, is based upon the effect which light has upon the electrical properties of selenium, a substance unique among minerals, in that it is a good conductor of electricity in the light, but very resistent to the current when light is absent.

By introducing it into the circuit of a telephone it is easy to see how graduations of tone would be caused by different intensities of light, and this, in fact, is virtually what Dr. Alba has done.

There is a rapidly-rotating disc perforated with concentric circles of holes, and the light of a Nernst lamp shining through these holes gives regularly recurring flashes, which are caught by a selenium and a telephone.

An image of this line of illuminated dots is thrown upon the type to be read, and the light, differently reflected from the type, is received upon a selenium bridge.

Each dot has a characteristic tone, of course, and the sounds heard in the telephone vary with each variation in the reflecting power of the surface under examination.

By moving the letter press in the direction of the lines of type there will be sound changes with every change of letter, so that with some practice it is quite possible for the blind to read with their ears.

Lime Combats Tuberculosis

"It is difficult to escape the conviction that lime starvation and lime assimilation are the real issues behind the masks of vulnerability and resistance in tuberculosis," writes Ira Van Gieson, M. D., in the May 11, 1912, issue of the New York "Medical Record."

Dr. Von Gieson is eminent in his profession, and his assertion that lime assimilation is the "real issue" in resistance to tuberculosis bears the stamp of authority.

Ordinarily lime is not easily assimilated medicinally, but Eckman's Alterative is one preparation containing it in such form and combination as to insure assimilation by the average person.

This is one reason for its success in many cases of tuberculosis which apparently have yielded to it and others which have been benefited through its use.

Our experience-based faith in this remedy is shared by a large number of men and women, who say they owe health, strength and life to it. It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so is safe to try.

If your druggist is out of it, he can get it, or you can order direct from us.

The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Mother" writes: "My son and daughter have reached the ages of 21 and 19. Both of them have grown up quickly and are well formed and strong looking, but they are neither of them strong and active as I had hoped they would be. They both are weak and timid. They are listless and forgetful and I am much alarmed over their conditions. You relieved me of rheumatism and I want you to prescribe for my children."

Answer: Your children have both grown large at the expense of their strength. Their systems need a good bracing tonic and builder. Three grain cadomene tablets will be splendid for them and should make them strong and healthy in a short time.

"Miss C." writes: "I am so light in weight that my friends call me 'Bubble.' I have a large frame and feel well, but I am very thin and pale. I want to increase my weight."

Answer: What your system requires is a good blood and nerve tonic. Such you will find in three grain hypo-nuclane tablets. Take these tablets with your meals and they will cause proper assimilation of your food. I always recommend these tablets to increase the weight. Some have gained as much as fifty pounds in six months.

"R. R. No. 2" asks: "Will you please tell me what is the matter with me and tell me what I may get to make me well? I have constant misery in my back on both sides, have headache all the time, and my feet and limbs, in fact, my whole body swells. At first I did not mind, but now I'm much worried. The urine I pass is very little and a kind of dark brown. It seems to be going into my blood instead."

Answer: You did not say how long you have been suffering, but you have a well developed case of kidney trouble. Start at once taking balmwort tablets. They should get your kidneys in good order in a little while. Continue their use until fully recovered.

"L. W." writes: "My blood is in bad condition. I suffer with constipation and my tongue is always coated. My skin is dark and I have pimples and don't feel good. I feel tired all the time, but when night comes I am too nervous to sleep. Please prescribe for me."

Answer: Get a tube of three grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur) and take according to directions. They will clean your blood, aid digestion and relieve constipation. When you get your blood pure, the other symptoms disappear.

"Lucile" writes: "I want to get rid of dandruff and itching scalp. What would you suggest?"

Answer: In my practice I have prescribed the same treatment for seven years to overcome dandruff, and thousands are satisfied there is nothing better than the use of plain yellow minyol. Minyol contains no alcohol, and cleans and vitalises the scalp. A few treatments should overcome the worst cases of dandruff. It tends to strengthen the scalp and gives life, lustre and health to the hair.

"W. W. C." writes: "I have gained so much flesh that I'm all out of proportion and I do not feel good. What will reduce my weight?"

Answer: Five grain arbolone tablets are the most effective and safest reducers I know of. They are harmless; come in sealed tubes with complete directions.

Their relations are not disagreeable; they are not pleasant; the sale of the necklace affords them the means of luxury. We meet their friends and listen to their chatter.

The story refuses to focus. One wonders in vain at what the author is driving unless it is to show that a mercenary marriage may develop into one of love.

Gard, in a miraculously brief period, is transformed from an uncouth, ignorant fellow into a welcomed member of the most polished society. Also, it is discovered that Gard's paralysis of the legs is purely imaginary—he unexpectedly leaps to his feet to save a beautiful dancer who has flirted with him. A man who hasn't stood on his feet for more than twenty years suddenly gets up and carries a woman out of a room—that is the climactic incident.

Evelyn passes immaculate through a tender experience with the pressing Manuel; Gard complains to a lawyer that she is a wife in name only; dark clouds lower, tears fall, weeping is heard and Gard realizes that his wife loves him.

Those who have held that Josephine Daskam Bacon could write, that she was due to become one of the forceful, discriminating, well-balanced novelists will have their opinions rudely jarred by the "Open Market."

MODERN FAIRY TALE.

THE PRIMROSE RING. By Ruth Sawyer. Harper & Bros., New York.

"THE PRIMROSE RING" is frankly a fairy story with a coloring of Celtic mysticism in it, a modern fairy tale about the pallid children of an incurable ward in an endowed hospital with a charming nurse for a fairy godmother and grouchy trustees and the senior surgeon for ogres.

The theme does not make a story good any more than the theme makes it bad; sweet characters may be and often are stupid and wicked ones may be fascinating. All of which may seem platitudinous to those people who evade the hailstorm of goody-good, sweet, attitudinizing, cheerful fiction—much of which is greeted with the adjectives reserved for high merit alone. "The Primrose Ring" is a superior book of this type; it is entitled to the choice praise that rewards the artistic, human, bright, whimsical story.

Margaret MacLean, in charge of Ward C, feels a deeper, closer attachment for the incurable children than would otherwise have been had she herself not passed much of her girlhood prone on a bed in this very ward. But a wise old surgeon not only spun for her—a foundling—a romantic story of her birth and infancy, but proved that she was curable.

Twelve times a year the trustees come to inspect the hospital and growl at the expense; and twelve times a year the children of Ward C cry themselves to sleep. And now the senior surgeon wants more room for his surgical patients and the trustees decide to do away with Ward C and its incurables.

But the ogres know nothing of the efficacy of the mystic primrose ring with which good faries are invoked. And a shy, lonesome, rich old woman—herself a trustee—answers the invocation of that flowery ring. Of course, she doesn't know anything about the magic—but the children do, especially Irish Bridget.

It is a story beautifully told, full of tears and smiles, written with the grace and whimsy becoming to a fairy tale.

THE PETTED HERO.

THE author has babied this hero from infancy to maturity; he is idealized, petted, and in the effort to show his good qualities she has given him a background of scoundrels, grafters, weaklings and roughnecks. Instead of making him a man among men he is merely a decent chap among rascals.

Jim's father is killed in the quarry; the mother, poor, penniless, advertises in the New York Sun for a job as housekeeper. A New York lawyer, who uses "me" as an adjective, presumably to show that he is Irish, answers the "ad" in person, falls in love with the boy at first sight, the mother at second sight, marries her and installs them in a "brownfront mansion."

Jim and his best chum love the same girl; the chum proves himself a miserable cad, but the girl hasn't sense enough to see it; so she marries the cad. An hour after the marriage her new husband is paralysed from the waist downward; so, after languishing as a wife in name only for a few years, she, upon the death of the wicked husband, becomes the virginal bride of the manly, stalwart, handsome, honest, conscientious, virtuous, temperate, idolized and idealized James.

Jim is called "still" owing to an undeserved reputation for not talking. As a reclamation-service engineer, rapidly rising to a high position of trust and responsibility, he is accused of graft, incompetency and all the other false things that trouble the souls of these honorable fictional heroes.

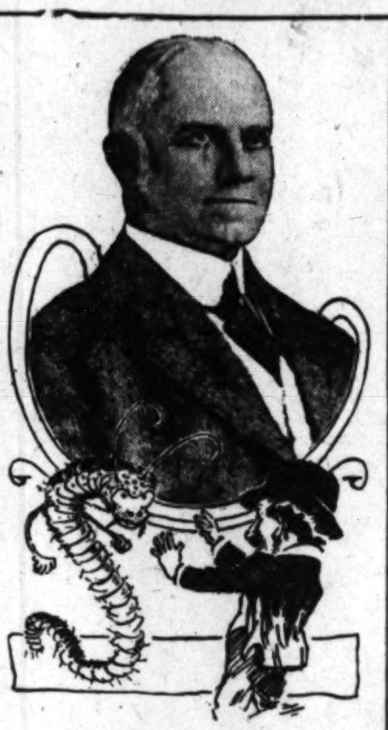
The situation looks bad for him—but we know that the guardian hand of the author, the hand which took him from the quarry shanty and put him in the brownstone mansion, which smote his rival with paralysis from the waist down, which got him the high position of trust and responsibility as a dam builder, will not desert him in his hour of trial and tribulation. Indeed, not. The Secretary of the Interior himself vindicates James—that is the Secretary interests himself after Penelope (the wife of the paralytic) goes to Washington to intercede and explain all about the anonymous letters and publicity scandals.

The parts descriptive of reclamation work, of the men at their toil, of the mountains and scenic beauties are good; they are the only parts of the book that have a basis of convincing reality. The story itself is insipid, supported by neither truth nor originality.

GIRLS AND MARRIED MEN.

MARY MORELAND. By Marie Von Vorst. Little, Brown & Co., Boston.

"MARY MORELAND" is a dignified example of the conspicuous fault of contemporary novelists. Many of the more serious are attempting to write conscientious studies of modern problems, portray life as it is, do sincere work, yet lack the courage to offend Demos; they warp their stories to the "happy ending;" equivocate with sincerity to get their financial grapple-hooks fastened onto popularity.



Genius and microbes.

Robert T. Morris, M.D., says a man's no better than his microbes. In "Microbes and Men"—recently published—he undertakes to show that men of genius have been diseased, and that the toxic influences may be traced in many works of literature.

Brutality, unhappiness, immorality are not of themselves art. Neither is it for an author to write a sustained, sequential, poignant story disclosing the love of a girl for a married man, reconcile her to the honorable, painful course—then sweep to a sentimental ending by wantonly putting the intervening wife to death.

It is not art for an author to humiliate a girl who has "gone wrong"—to puritanically phrase adultery—with a married man, to drive her from her home, make her suffer the contemptuous "cuts" of her virtuous friends, then gratuitously put his wife to death so that he comes honorably seeking to marry the "ruined" girl.

Both of those situations occur in "Mary Moreland." Two wives, one of whom is as good as her husband, while of the other we are permitted to know nothing, are sacrificed for the glorification of sentimental fictionites.

Nor is it sarcasm to say that, except for these maudlin compromises with weepy readers, Marie Van Vorst has written a novel ably presenting the struggles of two girls, one of whom is the titular character.

Maughn strongly resembles the typical, fictional business man whose wife does not understood him and whose stenographer does. He urges Mary to run away with him; she consents, but shortly afterward meets Mrs. Maughn and hears something of the other side of the story. Reflecting on how near has been her own escape from a similar humiliation, Mary welcomes the outcast Amber into her own home. Mary is a real woman, of a splendid type.

The book is brightened somewhat by the introduction of Romney, the invalid, eccentric, English poet whose secretaries to his disgust are always falling in love with him and who in rapid succession falls in love with Mary and Amber. Also Mrs. Torrence, with her pet monkey and cynicism, contributes much to the pleasure of reading. But as the title implies, Mary and her struggles dominate the story—which is woefully weakened by the gratuitous slaughter of innocent wives.

SCIENTIFIC "PIPE-DREAM."

THE MAN WHO ROCKED THE EARTH. By Arthur Train and Robert Williams Wood. Doubleday, Page & Co., Garden City, N. Y.

SINCE Robert Williams Wood is connected with the department of physics at Johns Hopkins University, it is probable that there is a glimmering of scientific sense to the tremendous hypothecation which the authors have invoked to rock the earth. It makes little difference, no difference in fact, to the layman whether there is any scientific reality in a story of this kind for the simple, effective, all-sufficient reason that laymen aren't equipped with a knowledge of abstruse physics or chemistry, and can't distinguish between the plausible and the impossible. In fiction is an extremely poor place to incorporate a scientific treatise; and all the scientific jargon involving "radium, uranium, thorium, actinium," atomic energy," "tungsten spiral in a nitrogen atmosphere," "quartz bulb with a capsule of zircorundum" means nothing to the average reader.

The story of "The Man Who Rocked the Earth" shows that Mr. Train and Mr. Wood are poor prophets. They lead off by telling what happened in the war by July, 1916. Forthwith we are introduced by wireless to a mysterious gentleman signing himself "Pax," who, from some corner of Labrador, controls the forces of nature. He issues a warning to all the world that unless peace is established forthwith he will shift the earth and put Germany at the North Pole—freeze the Germans into pacifists. As evidence of his power he makes it snow at Washington in August, drains an ocean into the Sahara desert and lengthens the day five minutes; also he floats around over the earth in a tremendous airship from which he shoots lightning rays that knock mountains off their base.

The nations are frightened. An armistice is declared, which of course, the rascally Germans violate. Pax is terribly indignant and wreaks summary vengeance from his private supply of lightning. However, the earth isn't shifted on its axis, but intrepid American scientists discover his secrets.

Before closing their story, Mr. Train and Mr. Wood very considerately form a world federation and establish as inviolate "The Law of Humanity," abolish war forever, and allow all nations to grow "rich beyond the imaginations of men."

The authors are false prophets and dull scientists, but are blessed with stupendous imaginations.

THE WAR IN EUROPE.

PRO-GERMAN.

WITH THE GERMAN ARMIES IN THE WEST. By Sven Hedin. John Lane Company, New York and London.

WHEN convenient, the Kaiser should award Mr. John Lane, who is an English publisher with an American house, an iron cross for bringing out Sven Hedin's book. It has taken a deal of courage and considerable risk, for Sven Hedin is of a neutral country, is known as a reliable author and explorer; he was given the freedom of the German camps, dined with the Kaiser and was the guest of the Crown Prince, and he tells a story vastly different from that which has been drummed by censored dispatches into the ears of Englishmen and Americans.

The rare ability of the British correspondent to lie for the deprecation of his country's enemy is unquestioned; the censorial discretion which allows no item, no matter how truthful, favorable to the enemy to be printed is understood; the avidity with which every manner of barbarity is attributed to German soldiers is recognized as the natural perversion of patriotism. But when Sven Hedin calls upon God to bear witness to the truth of the statement that he found no evidence of German cruelty, though he was with the army in Belgium, that he saw nothing at any time which did not reflect honor upon the manhood of the German troops, it is well to remember that Sven Hedin could not have politely looked for those things which he did not see and which, it seems sensible to believe, the guest of the Crown Prince would not want to see—especially if he hoped ever to revisit Germany.

But, aside from the controversial features, the book is the first to give a "close-up" picture of the German army in action. Any number of correspondents have written out their impressions, but this man for a time saw the war from behind the curtain, he was attended by staff officers, his every question was answered, and his curiosity satisfied. He spent much time with French and English prisoners and reports that they were well received, well treated and were pleased with the treatment, though the French especially showed distress at being unable longer to fight for their country. After meeting the Kaiser on several occasions the author is in a position to report that the war has not aged him, broken his spirit or impaired his vivacity.

The book is interesting, indeed; and not the least interesting parts are those in which Mr. Hedin recites the pharisaism of England, tells of how the Crown Prince distributed iron crosses before dinner, and the very superior way in which he, Mr. Hedin, impressed challenging sentries by flashing a pass signed by the Chief-of-Staff.

AMONG THE WOUNDED.

FIELD HOSPITAL AND FLYING COLUMN. By Violetta Thurstan. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

IN THIS, the journal of an English Nursing Sister in Belgium and Russia, one may get some idea of the life among the wounded as well as new descriptions of the personnel, equipment and management of the different armies.

Once again an English pen reluctantly testifies to the superb equipment of the German army; but though the Germans were almost ideally prepared for the care of the wounded, Miss Thurstan found the surgeons and officials rather heartless in their treatment of them.

She records: "I heard from other ambulances that it was their experience as well as my own that the lightly-wounded were very well looked after, but the severely wounded were often very inconsiderately treated. They were no longer of use as fighting machines and only fit for the scrap-heap."

Also she testifies to the organized incendiarism of the German army in Belgium, saying that every German soldier had a little hatchet and, when Charleroi was fired, they simply went down the street as if they had been drilled to it for months, cutting a square hole in the panel of each door, and throwing a ball of celluloid filled with benzine inside. This exploded and set the house on fire, and later on the soldiers would return to see if it was burning well.

After the Germans had securely occupied Belgium they discountenanced the service of the English nurses and exported them. As prisoners, deprived of their instruments and belongings, they were sent across Germany to Copenhagen. From that city Miss Thurstan made her way into Russia and was soon again at the front.

She found the Russian hospital resources inadequate, the staff overworked, many of the nurses untrained, but that every one was conscientious and uncomplaining. The wounded were brought in great numbers to the improvised hospitals near the front, but as rapidly as possible sent on into the interior, Petrograd and Moscow.

Miss Thurstan recites many of her personal experiences in Belgium, Germany and Russia, some of which are no less adventurous than many of those told by soldiers whose business it is to get shot at. And, in view of the fact that she is patriotically English, she has written in a moderate tone of the Germans.

UNCLASSIFIED.

REVOLUTIONIZES THEOLOGY.

THE DIVINE MYSTERY. By Allen Upward. Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston.

ALLEN UPWARD has been an observant traveler in that unsuspected borderland between paganism and Christianity. With a reverence expanding beyond the confines of any creed, he has sought to trace the "history of Christianity down to the time of Christ."

"To the thoughtful mind," he writes, "all history is sacred, and the whole world is a holy land in which man walks as in a garden planted by the hand of his Creator. . . . Of this Divine Mystery the Christian gospel is a reflection in the heart and mind of man. It is an old, old story, retold from generation unto generation. Its words and signs are inherited from a primeval language, a true catholic speech, whose grammar is being recovered from the tombs and dust of prehistoric peoples, from the daily life of savage tribes, and from the tales that are still the Bible of the peasant and the child."

The poetic grace, swift contrasts and sustained, loftly tone, with which Mr. Upward expresses his incisive comments and presents his amazing deductions has no parallel in any book of a scientific or theologic nature that we have ever seen. It is resplendent, fairly dazzling, with erudition and astounding with logical conclusions.

He finds that the "Christian gospel is a reflection in the heart and mind of man"—that Christian traditions and rituals are analogous to those of savages and pagans; that Christianity, in fact, was an evolutionary growth from the dark, bloody rites of barbaric peoples. He finds that the Christian communion service is a metaphysical adaptation of religious cannibalism; that such Christian hymns as embody "Wash Me in the Blood of the Lamb," "There Is a Fountain Filled with Blood Drawn from Emmanual's Veins," are relics of the savage belief that a magical virtue was in the blood of the sacrificial victim.

"BEST SELLERS" IN LOS ANGELES.

Reports from local book dealers show that the following were the "best sellers" during the past week:

	Fiction.
(1.)	"A Far Country"	Churchill
(2.)	"Jaffery"	Locke
(3.)	"Sundown Slim"	Knibbs
(4.)	"Pollyanna Grows Up"	Porter
(5.)	"Hepsey Burke"	Westcott
(6.)	"The Honey Bee"	Merwin
	Unclassified.
(1.)	"Defenseless America"	Maxim
(2.)	"The Little Man and Other Satires"	Galsworthy
(3.)	"The Breath of Life"	Burroughs
(4.)	"The Lie"	Jones
(5.)	"Yosemite and the High Sierras"	Williams
(6.)	"Paradise Found"	Upward

With judicial evidence he maintains that modern science is the result of the wizard's effort to cheat his clients; that the first temple was a tomb; that the crown of thorns is a symbol, not an instrument of torture; that the first gods were men, neurotic, geniuses; that savage religion was revolutionized by the discovery that the sun's heat was the cause of vegetable life—those and scores of other unsuspected or little-known premises are set up and defended.

If this book had appeared a generation ago, before Christianity lost much bigotry and superstition, it would have been to theology as the "Origin of Species" was to biology. Mr. Upward is a philologist and anthropologist too securely established for his opinions and deductions to be dismissed by scoffers' expletives. He meets theologians with ethnological facts that cannot sensibly be ignored.

WITH TIMBER CRUISERS.

IT'S troubles and humor that make life interesting; without humor to appreciate troubles they would be tragedies. Take Horace for instance. Horace gets about three times more space given over to him than any other of the "cruisers" making the notable run out of Silver City. Horace would irritate a mummy; he irritated the other members of the party unspeakably. But we enjoy him. Frazier, the chief, may be the best man in the forest service, but when it comes to being interesting, Frazier's astounding efficiency doesn't compare with Horace's sincere egotism, with Horace's bungling and bragging. The author saw the humor in Horace's lack of it and some of the bits in "The Log of a Timber Cruiser" are side-splitting. How Mark Twain would have rejoiced in inspecting Horace!

Consider this: When Horace is soberly bathing in some two feet of water a small party of beautiful campers suddenly debouch upon him. "'Back!' he cried hoarsely, his anguish manifest in an unnatural intonation. 'Back! Don't you see I'm here?'" But looking neither to the right nor the left, the fair campers passed sedately by him with no sign of recognizing Horace's existence—greatly to his amazement.

Horace eats too much and is forcibly put on a diet; he thinks the cook should wait on him and listens awe-stricken to the fluent and molten remarks from the cook on the subject. Yes, indeed, Horace is interesting. But perhaps he is not to blame. He is wealthy, his father is a Senator and Horace has about the same idea of himself as is inculcated in a Prussian Prince.

The book, however, doesn't devote all, nor the major portion of its attention to Horace. In it we learn of how timber cruisers work, of their dangers, pleasures; also something of woodcraft and considerable of the forestry service. Something like a hundred illustrations from photographs are also included, and Mr. Lawson has successfully written with the idea of keeping the reader interested.

EVOLUTION OF THE SONG.

THE SONG. By George P. Upton. A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago.

IN DESCRIBING the birth, evolution and functions of the song, Mr. Upton has written a volume unique in its interest, one disclosing the often picturesque origins of many songs that have come down to us on a flow of popularity extending, actually, over centuries.

Prefatorily the author says he has sought to trace the various functions of song, and attempted to explain why some of the simplest of the old songs live on, generation after generation, as fresh and forceful as when they were written, while so many of the higher and more elaborate musical forms perish or are soon forgotten. He points out that the song is of necessity simple because its influence begins in childhood, "it carries with it the marvelous power of association, and its magic vibrates the tender chords of memory . . . a little oldtime melody we may not have heard for years will revive sensations and memories, and its magic vibrates the tender chords of memory."

Love songs, those of sentiment, patriotic songs, drinking and hunting songs, as well as those of a sacred nature receive attention. It is interesting, but in no sense gratifying to learn that the tune of our national anthem was written for an English drinking song. Mr. Upton regretfully points out that the music for all of our patriotic songs have been borrowed from other lands.

One of the most timely features of the book is the inclusion of the patriotic songs that the present war has brought forth in the various nations. Relative to "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," he writes: "It is interesting to note that it is claimed that the British battle song was written in this country three years ago by one Harry Williams, as a vaudeville skit, which, if true, would offset our 'Star-spangled' melody, written nearly two hundred years ago for English tavern orgies. The real composer, however, is undoubtedly one Jack Judge, an English music hall performer."

An appendix gives a long list of "the old familiar songs" with the names of author, and a complete index is a commendable feature, being of exceptional aid for reference in a volume which, though rather small, contains a great quantity of unusual information.

ABLE CRITICISM.

JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL AS A CRITIC. By Joseph J. Reilly, M.A., Ph.D. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

EXCEPT that anything done well is worth doing, there is not much reason for Mr. Reilly's able analysis of James Russell Lowell's critical ability. Lowell is scarcely remembered as a critic; his opinions are seldom quoted, and outside of New England he is regarded for his poetry alone.

But as a work of literary criticism, as an example of graceful depreciation and convincing judgments, this volume is excellent. It shows that Lowell was, superficially, a brilliant writer; that he was biased, especially ignorant of history, lacked the power of concentration necessary to a long sustained mental effort, and seldom reinforced his opinions with arguments—the last being essential in criticism.

No effort is made to rob Lowell of a respectable place in American literature; but Mr. Reilly is desirous of putting him in the proper place. The internal evidence from Lowell's works, the quotations, references, citations show that Mr. Reilly has made long and studious preparation for this effective, comprehensive critique.

NEW NOVEL
Jaffery

By the Author of "The Fortunate Youth," "The Beloved Vagabond," etc.

This beautiful young savage, a product of Chicago stock-yards and the mountain fastnesses of Albania, was the widow of a Balkan war-correspondent. Jaffery had taken her into custody at his comrade's death.

Here is just the situation for the master hand of William J. Locke. This latest novel has the bright, whimsical vein that makes all his work so fascinating, and the "Lockean" characters are irresistible.

A Bit O' Love

is the title of the new three-act play

By JOHN GALSWORTHY

It is set in a "village of the West" in England. The theme centres about the young curate, a strange, beautiful character full of passion in restraint, who endures the unendurable in a spirit most truly Christian. It is Galsworthy at his best, told simply, with the setting of spring in the country and suffused with white moonlight.

JOINING THE ANGELS.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

"GREETINGS, John!"

"Greetings yourself, Jake," retorted Johnnie Powers, the good provider, for it was indeed he. "What seems to be denting your dome on this otherwise pleasant and peaceful afternoon?"

"I want to be an Angel, John," answered I, promptly.

"Great Scott, Jake," exclaimed the magnate. "Is it as tough as that? But, after all, perhaps it is best—best for you and best for me. Here," he added opening a drawer and producing a ponderous horse pistol, "take this and make a good job of it. You can go in the next room, but be careful not to muss up the place. Maybe I better hold your head for you. You might miss."

"Aw, don't be so smart," retorted I. "You know what I mean. I'm going out with the team."

"Oh, you are, eh? Well, I don't know about that. You're too old and feeble for a mascot, and we have a good man to cut the grass at the park now. Perhaps you might let your whiskers grow and be the goat."

"Not guilty," exclaimed I. "I'll be on the regular line-up."

"What's that?" cried Brother Powers in astonishment. "Does the boy wonder still think he can perform? The last time I saw you try to pitch you looked like old man Bender winding his watch with a can opener. Don't you know we've got too many men on the team already?"

"That's just it," retorted I. "You can peddle off about a dozen of them and take me on instead. I can work every day."

"That's news to me," replied the magnate. "I didn't know you could work at all. But, anyhow, you can't work me."

"Yes," said I, disregarding the interruption, "now that I am in good form you can fire about half your athletes and put some kale in your sock. With me on the firing line all you really need is a good receiver. I'll do the rest."

"I guess the court would appoint a receiver," said Powers grimly.

"Under my system," resumed I, "the home team wins all the games on its own grounds and this makes the bugs all happy. I've got it arranged to strike out every man that comes to the plate."

"Regards to Ty Cobb," exclaimed the magnate. "Say, you ought to get your system patented before Walter Johnson gets onto it.

"There'll be no infringement," retorted I. "Turn me loose in the box and I can deliver the goods."

"You ought to be delivering groceries in Boyle Heights this minute," interrupted Powers.

"As a starboard speedster," continued I calmly, "I've got 'em all fenced in. I travel at three gaits, and all of 'em are fast."

"I thought the fence had a gate in it," interrupted the magnate, as if in jest.

"Yes," resumed I. "I've got the rattler, the flea and the boomerang."

"Say!" exclaimed Porveso, "You better run over to the drug store and take something for it."

"Never mind," continued I loftily, "I don't have to pitch but three balls. The 'rattler' goes over with a hiss and scares the batter half to death; he strikes wildly at the 'flea' and it isn't there, and the 'boomerang' just naturally circles the bat and comes back to my hand. We don't really need a catcher, but we better have one in case of accident."

"I don't know about that," said the magnate. "We have accidents enough with our backstops as it is."

"My 'rattler,'" resumed I, "is a regular snake ball. It goes zig-zag and has so much steam that it makes a noise like a Stutz taking a 40 per cent. grade. The 'flea' stops right over the plate and the swish of the bat makes it break downward. Then it just simply falls to the ground and makes the batter look foolish. The 'boomerang' just loops the bat, or I can work it so that it will hit the bat and then bound right back ino my hands. It's a put out in any case."

"Fine business," snorted the leader. "But how are we going to dispense with our genial athletes? Don't you know that we have to produce at least seven men on the grounds?"

"Dummies," replied I, sententiously. "Pick 'em up at the gate. Glad to get in for the job."

"That's all right so far," said the boss. "But how about it when it is our turn at the plate? Are you going to do all the slugging?"

"Surest thing you ever knew," answered I with promptness. "We only need one run to win and I make that in the ninth inning. The other trips to the plate I strike out and that rests me."

"It may rest you, but it doesn't interest me," interrupted Powers with an attempt at a grin.

"Never mind," continued I calmly. "When it is time for the run I merely lift the ball over the fence and there you are."

"That's all very fine to talk about," argued the leader. "But don't you think the fans will get weary of a one-man club and want to see somebody else at the plate occasionally?"

"Not if the home team wins and you have a star performer," answered I. "If you win you get 'em at the gate and I figure that the sports will come all the way from Boston, Kokomo and Hoboken to study up my delivery. At 50 cents a head I ought to be good for about $13,264 a week."

"Great stuff!" exclaimed the leader, with some enthusiasm, "and how much of that do you want?"

"Well," answered I thoughtfully. "Give me the $264 and you can keep the rest."

"Fine," said Brother Powers. "But there's another matter; supposing the umpire gets peevish and orders you out of the game?"

"Nothing to it," answered I promptly. "I'll wear ear muffs so that I can't hear him.

"That might help some," agreed the boss. "I'll tell you what you do: You go and see Eddie Maier. If you can sell your system to him you come back to me and I'll give you $7.50 a week and half the score card privilege."

"Then I don't start out at once?" exclaimed I with astonishment.

"You bet you do," said Powers, grimly, "and if you don't start pretty quick I'll start something myself. Say! do you know where I think you learned to pitch?"

"No."

"Well, it was in a school of correspondence."

"Make that 'co-respondent' and I'll have you pinched," said I, hotly. "I can prove an alibi."

But can you wonder the Angels slumped when the boss passes up an opportunity like that?

SCIENCE PROGRESS.

Coal Tar Explosives.

[Youth's Companion:] The remarkable destructive power of modern guns, which are able in a brief time to wreck the strongest forts, was made possible mainly by the recent discovery of certain new kinds of high explosives derived from coal tar. They are "insensitive"; that is, they are so reluctant to explode that they are as safe to handle as corn meal or baking power. Shells filled with them can pass through the thickest armor without bursting—withstanding both the shock of impact and the enormous heat generated. Not until the shells have penetrated the armor are they set off by the fuses they carry.

It is that power to penetrate before bursting that gives the projectiles their formidable character as destroyers of permanent structures. When they finally do explode they cause wholesale ruin, for the great volume of gases suddenly set free can make room for itself only by a wide dispersal of the surrounding material, whether it is stone, or cement, or what not.

From coal tar are obtained such substances as benzene and toluene, which, treated with nitric acid, makes explosives of the insensitive kind. One of them, called "T. N. T." (short for trinitrotoluene,) has been largely used by the Germans in the present war for filling shells.

In accounts of the fighting that is now going on in Europe, you read of the use of melinite by the French, and of lyddite by the British. The Japanese, in their recent attack on the Germans in China, used Shimose. All three of these high explosives are one and the same thing; namely, picric acid, which is derived from coal tar, and which is melted and poured into the projectiles.

Electricity's Passage Through Metals.

[Boston Transcript:] Exactly how electricity passes through metals is a difficult question on which to express a definite opinion, notwithstanding the essentially commonplace nature of the phenomenon. Electricians and physicists have been evolving theories on the subject for years past. The earlier theories of metallic conduction assumed the current to be carried by atoms of the metal charged with electricity. These theories failed because it was found that there was no movement of the atoms with the current. The subject was at a standstill until the discovery of corpuscles, or electrons, showed that electricity could be carried by other bodies besides atoms. Theories were developed which supposed that metals had free electrons disseminated through them, and that these carried the current. This point of view is very attractive, because it accounts not only for metallic conduction, but also for the close connection between the conductivities for heat electricity, which is a striking feature for pure metals, and also for the thermo-electric properties of metals.

Metals at Absolute Zero.

[Springfield Republican:] How Prof. Kamerlingh Onnes of Leyden obtained the large supply of helium gas that has made possible his extraordinary demonstrations of the properties of metals at temperatures verging on absolute zero was told recently to a Brooklyn Institute audience by Prof. Robert W. Wood of Johns Hopkins University, Helium is very rare, so rare that a bulb of gas no bigger than a hen's egg costs $5, and there is probably not a laboratory in America that possesses more than enough to inflate a child's toy balloon. Prof. Onnes needed a large quantity for his experiments; if he had set out to buy it he would have had to corner the world's supply. The American Welsbach Company, recognizing the scientific importance of Onnes's experiments and having one of the very few factories using the materials out of which helium could be extracted, made about 500 liters of the gas especially for Prof. Onnes and sent it to him in a huge steel bomb as a gift. It is this 500 liters that has enabled the Leyden professor to make the experiments around absolute zero.

Absolute zero is that point at which a substance possesses no heat whatsoever and at which a pure gas would cease to exert pressure. It is supposed to be somewhere around—280 degrees centigrade. Helium gas liquefies at about 15 degrees above absolute zero, a temperature much lower than even hydrogen, which liquefies at —252 centigrade.

One of the most important discoveries made by Prof. Onnes with liquefied helium was that the resistance of metals to electricity almost vanishes as they approach absolute zero. For example, a thread of mercury little bigger than a hair conducts a current of electricity that melts a bar of copper half an inch thick. He believes that at absolute zero there would be no resistance whatever to the electric current, so that enough to light and heat New York, to run all its factories and all its cars could be carried by the finest wire.

[Boston Transcript:] There has been a great increase in wireless telegraphy as shown in the latest radio signal book, "Radio Stations of the World." Twelve years ago a complete list of all ships and shore stations filled only five pages of about the same size as the 200 pages now necessary for the list. At present there are 7000 ship stations. These require more than 15,000 licensed radio men to operate them, while more than 1000 land stations with a working force of 3200 men are required to handle the business which originates on board, or for these vessels. These 1000 land stations are scattered all over the world from the Arctic to the Antarctic, in the tropics, the jungles of South America, Africa, and India, in the Far East and in the Far West, even in the middle of the Sahara desert. In addition to the commercial stations the records of the United States licensed amateur stations show that about 2000 amateurs have been licensed in the last few years to operate their own stations. This number is a small percentage of the total amateur stations scattered throughout the country, as several thousand of them are operated under conditions which do not require a license.

Why Is Bad Air?

[Baltimore American:] Air is bad, when it is overheated, when it contains an excess of moisture, and when it is chemically contaminated. This is the conclusion of the New York State Commission on Ventilation, as summarized by Prof. C. E. A. Winslow, chairman, in the official organ of The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Prof. Winslow shows that while it has been a matter of common belief for a long time that stagnant air was bad for the body, until recently no one knew why this was so. The New York State Commission on Ventilation has definitely proven two counts against bad air, one of them for the first time in history, and will probably prove others later on.

The first indictment against bad air shows that an increase in temperature beyond the normal 70 degrees produces serious derangement of the vaso-motor mechanism of the body, resulting in a rise of temperature, increased pulse, and a lowering blood pressure, with a corresponding decrease in efficiency, both physical and mental. In addition to this, overheating conduces to an undesirable congestion of the mucous membranes of the nose, thus possibly paving the way for colds, sore throats and attacks of various germ diseases.

The work of the commisson also proves that chemical accumulations in the air as a result of air stagnation, bring about a decreased appetite for food, which in turn must have an unfavorable effect on the entire body. In the commission's experiments the people living in fresh air ate 4½ to 13 per cent. more than those living in stagnant air.

Recipe to Darken Gray Hair

This Home Made Mixture Darkens Gray Hair and Removes Dandruff.

To a half pint of water add:
Bay Rum 1 oz.
Barbo Compound a small box
Glycerine 1-4 oz.

These are all simple ingredients that you can buy from any druggist at very little cost, and mix them yourself. Apply to the scalp once a day for two weeks, then once every other week until all the mixture is used.

A half pint should be enough to darken the gray hair, rid the head of dandruff and kill the dandruff germs. It stops the hair from falling out, and relieves itching and scalp diseases. It promotes the growth of the hair and makes harsh hair soft and glossy.

Justice Fred Obst of St. Louis recently cut short an eviction proceeding against two mining men who have been out of work for a year. He said he fully understood the plight of the two men, and would be forced to dispossess them, but he would make it all right by sending the men to Oklahoma, where harvest men are needed. He then handed the men $20 with which to pay their fares, with the advice that they get West as quickly as possible, and work north to the Dakotas. The court said the men could have work all summer if they did this.

The United States Life Saving Benevolent Association has presented medals for bravery to fifteen officers and men of the American line steamship Philadelphia who took part in the rescue of the crew, numbering thirty-three, of the oil steamer Chester, which sank in midocean in a storm last February. Capt. Arthur R. Mills, Chief Officer H. Gaudy and First Officer T. H. Lyons and twelve men of the Philadelphia's crew received medals. With the exception of the captain they composed the crews of two small boats which took the men of the Chester off the sinking steamer.

Five thousand dollars each is left to St. Joseph's Hospital and St. Agnes's Hospital, New York City, to endow beds, by the will of Thomas A. McElmell, a naval officer. Mr. McElmell died at St. Luke's Hospital on May 29, leaving an estate valued at $100,000 and upwards. In making his bequests to the hospitals Mr. McElmell directed that the bed in St. Joseph's Hospital be named in memory of his brother, the late Rear-Admiral Jackson McElmell, U.S.N., and the bequest for the bed in St. Agnes's is to be named in memory of the testator. The Sisters of St. Francis of Philadelphia are asked to superintend the establishing of this bed. A bequest of $300 is made to the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, Pennsylvania Commandery, of which the testator was senior vice-president. The money is for the Shober Library.

ITALY'S SPEEDY SUBMARINES.

BUILDERS HAVE TAKEN THE LEAD IN CONSTRUCTION.

A Mother, or Station Ship, has also been Provided as a Supply Base for the Under-water Craft, and for the Relief of Injured Craft and Their Salvage When Sunken.

[Scientific American:] Eight years ago the Fiat-San Giorgio startled the naval world by turning out submarines capable of making fourteen knots an hour on the surface. Since then they have shown engineering initiative in inventing and building a special type of dock designed for the testing of submarines at the surface, but simulating all of the hydrostatic conditions incident to deep submergences, thus doing away with the uncertain characteristic of the ordinary method of testing these boats for water tightness by lowering them, without any one aboard to locate leaks, in waters 200 feet deep. The Laurenti dock has already proven its value in Italy.

Now, the same progressive firm has designed and built an extremely novel mother, or station ship, for submarines, and again the Italian engineers have blazed the way. This new craft is at once a supply base, a place for the refreshment of the wearied crews of submarines, a repair base, a testing and drydock and a speedy salvage vessel capable of raising one of her sunken flotilla and able to carry the injured craft into port. Other nations have salvage ships for submarines, but there their utility commonly ends, and besides, they are clumsy and of very moderate radius of action and speed.

As a basis for this many-sided adjunct to submarine service, the designers planned a mother ship for a flotilla of six submersibles, each of about 370 tons submerged displacement, the idea being that while four of the boats should be actively engaged, two could be held in reserve and made thoroughly fit for relieving their active sister craft. Thus, if occasion required, all six of the submersibles could be sent to sea, but under normal circumstances a third of the force could be undergoing repairs or receiving any other attention which the exigencies of their duties might impose.

The mother ship in question is a craft having a normal sea-going displacement of about 3000 tons, capable of developing a sustained maximum sea speed of fourteen knots an hour, and at a cruising speed of ten knots an hour carrying sufficient fuel to give her a radius of action of 4000 miles. The vessel is fitted with twin screws, and each shaft is actuated by a heavy oil Diesel motor developing something like 1100 horse power, these motors using the same fuel as that which she carries in her supply tanks for refilling the fuel chambers of the submarines. Indeed, the idea is that the men qualifying for submarine service shall first learn the management of the mother ship's internal combustion engines by way of a preliminary training, the operation of the motors for the under-water boats being substantially identical.

In order to save the motive mechanisms of the submersibles as far as possible, the mother ship will charge the batteries of the submarines as well as fill their tanks with compressed air, and will hold in reserve enough cells completely to refit two submarines in a few hours. The station ship will have a machine shop and foundry provided with facilities that will make possible all ordinary repairs, and she will carry a large supply of reserve fittings in addition to a store of thirty-six torpedoes. The mother ship has a battery of six powerful rapid-fire guns and should be quite strong enough to hold off a flotilla of destroyers. The mother ship will have a complement of 131, and in addition ample accommodations for 120 men from the submarines. She likewise boasts a commodious sick bay.

The ship has two hulls, the outer one of homogeneous iron and the inner and cylindrical hull of high tensile steel. This inner hull is really a Laurenti testing dock. This tubular structure has an over-all length of 210 feet and a diameter of 23 feet, with available space for the housing, testing and repairing of a submersible 190 feet long. The forward end of this ship encased dock is permanently sealed, but the after-end is provided with a globular caisson which can be removed and swung aside so as to flood the cylinder and to admit a submarine. The under-water boat reaches this dock entrance from the stern of the mother ship, which at that point is of a catamaran build.

For salvage duty, the mother ship is equipped with a number of powerful windlasses for lifting a sunken submarine. In addition to these, she carries two special boats for diving service, and, of course, all of the needful suits and apparatus for the divers themselves. The loss of the F-4 and the manner in which the salving of that craft has limped should emphasize our own need of a mother ship or mother ships patterned after the sort the Italians have given to the world.

PERSONAL—

the noted palmist, of London, England, may be consulted at 322 SOUTH SPRING STREET, by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS, FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

WANTED—
ASK THE MAN WITH EXPERIENCE.
Ask him which he'd rather have—real estate or an automobile—Look ahead a year and see which YOU would rather have. The machine will then be that much nearer junk, while real estate cannot help but be worth more in this part of the country, and the longer you own it the better off you'll be—the reverse of an automobile.

We have the following properties to exchange for automobiles of equal present cash value:

Actual equity of $1500 in nice 6-room Hollywood house, rented to good tenants, and more than taking care of the investment, which is something that a machine will not do.

Actual $700 equity in beautiful $1000 Sierra Madre lot. Loans on these properties were secured in the open market and you can tell from this alone that the values are correct.

Actual $7500 equity in 124-foot lot in the very choice Wilshire district. Will take automobile up to $2000 as part payment on this. You, Mr. Eastern Man, who do not care to take car back with you, nor to sacrifice it for cash, convert your holdings in this manner and you'll be shaking hands with yourself on your next visit here.

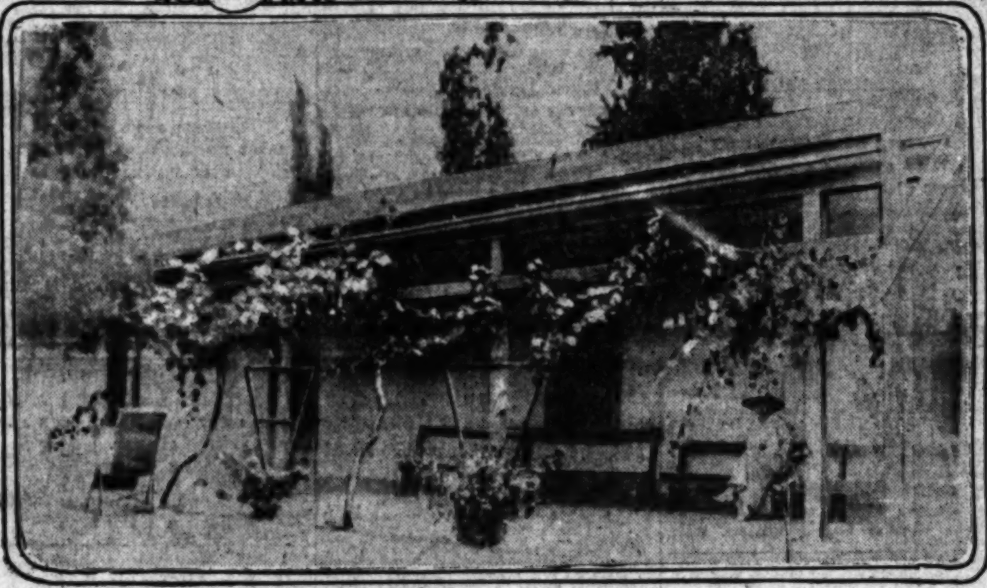
Glimpses of Largest Body of Land Ever Subdivided in Los Angeles City Limits.

State Highway (Old Ventura Road), and oaks that give "Encino Rancho" its name.

The old stone ranch house

Original homestead, now blacksmith shop.



Old adobe "bunk house.

Points of interest in old Encino Rancho.

This old domain in the heart of the San Fernando Valley remained intact until the city by annexation had taken it in. Now it is to be laid out in five-acre suburban estates.

New Era.

OLD ENCINO RANCHO TO BE CUT UP FOR MARKET.

Quarter of Forty-six-hundred-acre Holding in the Annexed District of San Fernando Valley Slated for Immediate Subdivision — Property is One of Last of the Old Southland Domains.

ANOTHER of the great land domains of old California, one of the very few in the Southland that has remained intact through all the sweeping progress of the past decade, is about to pass under the sway of the subdivider. This time it is the Rancho de Los Encinas, generally known as the Encino ranch, a huge square of land that has lain undisturbed in the center of the San Fernando Valley, while all around it have been springing up the modern towns and rich farming communities carved out of the old Van Nuys-Lankershim ranches.

It is a strange and striking circumstance that the day of the cutting up of the Encino Rancho should have been put off until it had actually been encompassed within the municipal boundaries of Los Angeles, yet such is the case. Every foot of the property is included in the San Fernando Valley annexation district recently taken into the city, and the big tract, under the plans worked out for its development, consequently becomes a city subdivision. As such it will be the largest body of land ever put on the market at one time within the limits of Los Angeles.

The property has been taken over from the Amestoy Estate Company by W. H. Hay, a Los Angeles real estate man who has been identified with a number of notable subdivision enterprises in and near this city. Mr. Hay secures the property under both a sales agency agreement and an option to purchase, and will at once offer nearly a quarter of the 4600 acres or more comprising the holding for sale in five, ten and twenty-acre parcels.

The option figure is not made public, but it is understood that the owners have in recent years refused offers of over $1,000,000 for the ranch.

ONE LEAGUE SQUARE.

The Encino ranch is almost exactly two and three-quarter miles square. Nearly all old legal documents describe it as "a league each way." It extends from the low, oak-covered foothills at the southern edge of the valley north almost to Sherman Way. At its northeast corner the holding is about a mile west of the town of Van Nuys. The property is sixteen miles from the center of Los Angeles.

The old Ventura road, now a part of the State highway system, extends across the southern end of the ranch, skirting the hilly portion. This fine paved roadway has been lined with ornamental electroliers from South Sherman Way west to the western end of the valley. It has been parked to a width of 120 feet and bordered with trees for a considerable part of that distance. The installation of electroliers along both sides of the nearly three miles of highway passing through the Encino ranch was only recently completed by the Amestoy estate, and the parking and planting of the same stretch of roadway has already been started.

The portion of the ranch to be put on the market by Mr. Hay at this time comprises about 1000 acres lying along both sides of the State highway. A large portion of this land is covered with the huge old live oaks that a generation ago gave the property its name. The land will be sold for suburban country estates. The hills south of the highway are broken with numerous wooded canyons and have the picturesqueness common to the entire southern end of the valley.

UNDER AQUEDUCT.

The rest of the ranch, lying to the north of the State highway, is under cultivation, 1600 acres being at the present time in beets and the remainder in barley and wheat. The beet land is now being irrigated with water from the Zelzah Canal, the temporary ditch constructed under the direction of Chief Aqueduct Engineer Mulholland for the service of some 12,000 acres of middle valley lands, pending the completion of the permanent San Fernando Valley pipe lines. The date of the opening of the strictly agricultural portion of the ranch has not as yet been determined upon.

A feature of interest in connection with the holding is the fact that the Los Angeles River rises almost in the exact center of the ranch, its source being a large spring. This spring is marked on all government maps.

One of the plans in contemplation is the creation of a townsite, to be known as El Encino, at a place on the State Highway adjoining and including the plot of ground on which are clustered the old buildings of the ranch. One of the attractions of the place is a bubbling spring of warm mineral water that for more than half a century has kept a large pool full to the brim. Here it is proposed to build a permanent bath house to replace an old frame structure that has stood over the spring for many years. As an extra resort feature it is proposed to convert the old stone ranch house into a wayside cafe that will have all the

FINE APARTMENTS FOR WEST ADAMS.

PLANS OUT FOR ATTRACTIVE NEW IMPROVEMENT.

Structure to Have Many Unique Features, Including Mezzanine Floors in Larger Suites, Water Filtration and an Automatic Sprinkler System.

One of the most notable improvements projected in Los Angeles thus far in 1915 is a four-story and basement apartment house of modern construction and appointment to be built by Mrs. Ella H. Potts in the fashionable West Adams district. Plans have just been completed by the California Architectural and Construction Company, which firm, it is announced, will start work on the structure at once.

R. L. Chapin, formerly proprietor of the Young apartments at Seventeenth and Grand, has taken a ten-year lease on the property, to date from the day the building is ready for occupancy. Whilton & Hahn acted as brokers in this transaction.

The apartments will occupy a site 120x150 feet in size, on the north side of West Adams between Hope and Palm drive. The building itself will cover a ground area of 120x113 feet, being in the shape of a capital "H." It will be set back twenty-five feet from the sidewalk line on West Adams street.

The structure will be of brick construction, with ruffled brick facing and terra cotta trim. Architecturally it will follow the lines of the Italian Renaissance. Provision is made in the plans for 160 rooms, to be divided into three, four, five and six-room suites. The main interior finish will be in birch, the lobby being in solid mahogany, and the ballroom in old rose and white enamel. The floors throughout will be of oak.

The place wil be unique in many ways. The apartments will be rented as unfurnished family suites, each as complete in itself as a detached home. Every apartment will have its own vestibule entrance from the main corridors, its reception hall, dressing-room and breakfast-room in addition to the rooms ordinarily included in apartment-house suites.

The five and six-room suites will be so arranged as to have their main rooms on one floor and their bedrooms on the floor above. Included among the rooms for general use there will be in addition to the lobby and ballroom, a reception-room, card-rooms, billiard-room and men's lounging-room.

The structure will have a filtration system providing every apartment with pure water. Two elevators will be installed. In the basement will be maintained a commissary from which the tenants may supply themselves with groceries without leaving the building. It is also proposed to equip the property with a complete automatic sprinkler system, something never before attempted in a Los Angeles apartment house. There will be a garage for twenty machines at the rear of the site.

The estimated cost of the project will be about $120,000. One of three flats standing on the site is now being removed as the first step in clearing the ground.

AUTO MEN BUY IMPERIAL LANDS.

SAN DIEGO AND TEXAS MANUFACTURERS MAKE HEAVY PURCHASES IN VALLEY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BRAWLEY, June 19.—Two large realty deals transferring north-end property were consummated during the week and a coincidence is that each purchaser is at the head of an automobile accessory manufacturing company.

The biggest deal was the sale of the Pearsal ranch of 1200 acres near here to H. H. Timken of Canton and San Diego, a maker of automobile axles and bearings. The consideration was announced as $150,000 cash. A feature of the transfer which did not escape attention was that Pearsall had never had a dollar of mortgage on the land. With several associates Mr. Timken is now setting out 18,000 grape fruit trees near Heber.

The second deal was the purchase by B. Quick of Marfa, Texas, president of the Marfa Manufacturing Company, of a 160-acre ranch in the north end which he expects to plant to corn. The sale was made through H. H. Clark and E. A. DeBlois, acting with Best & Griffin. The sale price was not given out.

FOR SALE—

WHY PAY RENT
WHEN YOU CAN SECURE A FINE HOME
LIKE THIS
AT SUCH A TREMENDOUS SACRIFICE?
$15,500—PROPERTY WORTH—$15,500

THIS WEEK OWNER WILL TAKE
$11,500 $11,500 $11,500

When Noah Webster defined the word "BARGAIN" he must have been thinking of this property. A thoroughly well built 2-story 11-room house on a large 60-foot lot with plenty of light and sunshine and with specially treated grounds. All this combined with an elaborate and artistic interior finish, is being offered at a price far below actual cost.

Reception room beautifully finished in curly birch, large living room in Juana Costa mahogany, commodious dining room paneled in solid oak with artistic buffet, dainty breakfast room and cosy den, modern kitchen in white enamel, maid's room and bath, screen porch with stationary tubs, cement basement, heater, furnace, etc.

Artistic staircase leading to second floor which is entirely finished in white enamel and contains four fine big sleeping chambers, large enclosed sleeping porch, two splendid tile bathrooms and shower, linen closet, extra rear servants' stairway, etc. Large double garage, cement driveway, cement porches, fine lawn, flowers, etc.

Now don't forget the one big important FACT, this property must be sold immediately. There is a mortgage of $10,000 which can remain or be paid. Let us show you this BIG BARGAIN.

"THE PLAIN UNVARNISHED TRUTH"
CONCERNING THIS BIG BARGAIN IS:
THE OWNER POSITIVELY MUST RAISE
SOME MONEY AT ONCE.
THAT'S WHY
YOU CAN GET THIS $17,500 HOME
FOR ONLY
$12,500 $12,500 $12,500

But don't think this is a permanent offer, because it's not. The owner said: "If you can get an offer of $12,500 before 12 o'clock next Saturday I will sacrifice my lovely home, but I must have money THIS WEEK."

This large 12-room house is new and has never been occupied and is located on a big 60-foot lot on high ground in the Wilshire district. Absolutely up-to-date in every respect and has every modern appointment. Large double garage for two machines; well improved grounds, cement drive, etc. Surrounded by beautiful homes and only a short distance from Wilshire boulevard. Everything high class.

The fact that the owner needs money NOW and needs it badly is the reason for the exceptionally low price. But he must have it at once. SO DON'T DELAY. Call and see us, Monday.

ALSO WE HAVE

8 ROOMS, REDUCED FROM $8000 TO $6250.

IT IS MOVING DAY IN CALIFORNIA.

The readers of our dailies perhaps noticed recently that one of our wealthy citizens, to provide a place for a garden fete, has moved a three-story brick apartment and two residences intact and set them upon new foundations in a near-by district. The CO-OPERATING BROKERS, whose names appear below, can excel this feat. They can remove that EASTERN residence, vacant lot, flat building, business block and even the OLD FARM to Southern California. See our list of income properties offered for exchange in last Sunday's TIMES. If you want to MOVE any kind of property call on any of the following romantic atmosphere of the days gone by.

Old Encino Rancho.

INTERESTING HISTORY.

The Encino ranch has been in the possession of the Amestoy family for more than a quarter of a century, having been purchased by Domingo Amestoy from Simon F. Gless in 1889. The heirs of the purchaser formed a company and incorporated in 1900. The members of this corporation are P. D. Amestoy, president; J. P. Amestoy, secretary; John B. Amestoy, ranch manager, M. F. Amestoy, A. J. Amestoy, Mrs. Juanita A. Gless, Mrs. Louis Sentous and Mrs. Chas. Wells.

The history of the Encino ranch prior to the ownership of the Amestoys is somewhat sensational. Probably no other old-time holding in Southern California was ever the battle ground of litigation so extensive or complicated as was the "square league" in the heart of the San Fernando Valley.

Early records show that a large portion of the tract was granted by Pio Pico, as governor of the department of the Californias under the Mexican regime, to three San Fernando Mission Indians, known as Roman, Francisco and Roque, on July 18, 1845. In 1855 the ranch is shown to have been in possession of Rita, the daughter of Francisco, and wife of Vicente de la Osa.

The complications that beset all claimants of title to the property for decades afterward, down to a final and definite settlement of all issues as recently as 1912, had its origin, just after the death of Vicente de la Osa in 1861, in the question of whether the husband or wife had owned the rancho. The troubles over the property were not limited as to variety, ranging from confiscation proceedings for back taxes to foreclosures under mortgages, but one disturbing element could always be counted upon to bob up whenever things began to get untangled sufficiently to make it appear that some claimant was about to settle down in peaceful possession. That was the old question of whether Vicente de la Osa in marrying Rita, the Indian, had also married her ranch as well. It was the claim of the Indian wife that was sustained in the end.

The list of those who at different times claimed all or portions of the Encino ranch on one pretext or another would fill a small volume. Numbered among these claimants were a host of lawyers to whom interests and prospects had been assigned for services. Both legitimate and illegitimate descendants kept flocking to the courts as the years went on. Some of the cases were sensations in their day.

The final chapters of the story involved the acquisition of the ranch by Eugene Garnier and his consequent loss of it in the late '70s, through failure to meet an $18,000 loan made from the old Farmers & Merchants Bank of Los Angeles. The next owner, Gaston Oxarart, acquired the place through sheriff's sale, and straightway instituted proceedings in court and by purchase for the clearing away of as many clouds to the title as he could get at.

Simon F. Gless, the executor of Oxarart's estate, had to combat among other complications a suit based on the unusual allegation that Oxarart before his death had executed in writing an agreement to surrender the ranch back to Garnier at any time the latter could produce a sum of money equal to the amount of his original bank loan. Successfully weathering this storm, Gless consolidated the various interests and cleared the atmosphere generally before transferring the ranch to the Amestoys.

The buildings on the Encino ranch are among the most interesting in Southern California. One, the original adobe house, dates back far into the Mexican period of California history. It is now used as the ranch blacksmith shop. The principal structure dates back to Civil War times and is a two-story ranch house built of stone. It resembles, strangely enough, the old stone colonial dwellings of Pennsylvania rather than those of early California. An adobe house more than 100 feet long and almost covered with an ancient grape vine has been used for a generation as a "bunk house." The whole group is framed in a setting of gigantic live oaks.

APARTMENTS AND FLATS.

Many New Income Improvements Projected All Over Los Angeles. Large Structure for Ninth Street.

New apartment-house and flat projects are reported by local designers and builders as follows:

R. H. Arnold of the Alta Planing Mill Company is about to start a three-story apartment-house at Ninth and Valencia streets. The building will contain thirty apartments of two and three rooms each. The site is now being cleared. Plans for a three-story apartment-house to be erected by J. N. Simmons on Harvard boulevard near Pico street have been prepared by the L. F. & S. Syndicate. C. F. Gordon has drawn plans for a two-story frame apartment-house to be erected by Mrs. Susan V. Kernaghan at Second and Emerald streets. Work is about to be started on a two-story brick store and apartment building for Otto F. Schwartz at Sixty-first and Main streets.

W. C. Pennell has completed plans for a large flat projected by Miss Helen Matthewson for a site on Hobart boulevard near Wilshire boulevard. The contract has been let for a flat to be built by J. W. Resk at Heliotrope drive and Clinton street. Mrs. T. Burstein will start a flat on Boston street near Figueroa this week. Plans have been prepared for a flat to be built by Charles Dodge at No. 1811 Western avenue. J. H. Smalies is about to start two flats at New Hampshire and Eighth streets. L. L. Jones is drawing plans for a flat he will build for himself at Leeward street and Magnolia avenue.

READY FOR MARKET.

Announcement is made of the plan of the Mecca Development Company of this city to subdivide and place upon the market 2000 acres of land at Mecca in the Coachella Valley. The land will be cut into five-acre parcels, and is said to be suitable for vegetables, figs and grapes, as well as for dates, which are the staple product of the district. Four wells have already been sunk. The holding adjoins the town of Mecca.

COLLEGE SELLS PART OF SITE.

One of the most important realty transfers announced in Los Angeles this year is the sale of 326 feet of frontage on the west side of Grand avenue, beginning at the alley just south of Seventeenth street and extending to the north end of the old St. Vincent's College building at Grand and Washington, with a uniform depth of 331 feet. The board of St. Vincent's College was the seller and E. Conde Jones of Pasadena, the buyer. The consideration is announced at $250,000. R. L. Tatum represented the purchaser and A. Kenton Pope the sellers.

St. Vincent's College bought this portion of its Grand avenue holdings twenty-two years ago, paying $4200 for the ground. The new owner intends to subdivide the land into thirteen lots, after carrying Eighteenth street through the center of the property from Grand avenue to Hope street.

The deal for the property was closed several days ago, but was publicly announced yesterday for the first time. Since the transaction Mr. Jones has sold to Mary H. Spires, through the agency of Mr. Tatum, a lot on Grand avenue adjoining the alley south of Seventeenth street for a given consideration of $31,500. The site is 41x131 feet in size.

Since the main transaction also, Mr. Pope has purchased for himself 50x150 feet of the property on what will be the south side of Eighteenth street, 181 feet west of grand avenue, paying a given consideration of $20,000. It is the announced intention of the buyer to build a four-story apartment house on the site.

Fact and Comment.

ing such pressure as they can to bear in support of their schemes. The councilmen may be convinced that the particular enterprise under discussion is of sufficient importance to warrant its being carried out by the city as a whole, but they are afraid to say so. The pressure is increased, and delegations sweep in with petitions. The promoters of the scheme know the council's reluctance to make a general municipal project of the undertaking and take advantage of the situation.

By and by the thing goes through under the Vrooman Act or its amended substitute and a host of harassed property owners awake to find that the cost of a great public improvement that will mean no more to them than to others miles away has been saddled upon them. Such a process as this has been followed out for years in the modernizing of the fastest growing city on the continent.

Time for Change.

It is time for a change in the methods of carrying out public improvements. The special assessment was designed in the first place to make it possible to go ahead with needed improvements without a resort to general bond issues. Its originators may never have dreamed to what extent the injustices possible under the system would be carried out. One thing is certain: The City of Los Angeles as a city can afford to pay for all the improvements of general benefit it really needs. It can't afford, in fact, to deny itself the improvements that it does really need. The others in nine cases out of ten had better wait.

Bonds for improvements that spell the upbuilding of whole sections of the city and which mean important development, higher valuations and general benefit resulting in profit to all would probably never be turned down by the voters of Los Angeles. Los Angeles needs at this moment several great improvements that properly come under this classification. The people as a whole, it is certain, do not want these projects forced upon special assessment districts. The distress arising from this sort of thing has been too general for any to be unaware of the injustice of the plan.

There must be no more such proceedings as those that led to the enlargement and improvement of Exposition Park, for example. The assessment district that paid for that work had no more direct interest in it than those living in Boyle Heights or in the western Wilshire district. Exposition Park is a city, county and State playground and educational center, and yet the small homes of southwest Los Angeles were assessed for it.

The enabling act which will permit cities and counties to unite in projects of benefit to both promises to be a good thing all around. What we want now is some sort of enabling act that will make it possible for the people of limited districts to escape having to pay for projects benefiting the whole city.

RECORD HARVEST.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CALIPATRIA, June 19.—The barley harvest around Calipatria has been so large that the first preparations made to accommodate it have proved inadequate. As soon as it was apparent that the warehouse of the Globe Grain and Milling Company was not going to be large enough for the crop, the Newmark Grain Company stepped in and erected another warehouse. The floor of this structure was no sooner down than the grain began to come in and now as the final touches are being put on the building, it is filled to its capacity.

In addition to both of these warehouses being full, there have been over twenty cars of barley shipped out and more cars are now being loaded. This is one of the reasons for the Southern Pacific's haste in erecting a new freight depot here. Calipatria now has shipping facilities equal to any in the valley.

There were over 20,000 acres in barley around this new town and from this it is believed there will be close to 500,000 sacks of grain.

COMMERCIAL.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

The eastern and local market on Valencia oranges continues to be exceptionally strong and promises well for the many Southern California growers who have a large crop. Fruit is going to be very cheap, however, this year, and all indications point to a flooded market. A car of White Astrachan apples of a superior grade was unpacked yesterday and distributed to the various dealers. The first seedless Sultana grapes are now arriving and they are bringing $1.25 a crate. A peculiar situation exists in cherries. As a general rule cherry season is over by this time of the year, but Los Angeles is still receiving cherries of an excellent quality, but not in much bulk.

Saturday was a good day in the local produce market, there being a large amount of buying and selling at satisfactory prices. Quotations of commodities were practically the same as the day previous. The warm weather continues to create a brisk demand for melons of all kinds and the brokers are having no difficulty in disposing of their stock. Sonoma plums made their first appearance of the year and were promptly bought up at 7 cents a pound. Vegetables moved freely at firm prices. There were no sales on the local exchange, butter remaining strong and local ranch eggs, case count, being inactive. Receipts reported were 406 cases of eggs and 54,200 pounds of butter. A call for potatoes was lacking and there were no receipts of the same. Cheese arrivals were 11,000 pounds, a figure almost as large as that of Friday. Onions and beans came in to the extent of 995 crates of the former and 350 sacks of the latter. Receipts of apples were much larger than yesterday and 754 boxes were reported as having arrived.

WHEAT BULLS HANDICAPPED.

ABSENCE OF FOREIGN DEMAND AFFECTS THE MARKET.

Bearish Feeling is Made More Pronounced by Baltimore Dispatches that Export Sales for July-August Shipment are Much Less than They Were a Year Ago.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, June 19.—Disappointment regarding the absence of foreign demand finally became too much of a handicap against the bulls today in wheat. Quotations closed weak at the same as last night to ⅛ down. Corn showed a setback of ⅛ to ½@⅝, and oats of ¼@⅜ to ⅝@½. In provisions the outcome varied from 2½ decline to a rise of 7½. Assertions that it was only a question of time until Europe would be compelled to buy wheat seemed to lose in force when the session neared the finish and there has been no sign whatever of any immediate revival of export call. Bearish feeling in the wheat pit just before the close was made more pronounced by Baltimore dispatches that export sales for July-August shipments from there did not amount yet to one-tenth of the total at the corresponding time a year ago. Corn became heavy as a result of continued purchasing of Argentine cargoes for delivery at New York. Oats gave way in sympathy with wheat and corn. Strength in the hog market made provision prices average a little higher.

DUNKHORST IS REPORTED DYING.

CHICAGO, June 19.—Edward Dunkhorst, known to followers of boxers as "the human freight car" because of his great size, was reported dying here today. Dunkhorst fought James J. Jeffries and many other star heavyweights in his day.

How Terrifying.

L.A.C.C. WALLOPS MIDWICK IN HOT SLUGGING MATCH.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

THE LOS ANGELES team won by 16 to 9. But Midwick wound up the contest with a whirlwind try and made 4 runs and a hit in the last inning.

Charlie Van Loan kept score until the sixth inning, after which he declared this kind of baseball was utterly beyond him. After that Norwood Howard, Midwick's manager, took over the onerous task, and it was noticable that Midwick promptly improved.

Home runs were supplied in liberal dashes for the benefit of an elite gallery. On the Los Angeles side they were achieved by Artie Shafer, Everett Seaver and F. McCartney, and for Midwick by Rodman and Cadwallader, respectively. Cadawallader likewise made two of Midwick's six hits and was altogether an acquisition to his team.

Dusty Millar, playing for Los Angeles, created a sensation by receiving a ball on the place where his brain nominally exists, and bouncing it back to the pitcher therefrom. He scratched his pate with a suggestion that a fly might have alighted thereon, and received the plaudits of the crowd with a look of uncertainty.

At least one mamma suffered tortures of anxiety for fear she would applaud on the wrong side. For she had two noble and handsome sons in the persons of Charlie and Robert Thomas playing on those teams, one on either side. She had received strict injunctions to root for Los Angeles. Vide Robert. And Charlie would persist in distinguishing himself as pitcher for Midwick.

Bruce McNiel was caught trying to influence the umpire but as he had missed a fly earlier in the day, they declined to take cognizance of him as a real person.

Los Angeles: Runs, 16; hits, 17; home runs, 3; Shafer, Seaver, and McCartney; errors, 3.

NEW MANAGER FOR NEWARK FEDS.

NEWARK (N.J.) June 19.—Bill M'Ketchnie, third baseman of the Newark Federal League club, today, was appointed manager temporarily to succeed Bill Phillips. Failure of the Newarks to speed up and the six recent reverses they have suffered by one run margins led to the decision to make a change in managers.

LOTZ RETURNED TO CARD BALL CLUB

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, June 19.—Joe Lotz, a pitcher sent to the Seattle Northwestern League club by the St. Louis Nationals several weeks ago, was turned back to St. Louis today. Lotz pitched Seattle to victory the first two games he played here, but has not won a game since.

DICKSON KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, June 19.—Former State Senator George E. Dickson of Ellensburg, Wash., bearing a message from the Mayor of Spokane to the Mayor of Seattle, was killed today, when the Pathfinder car in the Chicago-to-Seattle relay automobile race, skidded off the road and turned turtle two miles east of Redmond.

Joe Fellows of this city is to leave for a trip into the Yosemite and a tour on up to Tahoe in a few days, accompanied by his wife and two eastern friends in his Franklin touring car.

TOO MUCH LOVE BEATS SEALS.

Slim Holds the Visitors to Four Bingles.

His Feet Improve, but are Still Troublesome.

Hook'em Smith Also Pitches Brilliant Game.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Slim Love, one of our hustling southpaws, yesterday skunked the Seals, 1 to 0, in a pitching duel that was noble and uplifting.

Hook'em Smith, the well-known San Francisco curveologist, was on the right-handed end of the argument. Both pitching guys were wound up in great shape and base hits were almost as scarce as cottontail rabbits on Broadway.

FEW HITS.

Slim made the terrific Seal sluggers look sick and all run down by holding them to four safe blows. By allowing only six, Hook'em made the Angel fence-busters also look somewhat feeble and emaciated.

Where Hook'em made his mistake was in trying to knock the front out of the grand stand with a wild pitch in the seventh, allowing Wolter to score the one run needful from third base. Hook'em has been in the business long enough to know that it is not wise to make a wild pitch with a guy on third base. Therefore, the logical conclusion is that he didn't mean to, and that the wild pitch was purely an accident.

GOOD CONTROL.

At other times his control was perfect. He did not issue a pass. And yet when faced by this one crisis he was unable to govern the pill. A crisis is the worst time in the world to make a wild pitch. No pitcher, when he feels that he is going to make a wild pitch, should pick out a crisis for the purpose. It were better for him to do so with no one on bases.

Slim was mainly the whole cheese. He figured in a double play which practically beat the Seals and made a hit. He relied almost entirely on his arm. His great success is attributed largely to the fact that he used his feet as little as possible. Tuesday his feet lost him the game. Since then he has been sending them to night school. They showed some improvement yesterday, and still Slim didn't have much faith in them. In the eighth Slim's feet ran away with him with the result that he almost tuckered himself out stretching a

Ten Days on Batteries.

BEARDSLEY IS AFTER ANOTHER WORLD'S MARK.

LAST December, when fourteen Beardsley electric cars driven by owners in a cross-country tour and mileage contest made an average of 100 1-10 miles—establishing a world's record for this number of cars—the news of this marvelous performance spread from coast to coast. It was a wonderful performance, yet many attributed the performance of these Beardsley electric cars to an extra long battery charge that could not be maintained for more than a single day. Many people who are not familiar with the accomplishments of the latest designs of electrics rather doubted that such a seemingly impossible feat could be accomplished.

Another test is to be made in which the actual mileage efficiency from a single charge will again be demonstrated.

Volney S. Beardsley and his associates have sufficient confidence in their car to believe that the performance made by the fourteen Beardsley electrics can not only be duplicated for one day, but for ten consecutive days, averaging 100 miles per day, or 1000 miles in ten days on ten individual charges.

Starting Tuesday, June 22, a Beardsley electric brougham—strictly stock model—will be driven by Mrs. Volney S. Beardsley. The first day's run will be over the valley boulevard to Ontario and return. The press will appoint women observers, one for each day's run, to accompany Mrs. Beardsley and vouch for the actual performance of the car. The observer appointed for Tuesday, June 22, is Mrs. A. S. Jones, No. 1122 West Seventh street.

DAILY REPORTS.

During the ten days of this demonstration The Times will announce daily the performance of the car made on the previous day's run and give the proposed route for the next day and the name of the official observer appointed.

The manufacturers of this popular car propose to select daily routes that will be a severe test on the car and instead of running up the daily mileage on level city pavements, to select hard cross-country runs.

Among these daily tours will be trips to Ontario and return, Orange county and return; around the shoestring route to San Pedro and Redondo; San Fernando road to San Fernando, across to the Ventura road and return via Cahuenga Pass; Long Beach and return, and other similar routes.

The car to be used will be a regulation stock Beardsley electric brougham, equipped with Gould batteries, Westinghouse motor and Houk wire wheels, which are all standard equipment on the Beardsley; tires will be Goodrich Silvertown Cord. An attempt will be made to show not only the long mileage feature, but the safety of inflated tires, especially of the Silvertown Cord type used to complete the ten consecutive days' run with the same air in all four tires and also to run the car for this length of time on the original pressure of air without adding additional pressure.

Should the mileage on any day's run fall below 100 miles, an attempt will be made on the following day to go beyond the 100 miles, so that the daily 100-mile average may be maintained. This will show conclusively the hard work that a Gould battery can stand, as the set of batteries used in this Bearsley electric car will be given a test more severe than ever subjected to in regular use.

DIFFERENT ROUTES.

As a different route will be taken on each one of the consecutive ten days, the charge of electricity made in the batteries will be identically the same as that made by any individual owner in his own private garage or charging station when his car is in every day use.

If this difficult performance can be accomplished it will be a great demonstration for this California built car and prove beyond question the long mileage features claimed by the Beardsley electric manufacturers.

Returning.

LOCAL PARTY MAKING TOUR.

ROUND TRIP FROM LOS ANGELES TO OHIO NEAR END.

Scenic Route Covered on Drive Across Continent Back to Old Home in East and After Visiting There Several Weeks Starts Return Jaunt to the Coast.

S. H. Burton of this city has arrived at Omaha on his return transcontinental trip. Mr. Burton and a party of four left Los Angeles April 8 in a Hudson 6-40 and motored east over the National Old Trails route through Northern Arizona, New Mexico and Kansas.

They visited Grand Canyon, the Cliff Dwellings, Petrified Forest and the many other attractive and interesting sights of this popular cross country route. Unfortunately the Burton party negotiated Kansas during a heavy rain storm and the hub deep mud along the Arkansas River bottoms continued through Missouri and well into Ohio.

After spending six weeks visiting relatives in the East Mr. Burton turned the Hudson toward the Pacific Coast and June 12 passed through Omaha, up to which point his car had traveled 5376 miles.

"Doc" Green, one of the best-known salesmen on auto row, last week joined the selling force of Earle C. Anthony, Inc., as outside salesman for the Packard "Twin-Six." Heretofore Anthony has sold all Packards at retail, but the greatly-increased production of Packards for the coming season has increased Anthony's Packard allotment to a point that will permit the appointment of Packard sub-dealers in the larger Southern California towns, and Green will attend to this end of the Packard sales. Green left the local Apperson branch to assume his new duties. Prior to his connection with the Apperson Green was for a number of years connected with the local Hudson agency.

TIRES IN HARD MOTOR SERVICE.

Tire records compiled by Don Lee at his different branches and forwarded to Manager Tom Wilkinson of the United States Tire Company's Los Angeles branch show some wonderful figures.

The demonstrator which was placed in service in Los Angeles last winter averaged 10,000 miles on the first four tires, and the second set was far from worn out after 7000 miles of service. Another Los Angeles demonstrator has seen 6000 miles of service, and the tires still are in good condition and should all exceed the 10,000-mile mark.

From San Francisco comes the report that more than 10,000 miles service was received from all four of the casings on the first demonstrator to be put into service there, and that the second is well on its way to a similar record.

Advices from Oakland indicate that the demonstrator there is close to the 10,000-mile mark, and similar service records are being achieved at Sacramento, Fresno and Pasadena.

MORE GLORY.

Another record was added to the list of Master carburetor achievements a week ago, when Jean Romano's Seattle-built Romano Special, driven by Rae Lentz, turned a half-mile on a half-mile track in 31s. and a mile in 1m. 8 3-5s. The car is powered with an eight-cylinder Hall Scott motor, which is equipped with a Master carburetor. Stock equipment on all Hall Scott power plants is supplied by the Master Carburetor Company.

RAINBOW BOAT DIPPED TODAY.

Bill Ruess's new single step hydroplane, known as Ruess's Mitchell, is to be launched today. The fast motor boat was built especially to compete in the motor boat races at San Francisco in the fall and is claimed to be one of the fastest power boats on the Pacific Coast.

The TRIBUTE TO INITIATIVE

One year ago, the V-type principle as applied to automobile engines was practically unknown in America. ¶Today it is the dominating influence in motor car development. ¶Announcements already made and to be made indicate how profoundly the future course of the industry has been affected by the Cadillac V-type "Eight." ¶In eagerness of demand, the Cadillac Company has never experienced anything like the existing conditions. ¶More than 12,000 Eight-Cylinder Cadillacs have been delivered and orders are in hand from dealers for practically as many more.

THE measure of a man's success is the influence which he exerts upon other men. ¶ It is not merely in what he says, or thinks, or even in what he does. ¶ It is determined by the extent to which he moulds and models other men to his way of speaking and thinking and doing. ¶ When the public mind or conscience begins to pattern itself after the mind and conscience of an individual—that individual has begun to taste of true greatness. ¶ And in a different, and perhaps in a lesser sense, that which is true of the individual, is true of the business institution. ¶ The success of a business institution is in proportion to the influence which it exerts upon the industry of which it is a part. ¶ When a great industry begins to shape its policies, its principles and its product after the pattern set by a single business institution—that one institution has become vastly more than a mere money-making machine. ¶ It has developed into a creative and a compelling force. ¶ The great man does not merely bring other men to his way of thinking. ¶ He induces them to translate those thoughts into deeds and into conduct. ¶ He causes them to abate and set aside their own judgment, and to substitute his clearer, better judgment. ¶ He persuades them to throw away something of their own and to substitute something of his which is better. ¶ The greatest of all victories is that bloodless triumph which comes of self conquest—the subjugation of self to that which is right and good. ¶ And its finest fruit is the peaceful conquest of other hearts and other minds. ¶ Again, in a different, and maybe in a lesser sense, this is true of business institutions. ¶ They have begun to taste of true success only when they have induced a great industry to abate, to abandon, to throw away, to substitute, to conform. ¶ Consider what it means to conquer in turn, by the silent force of example, the intellect of the draftsman, the designer, the engineer, the executive, the directing boards of other great institutions. ¶ Consider the dead weight of opposition which must be overcome in an organization before it can persuade itself to follow the example of another. ¶ Confronted with such a problem in his affairs, the mind of the manufacturer must run the gamut of business emotions. ¶ He must subjugate his pride; he must fight off his fear; he must master his uncertainty; he must conquer his doubt—and stake his entire destiny on the decision. ¶ His engineers have been committed, perhaps, to other principles, and may be reluctant to adopt a new principle. ¶ His selling organization has been committed to the old product but must recast its policy to conform to the new. ¶ Capital, seeing hundreds-of-thousands in money needed for new machinery and other hundreds-of-thousands discarded in old machinery, wonders why the old, profitable, less progressive product is not good enough. ¶ Wherever he goes in his own institution, there is doubt and discouragement—but over against it the steadily shining beacon-light of that other great success. ¶ Its radiance is all around him. ¶ The pressure of public opinion pushes him persistently toward its emulation. ¶ So he resolutely pockets his pride, sets aside his own judgment, abandons the old policies and begins to build another product, patterned after ideals which are not his own. ¶ When that is acomplished, there is paid the highest tribute which intellect can pay to intellect. ¶ After that, the process goes on and on. ¶ Millions in money and tons of machinery are dedicated to the pursuit of the new inspiration. ¶ A hundred brains, as it were, accept the dictum of one brain. ¶ A score of business institutions tacitly admit the wisdom of one business institution. ¶ A dozen products endeavor to conform to the one product. ¶ Then indeed, is the tribute complete. ¶ A unit has indelibly stamped itself upon the whole. ¶ The industry crowns the individual institution. ¶ And the world adds the seal of unstinted endorsement.

Twelve Overland cars have been placed at the disposal of the general committee of the National Association, whose convention in Los Angeles begins tomorrow. Real Service.

MOTOR TRUCKS REPLACE HORSES IN ALL LINES.

BUSINESS men and public service corporations whose efficiency experts watch every corner for a chance to cut cost and increase profits, have ruled that the horse is a dead letter in commercial transportation of today. This is beoming apparent with the increased use of the motor truck in Southern California towns and cities. The wonderful system of good roads has made the motor truck to a large extent the locomotive of Southern California.

An instance of the increase in motor truck travel is shown by the average of more than 900 trucks which pass over the Harbor boulevard every day in the year. Only 200 teams is the daily average over the same roads.

Macadamized highways, lower cost of upkeep and lower original cost of trucks have had much to do with this condition, declares M. S. Bulkley, Pacific Coast distributor for Autocar trucks. As an example of the increased use of trucks in the public service field, Mr. Bulkley points to the fact that the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company maintains a fleet of twelve Autocar trucks. The Southern California Edison uses, in addition to several light roadsters, five Autocar trucks. Los Angeles city's water department owns eight Autocars and the police department two.

ALL TRUCKS OF LINE EQUIPPED.

LOCAL DISTRIBUTOR PUTS HIS ELECTRIC WAGONS OUT ON SAME TIRE.

Every truck of one make that has been sold in Los Angeles has been equipped with Firestone tires. The truck is the G. V., one of the most popular electric commercial vehicles and there are approximately fifty of them in use in the city, according to Harry Harrison, the distributor.

Mr. Harrison's users include the Bullock and Jevne fleets, which are subjected to unusually exacting service. These concerns are two of the most prominent in the city that have ascertained the electric vehicle suits their requirements the best. They usually make from fifty to seventy-five miles on a trip with many stops.

Several of the largest truck users are advocates of Firestone equipment. Public service corporations with from twenty to forty trucks in constant use, under the most trying conditions, use only Firestone tires.

TWIN SIX FOR TAXI SERVICE.

Among the numerous orders for Packard "Twin-Sixes" which were received last week by Earle C. Anthony, Inc., following the news of the sensational lowering of Packard price on the twelve-cylinder model was an order for six, seven-passenger, 1-35 models, placed by Owen Bros. & Wells, proprietors of the Alexandria Auto and Taxicab Company.

A check for $1500 accompanied the order, and will insure September delivery of the fleet of Packards for the taxi men. "Packards have always been popular with our patrons," declared R. E. Wells, president of the company, last week, "but the announcement of the "Twin-Six" has created a wonderful interest in the new Packard line and a demand for the new cars that we had to meet.

"Aside from the popular interest in the cars, they should prove excellent for work in the downtown streets, and, from all we have been able to gather, very economical from every viewpoint."

CORD PIONEERS.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company was the first to make the cord automobile tire. Originally designed for electrics, cords are rapidly growing in favor among users of gasoline cars. They greatly increase the ease of riding.

Any modern appliance that will work simply and efficiently in the way of safety to ones-self and also to the other fellow as regards the propelling of autos through the congested streets and crossing inter-sections, where nearly all auto accidents occur, should have the deepest thought of every motorist today who has the slogan "Safety First" in his heart.

The above simple and inexpensive device shows, not only from the rear, but also from the front, which way each autoist is going to turn before coming to an intersection of streets. It is all done by a simple twitch of the finger; pointing the arrows right or left as the case may be.

This simple device is absolute in its work, does not weigh three pounds, and can be attached to any car without electricity, unless specified. It will also be a great benefit to all closed cars, affording them more protection than they have at the present time.

This little mechanism is mostly nickel and aluminum. It works perfectly simple and simply perfect and is a credit to any car. Cars will be equipped at

GOODRICH SAFETY TREAD

Made as always, —the same reliable Construction, the same dependable Service—without anything whatever taken out of Quality, no matter what reductions in List-Price are ever made.

"JUST Rubber and Canvas—pumped full of air!"

So thinks the Tire User who buys Pneumatics "Blind," without comparison after thorough investigation.

So thinks the Car Owner who buys from the Cut Price Dealer, the "just as good" Tire on which that Dealer quotes him the biggest discount off a Price List specially printed up for that purpose.

So thinks the Man whose Tire bill averages nearly half of his entire Season's running Expense, when it need not average one-fourth, if he would only "Work his head" and, once for all, learn the Tire Game.

THERE are Car Owners who regularly get 25% to 50% MORE Mileage, per Dollar invested in Tires, than do the Owners of other Cars driven with equal care, under equivalent road conditions.

The latter type of Owner is apt to conclude offhand (from his own experience) that all Tires must be Short-lived and Unsatisfactory.

Now this is to tell him that there is as much difference between the Mileage and Resilience of different brands of Tires, when the facts are investigated, and proven through actual Service, as there is difference between the Color of Cats—when viewed by Daylight.

This is to inform him that three Rubber Factories using precisely the same quantity and quality of Materials might, and sometimes do, produce (through the difference in their Rubber EXPERIENCE and efficiency methods) Tires of such widely different Mileage-Result as to average 3000 Miles, 4000 Miles, and 5000 Miles respectively—under parallel road conditions.

COST of production is therefore no sure guide to the Mileage and Resilience which can be put into such a subtle and "temperamental" product as the Rubber in a Pneumatic Tire.

And, though the B. F. Goodrich Co. can, and does, put the most Mileage per Dollar invested by the User, into Goodrich Safety-Tread Tires, they do not interpret this as a reason why they should charge a higher price, to include an Insurance Premium which would place their "Adjustment Basis" beyond the safe and reasonable minimum that Bad Roads and Careless Driving make necessary.

Because of its Manufacturing Advantages, its Precision Methods, and Waste-reducing Processes (resulting from its 45 years' EXPERIENCE in the working of Rubber), the B. F. Goodrich Co. can afford to and does, offer the greatest Mileage in Tires at the lowest price per Mile.

It sells the standard grade of Goodrich Safety Tires at 10% to 30% lower prices than other non-skid brands which "Guarantee" greater Mileage but cannot prove delivery of greater Mileage in actual use.

Why pay MORE for any Tire?

NATTY ROADSTER LATEST ARRIVAL.

MACHINE HAS AMPLE ROOM FOR CARRYING COMPLETE CAMP OUTFIT.

The latest roadster to reach the city is the Dodge creation. When Harold L. Arnold, local Hudson and Dodge distributor, unloaded a carload of Dodge machine Friday evening, he was surprised to find one of the new roadsters in the shipment. This is the first of the new models to reach the Pacific Coast.

One of the best features of this latest roadster to reach Los Angeles is the unusual storage or carrying capacity of the car. It is one of the natty roadsters of the year and has some points about it which far exceeded the anticipations of those who hoped for the most.

This storage room is over 100 per cent. greater than it was believed possible in the roadster type as heretofore built. It will accommodate a complete camp outfit and take in every thing that could possibly be needed on a trip around the world. In doing that it puts it all under a weather-proof, rattle-proof cover. This storage back is molded into the flowing lines of the car.

Plenty of leg room is one of the strong points of the new roadster and the slope of the steering post has been increased to suit the restful position of the driver. The dash control, speedometer, electric gauge, oil and gasoline pressure gauges and carburetor control are all in easy reach. Ample door pockets and glove and sundry lockers are features of convenience in this roadster. The wheelbase is the same as in the full five-passenger body and the chassis differs only in minor details due to the different type of body.

New Chief Named.

VETERAN NOW MANAGES INDIANAPOLIS TRAIL.

THEODORE E. MYERS, known to racing fans all over the country as "Pop," has been made general manager of the Indianapolis motor speedway, following a career of service with that institution embracing the last four years.

Myers has for some time been fulfilling the duties of management of the speedway, without, however, receiving recognition for his work. This has now been given him by official action of the board of directors, Newby, Fisher, Wheeler and Allison.

Carl G. Fisher, president of the speedway, will continue in active control of the speedway's affairs, but expects to throw more responsibility on Myer's shoulders.

The Class.

SNAPPY ROADSTERS WIN POPULARITY LOCALLY.

ROADSTER types, on which the Premier Motor Car Company is specializing this season, are proving immensely popular in Southern California. Three roadster types are offered by the Premier. They are a two-passenger touring roadster, a speedster and a clover-leaf roadster.

In the clover-leaf type, as the name indicates, room is provided for three passengers, the seats being arranged in the shape of a clover leaf. There are two doors, both forward, and entrance to the back seat is provided by an aisle between the two front ones. This permits of an unusually handsome roadster type of body with comfortable seating for two or three passengers.

The first of the Clover-leaf type has not yet reached Los Angeles, but interest in it is unusually keen and several orders have been booked.

Purchasers of Premier cars who have received their new machines within the last few days are Mrs. J. R. Porter, roadster; R. C. Chambers, roadster; W. G. Hunt, roadster; Edward Semmel, touring car; George Mulford, touring car; Harvey Deardorf, touring car; Dr. Joe Holleran, touring car; Henry Krohn, touring car; Mrs. Cole Prentiss and Harlow Sprink.

Some Record.

EVEN THOUSAND ARE DELIVERED.

On Pacific Coast Alone the Sales Total Fortune.

Factory Capacity Taxed, but Rush Continues.

Local Manager Says that He Needed More Cars.

The J. W. Leavitt Company, Pacific Coast agents for the Overland car, has established a selling record for the first three weeks of business with the new 1916 model, which bids fair to stand for many months. In the first three weeks after the new models were announced for delivery, 1000 of the cars were sold and placed in the hands of owners on the Pacific Coast.

Manager Starr of the Los Angeles branch conducted a vigorous selling campaign, with the result that the Los Angeles branch did not lag in deliveries. He declared he could have placed another 100 cars during that period, had he been able to get them.

It has taxed the capacity of the Overland factory to the utmost to meet delivery demands, for not only has the Pacific Coast been establishing selling records for the car, but the eastern agencies as well, have been doing an amazing business. The first shipment of cars to New York consisted of a solid trainload of 125 freight cars.

HITTING HIGH SPOTS AGAIN.

LOCAL MOTOR SPORTSMAN AGAIN ON GASOLINE TRAILS WITH FAVORITE.

W. S. Duncan, Los Angeles Pierce-Arrow owner, who spends his summers touring and who last season toured across the continent and back, will leave in a few days for an extended tour through the High Sierras.

Mr. Duncan's tour last season took him to Boston and into the Maine woods as far as the Canadian boundary. On his return to California, which was made late in September, he was accompanied by Frank Chance, former manager of the Chicago Cubs and the New York Yankees, who purchased a Pierce-Arrow at the Buffalo factory.

Mr. Duncan's tour this summer will include a visit to the Yosemite, an extended stay at Lake Tahoe and a tour into the high mountains north of Sacramento.

In addition to his mountain trips Mr. Duncan expects to visit the San Francisco exposition. While at Lake Tahoe he expects to visit several of the resorts around the lake, including the Tavern, Tallac and Glennbrook. With the opening of the motor road around the lake and both the Placerville and Emigrant Gap routes from the valley, touring in that part of the Sierras will be particularly attractive.

YANKEE CARS FOR SERVIA.

Eighty KisselKar trucks left the factory of the Kissel Motor Car Company in one train load last week. The entire train was made up of flat cars, two trucks being loaded on each car. The shipment was consigned to the government of Servia and consisted of thirty ambulances and fifty heavy service vehicles for commissary use.

RUBBER RIVETS.

In Goodyear tires there are hundreds of rubber rivets, formed by a patent method, to prevent tread separation. They reduce the risk 60 per cent. This is an exclusive feature.

Line on Line.

INFORMATION ON LATE MODELS IS RECEIVED.

ADDITIONAL information relating to the new six-cylinder Oakland cars has been received by Manager Reeve Gartzmann of Hawley, King & Company. This car is listed at the Pontiac factory for less than $800 and is expected to prove a sensational departure among Oakland products. The first shipment of the sixes is expected to arrive in Los Angeles in about two weeks.

Built upon a chassis of 116-inch wheelbase the body is surprisingly roomy and affords comfortable accommodation for five. The equipment is complete and besides electrical starting and lighting includes the one-man top and five demountable rims. The body lines are in accord with the present-day tendencies and distinctly Oakland. Real leather upholstery is featured.

Other than being a small six, the most radical departure about the new car is the valve-in-the-head motor. It is the conventional type with the camshaft at one side, the valves being operated through long rods and rocker arms. The bore is 3 3-16 inches and the stroke 4 3-4 inches. The cylinders are in block with the cylinder head and valve mechanism detachable. This makes the parts easily accessible.

INTEREST SHOWN IN GREAT TOUR.

Interest in the approaching tour of Premier owners fom the East to California is keen among local drivers of Premier cars, and preparations are being made to provide a warm welcome for the visitors. A tour of Southern California owners probably will be made, to reach San Francisco at the same time the visitors from the East arrive at the fair.

Announcements from the Premier factory are that the arrangements for the tour are complete and that it has been decided to permit owners of any make of car to journey with the Premier drivers, should they care to. They will be provided with service from the Premier service car at the usual rates. This service car will be maintained for Premier owners free of charge.

Harry A. Lozier, who has not been actively connected with the automobile industry since his retirement from the Lozier Motor Company in 1912, is about to enter the field again at the head of a new organization for the manufacture of motor cars.

LONG RUN IS JOY JOURNEY.

West Virginia Motorist has Excellent Tour.

To Cover Coast and Return Over North Trail.

Through Westgard Pass into Los Angeles.

The first eight cylinder King car to be driven across the continent this summer reached Los Angeles Tuesday afternoon. At the wheel was its owner, James Thorpe of Charleston, W. Va. The mileage of the trip, which included several detours, was more than 3600 miles, bringing the season's total for Mr. Thorpe's new King to more than 10,000 miles.

Mr. Thorpe is an inveterate motorist, driving his car about 2000 miles a month during the touring season, and is one of the first to take the road in the early spring. He will spend the summer in Southern California and a great deal of it will be passed in his car. He expects to visit the San Francisco and San Diego expositions, the Yosemite, Tahoe, Shasta and the Pacific Northwest. He will return to his home in the fall via the Yellowstone and Glacier National parks.

The route followed from the East was via the National Old Trails highway to St. Louis and Kansas City. Thence via the Pikes Peak route to Salt Lake City and El Dorado trail through Tonopah and Goldfield and over the Westgard Pass to Los Angeles.

While the latter route presents some road difficulties between Salt Lake City and Ely during wet weather, Mr. Thorpe believes it better than the direct Lincoln highway road to San Francisco, and as he wished to visit the San Diego exposition and then tour north it was better suited to his trip.

DURING the three weeks following the announcement of the new 1916 Haynes "Light Six" at the new prices, 2642 cars for immediate delivery have been placed at the factory.

Over 900 of the 1916 chassis have been crowded out of the assembly department on account of the increased production and are parked in a large tent on a five-acre tract adjoining the factory. AUTO CLUB'S ROAD BULLET

A ROAD BULLETIN issued yesterday by the official touring bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California shows that highway conditions throughout Southern California are rapidly improving, with special reference to the mountain highways.

All motorists planning extensive tours are advised by Secretary Standish L. Mitchell to consult the information bureau of the club before leaving, as changes are being made daily on the state highways and on the exposition tour routes.

Big Bear Valley: The last bridge is completed in Santa Ana canyon. A large amount of motor travel will begin this week to the Big Bear Valley region over this route.

THE TOPANGA.

Topanga Canyon: County Highway Commissioner F. H. Joyner has assured Auto Club officials that this road will soon be oiled, thus eliminating any dust trouble during the summer months.

San Francisco Coast Route: Road conditions over this route are very much better than during the previous week, as another stretch of state highway has been opened to travel. Conejo grade at this time is in excellent condition. North of Camarillo four miles of paved road will be had, at the end of which fourteen miles of dirt road will be found into Ventura.

From Ventura to Santa Barbara the Rincon road is complete with the exception of Rincon Hill near Carpinteria which is now being paved, making a detour necessary, which is quite rough. San Marcos Pass is in 100 per cent. better condition than formerly.

INLAND ROUTE.

San Francisco Inland Route: Road conditions are also greatly improved along this route. It is still advisable to take Boquet Canyon to Elizabeth Lake, and thence to Willow Springs. North of Tehachepi, at the bottom of the White Wolf grade, to the Caliente grade, it is advisable to take the road straight ahead in preference to the old sand wash. This road leads into the old oiled road on the Tejon ranch house road and delivers into Bakersfield over a very good oiled stretch.

It is still necessary to make a detour between Minturn and Lingard. North of Lingard, through Manteca and Tracy, state highway will be found complete. It is advisable to take the Patterson Pass to Livermore, as Althamont is still closed and under construction.

TO SAN DIEGO.

San Diego Inland Road: Conditions along this route are very good, with a few short exceptions. Pavement will be found here for a distance of seventy-two miles from Los Angeles. From that point through Elsinore to the county line, highway is under construction. From the county line into San Diego very good road will be encountered.

San Diego Coast Route: Leaving Los Angeles there is now a choice of two roads—one via East Seventh street and Stevenson avenue through Whittier, Fullerton and Anaheim to Santa Ana; and the other via South Main street, ton Park, Long Bay City to Santa Santa Ana it is advisable Irvine-Laguna Beach struction work is San Juan Capistrano should be exercised coast road, as turns

The Facts.

AJORITY BALL GAMES ARE WON IN THE FIFTH.

[illegible] of Play in Coast League Tends to Upset [illegible] of the "Fatal Seventh"—Third Inning Ranks [illegible] in this Respect—More Games Won in the First [illegible] in the Seventh—The Records.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

[illegible] is a popular superstition [illegible] baseball to the effect that a [illegible] majority of the winning rallies [illegible] in the seventh inning. [illegible] that well-known expression, [illegible] "fatal seventh."

[illegible] figured that the average [illegible] is pretty well fagged by the [illegible] and that if he is going to [illegible] he is most likely to blow [illegible].

[illegible] this theory is not borne [illegible] the facts, at least, as far as the [illegible] league is concerned.

[illegible] league there are at least [illegible] more "fatal" than the [illegible] another which is equally [illegible] guy among us would [illegible] there have been more [illegible] staged in the first in[illegible] year than in the seventh, [illegible] confronted with the facts.

[illegible] winning rallies have been [illegible] seventh, while on twen[illegible] have games been [illegible] in the first inning. Also [illegible] been more games won in [illegible] fifth and eighth than in [illegible], and as many in the [illegible].

[illegible] is a very prolific round, [illegible] twenty-five games hav[illegible] in that inning.

FAVORITE.

[illegible] the fifth is the favorite [illegible] this league. Thirty games [illegible] won in the thrilling fifth. [illegible] the pitchers flunk in that [illegible] or the batters are able to see [illegible] better at that time than be[illegible] after.

[illegible] results in change of pitchers, [illegible] however promptly recover, for [illegible] few games have been [illegible] in the sixth.

[illegible] sixth inning rally is the ideal [illegible] Fans will gloat over one of these [illegible]. Therefore, it is humiliat[illegible] that more rallies have [illegible] in the first than in the [illegible]. A winning rally in the first [illegible] one of the most unsatisfac[illegible] in the world. It tends to [illegible] out of the proceedings. [illegible] enjoy sitting through eight [illegible] innings when there is noth[illegible] excited about. It is like [illegible] money to see a twenty-round [illegible] have one bloke knock the [illegible] in the first round, or put[illegible] before the soup in a [illegible] dinner.

[illegible] tenth is a favorite round for [illegible] games. There [illegible] twenty-four of these [illegible] the league this year, and [illegible], or almost half, have [illegible] in the tenth. Every [illegible] of over-time pastime, [illegible] seventeen innings, has [illegible] with one exception. No [illegible] affair has yet been [illegible] Venice and Oakland were [illegible] in the only seventeen[illegible]. It was a desperate [illegible] the Oaklets finally nosed [illegible].

EXTRA.

[illegible] with seven has won [illegible] games than any [illegible] in the circuit. Salt Lake [illegible], with five, and Los An[illegible] third place with four. [illegible] have engaged in more [illegible] than any other club in [illegible]. Of the ten played they [illegible] eight, the same tending to [illegible] that the breaks were against [illegible] most of these agonizing [illegible].

[illegible] and the eighth are the [illegible] innings for the Tigers. [illegible] copped five games in each [illegible]. Their worst inning is the [illegible]. They have lost eight games in [illegible]. Their next worst innings [illegible] third and ninth.

[illegible] is a favorite inning with [illegible]. Nine times have they [illegible] upheaved in that chap[illegible]. They also are prone to lose in [illegible], in proof of which ob[illegible] seven defeats. The third [illegible] other bad inning, with the [illegible] of defeats.

[illegible] is both a strong starter [illegible] strong finisher. With seven [illegible] the Beavers have won more [illegible] the first and ninth than any [illegible]. Frisco is particularly [illegible] in the first, third, fifth, [illegible] and tenth, with the [illegible] favorite inning.

FLARE UP.

[illegible] is most likely to flare up in the fifth or seventh, and remains comparatively calm in the eighth and ninth.

Oakland seems to be most dangerous in the early stages of the game. The first and second rounds have been quite profitable for them, but the third is their banner inning.

San Francisco, Los Angeles and Oakland, each has dropped four games in the ninth, and Venice has suffered six defeats in that round. The Bees have dropped two in that canto, while the Beavers have yet to be charged up with a ninth-inning defeat. The eighth, however, is a bad period for the Beavers, as it is for the Seals. The Beavers have lost a big majority of their games in the first four rounds. They stiffen up in the sixth and seventh, slump in the eighth, and generally finish strong.

The Oaklets have a habit of buckling up in the middle. Their grief periods are the fifth, sixth and seventh, and they are inclined to sag in the fourth and ninth. Salt Lake seems to weaken in the fifth, while the third and fifth are the worst innings for the Angels. The Tigers are at their best in the midway innings. Most of their troubles are encountered in the first and ninth, while the third is fraught with considerable sorrow.

The following table shows the innings in which the games have been won and lost by each club, and the total number of games won and lost in each inning:

Oooh, Gee!

NEW CHAMPION IS EXPECTED.

DEMON GOLFERS ALL ARE OFF THEIR GAME.

George Schneider, Recently Gorgeously Successful in the Tom Morris Bout, is Suspected of Having Designs on the Title—Other Celebrities not Expected to Shine.

With E. S. Armstrong off his game, Jack Jevne thereby unduly self-conscious of possibilities, Norman Macbeth away, and Judge Frederickson less dangerous as a medal player, we stand a very good chance of having a brand new star for club champion at the Los Angeles Country Club today.

The contest is thirty-six-holes medal play and a name that is being whispered as potent with possibilities on recent showing, is George H. Schneider, who made best score in the Tom Morris competition and ranked among the three elect in the open championship. Kind friends were taking care of George against this great day until he must have felt like a poor little heir to a throne of some kind. George has been suffering a good deal along these lines lately, for they guarded every mouthful that went down his throat for weeks before the Tom Morris, and that having proved such a highly successful method of breeding star players, they have kept it up for this championship event, with a redoubled relay of guards. If George wins any laurels today it will justify the worst kind of tyranny and set a painful fashion for future dark horses.

The annual Canadian Henley regatta is scheduled to be rowed over the St. Catharine's course of one mile and 550 yards on August 6 and 7. The annual national or American championships will be rowed the following week over the Connecticut River, Springfield (Mass.) mile-and-a-quarter course on August 13 and 14.

Cornell University varsity eight-oared crews have won the eastern intercollegiate classic twelve out of twenty times over the famous Hudson River course. This year's race is to be rowed Monday, June 28, between Columbia (present champions,) Cornell, Syracuse, Pennsylvania and Leland Stanford.

ARDEN WINS FROM MANUAL AT RUGBY

CLUB MEN TOO STRONG AND BEEFY FOR TOILERS, SCORE 6 TO 0.

For the second time during the spring training season the Arden Rugby players hung the short end of the score on the Manual ruggers when they downed the Toilers 6 to 0 yesterday afternoon on the Manual gridiron.

Although Coach Fritsch's squad played much better football than in their first contest, the experience, weight and speed of the Arden players were too much for them.

The clubmen started out with a rush and within three minutes from the start of the play they scored when Harry Renegal carried the ball over the Manual line. Again during the latter part of the first half the Arden players made a rush from Manual's 25-yard line which resulted in the second and last touchdown. On both occasions Walters failed to convert, even though he kicked from a comparatively easy angle.

During the second half of the game the prep ruggers came to life and held the clubmen from running up a larger score. Although the boys were unable to score on their opponents, they had the ball within five yards of Arden line several times. On the scrump the weight of the Arden men was too much and they were unable to break across.

Even though the game did not have the finishing touches seen in a regular contest, it was marked by much better playing on both sides than the first contest. The Arden team was clearly the best of the two when it came to passing rushes and hooking the ball out of the scrum but in the dribbling department the Manual lads had the best of it.

Coach Fritsch was all smiles when talking about the work of Toney and Starkey, two of his new players. He says that he expects them to make a better working combination than Tommy Lake and George Blewett, who were both lost by graduation. Birdman also played a fine game for the Artisans at breakaway and saved many yards for his team by his long boots to touch.

As usual "Dutch" Blair played the star game for the winners. Others to get into the game were Barton, Radford, Murray, Rennegal, Brown, Bullen and C. Galloway of Manual, and Walters, forwards; Frampton, Fishburn, Forer, McGuire, Carl Haney and Warner.

Following was the Manual line-up at the start of the game: Kincaid Newman, Slobohm and Essig, front rank; Bailey and Wein, second rank; Birdman, breakaway; H. Galloway, halfback; Ramey, first five; Solly Smith, second five; Thompson, center three; Starkey and A. Galloway, wings.

VICTORIA CLUB TO HAVE ANOTHER TRY

NORTHWESTERN LEAGUE WILL TRY OUT CANADIAN CITY ONCE MORE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) June 19.—Victoria will be given one more chance to remain in the Northwestern League. League President Robert Blewett announced before leaving Victoria for Seattle that he would send the team to Victoria Monday for the series against Aberdeen.

Upon the patronage will depend the disposition of the club. It is understood that the British Columbia Electric Company which is backing the Vancouver team, will back Victoria.

No definite action has been taken yet in the cases of the seven Vancouver players who went on strike yesterday. President Robert Brown said he would send the Vancouver team on the road next week with new men to fill the places of the strikers.

TIGERS TO MOVE TO VERNON AGAIN.

TRANSFER OF BALL CLUB TO BE MADE IN NEAR FUTURE.

Although no date has been set for the big event, it is said that the transfer of the Tigers from Venice back to their former home at Vernon will not be long delayed.

President Maier will withhold any definite statement regarding the transfer until the return from San Francisco of T. J. Darmody, who held his proxy at the Coast League meeting.

It is understood, however, that the Venice plant will not be removed to Vernon until next year. It is too big an undertaking to tackle at this stage of the race, and would consume much valuable time. The old park at Vernon will be re-fitted and improved. With the changes contemplated, it will serve the needs of the team for the remainder of the season.

Maier erected the Venice plant at a cost of $50,000. This, however, will not be a total loss by any means, as it can be torn down and moved to Vernon.

The officials of the latter city are said to be in favor of having the Tigers locate there.

AEROPLANE RACES ARE POSTPONED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 19.—The Aero Club of America announced tonight that the national aeroplane competition which was to have been begun July 4 and end on October 12 and also the transcontinental aeroplane race have been indefinitely postponed because of war conditions. The announcement was made in a letter to Secretary of War Garrison from Alan R. Hawley, president of the club.

"While these were not merely sporting events," Mr. Hawley wrote, "the conditions created by the sinking of the Lusitania prohibited further consideration of the plans until more favorable conditions shall develop and cause the withdrawal of substantial support that had been secured."

Albert Postle of Australia, the champion sprinter of the world, recently won three remarkable races from "Mick" Carter, at 50, 60 and 75 yards. The races were held at the Flemington course, Melbourne, and Postle won by a few inches in each event. The times were, fifty yards, 5 2-5 seconds; sixty yards, 6 2-5 seconds; seventy-five yards, 7 3-5 seconds.

WAS MONTHS AHEAD OF THE
"NEW MODELS"

THIS is "announcement" time it seems. You are being told about "new models" and lower prices. Well, the new models and lower prices had to come, for the Chandler pointed the way months ago—not with a cheapened car but with a car that had made good for thousands of owners, at a price that made the industry gasp.

Chandler $1295
The Pioneer Light-Weight Six

The Chandler announced its New Season's car in January, at a price of only $1295. That price was hundreds of dollars under the price of any other car of really similar character.

And now, in spite of price reductions and new models rushed out in the hopes of meeting the Chandler competition, the Chandler is still underpriced.

Such a car at such a price literally stampeded the trade toward the Chandler. And it continues alone in its leadership of the high-grade light six field.

Men who are motor-wise, men who know automobiles, know this is true. If there is any one who does not know it is true, we ask the opportunity to show him and prove it.

All over the country the Chandler demand has been tremendous. The factory has reached a production of ten thousand cars for this year, but even that great number will leave hundreds disappointed. Like other Chandler dealers everywhere, we have been "snowed under" with orders. In April and May we could not fill our orders by half. This month we are catching up pretty well with the demand. Our allotments for July and August are liberal and we expect to give prompt deliveries on orders received early.

AMERICA'S GREATEST "LIGHT SIX" $1385

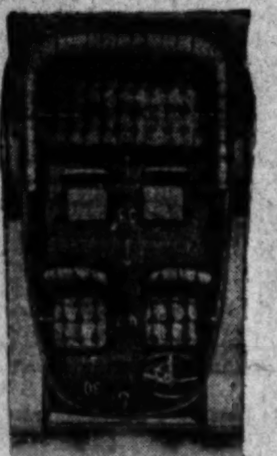
TRADE MARK REGISTERED

Real Comfort and Class

THE 1916 Haynes "Light Six" cars are more distinctive than ever. Over $200 has been put into additional comforts and refinements. That air of true class is present. Haynes bodies are big and roomy with deep rolls of soft upholstery. Real leather that is soft and pliable is used. The entire body is leather-lined, including the backs of the front seats and the instrument board. The cushions are deep and wide. The dimensions are generous. That pleasing sense of complete comfort is there. You feel that you are riding in the car and not on it.

The long, modish stream line—the dull finished top—the concealed hood hinge—the curved windshield and the cowl that blends gracefully and gradually into the hood, give class that cannot be associated with cheapness.

HAYNES



Motor—Chassis—Finished Car— All Exhaustively Tested

Three exhaustive tests are made on every Haynes Car. Every single motor is block tested. Every chassis receives a road test. Every finished car is given a final "Performance" test. You always get a finished and smooth-working machine in the Haynes.

See the Haynes—for Your Own Satisfaction Before You Buy Your Car

If you have in mind spending in the neighborhood of $1500 for a car, find out how much more for your money you can get in the Haynes.

If you have been thinking of putting $2000 or more into a car you will be satisfied with the Haynes, first in performance, second in comfort and lastly in appearance.

Placed alongside of the very highest priced cars it does not suffer by comparison. And remember, it is made by a company that has had twenty-three years' experience, and is still furnishing repair parts for cars built as long ago as 1899.

See the Haynes, ride in it, test it out—and we will leave it to your own judgment if it is not the biggest buy in the "light six" field.

If you do not know the nearest dealer handling the Haynes let us know—we will be very glad to inform you.

Note cut—Individual adjustable front seats. The two auxiliary seats disappear entirely into the floor. Price quoted is f.o.b. factory.

You Get Maximum Performance In Every Haynes Car

Any Haynes "Light Six" car will give the same performance, because it is built—not assembled—in the Haynes factory, where one standard of quality prevails.

The mechanical construction is unusual in its thoroughness. Non-Gran bronze bushings are used in the pistons.

The valve stem guides are bushed. Heat treated drop forgings are used to the exclusion of castings. Nickel steel is used to make the steering gears, the transmission gears, piston pins, front wheel spindles, axle drive shafts, studs and bolts. Springs are made of chrome vanadium steel.

COAST LEAGUE TO TRAVEL BY WATER NEXT SEASON.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—Pacific Coast League baseball teams may travel up and down the Coast by water next season if present plans go through. The magnates who brought their session to a close today without disclosing the real inwardness of their coming together, have a proposition before them from certain of the steamship companies and it is possible they will accept. Railroad rates are not altogether satisfying to the club owners, who are inclined to the belief that a schedule can be arranged which will permit of water travel.

While a discussion took place with reference to Coast League expansion, it was agreed that no definite action could be taken at this time. It is hinted the Coasters might welcome Seattle into the fold but would not care for other of the Northwestern cities. This could only be arranged in the event of the Northwestern League abandoning its territory some time this season. Judge McCredie introduced the subject but the matter was not pressed to any conclusion.

Official denial was made by President Baum with reference to an eastern dispatch in which Ban Johnson is quoted as saying the minor leagues, including the Pacific Coast, would curtail expenses and reduce their schedules.

"The Coast League has never entertained a suggestion of cutting down its schedule," declared President Baum. "Although conditions are not the best over the country, the Pacific Coast League will go ahead with its present arrangements, so far as the season is concerned."

President Baum, Henry Berry and Jack Cook were appointed on a committee to arrange for reception of minor league delegates who will be here in October for the annual meeting of the minor league association.

NEW YORK, June 19.—New York won its seventh straight game today by defeating Cleveland in the first game of a double-header 5 to 4, but lost the second game by the same score.

Pickinpaugh, formerly of the Cleveland team, tied the first game when he drove in two runs in the ninth with a triple. In the tenth Pipp and High led off with infield singles and the former scored when Jones threw Hartzell's sacrifice bunt into left field trying for a force play at third base.

single into a double. Then in the same inning when he should have scored from second on a single, his feet suddenly went dead on him and left him standing at third.

INEXPERIENCED.

Slim's feet are not blase feet of the world. They are innocent, country-bred feet like Maud Muller had. Up to two years ago Slim had always gone barefooted. His feet still rebel at the idea of close confinement in shoes and pine for the open freedom of the range. Unless there is a steady improvement it is probable that Dillon will decide to let Slim pitch in his bare feet. This wouldn't be such a bad idea at that. Slim could then steal bases without anybody hearing him.

Rube experienced another relapse following Friday's triple and was unable to get a hit. His fielding, however, was of a high order as far as it went. He had only one chance, but that was very difficult and he handled it in a marvelous manner.

KOERNER THERE.

Beef Koerner was again out bridging the crisis at first base for us. He accepted everything that came his way, but failed to get a hit. This, however, was a common ailment yesterday. In fact, there was a regular epidemic of guys who failed to get a hit. At the same time, Beef figured in the winning rally with a neat sacrifice.

J. Bugs Reisigl had his well-known toe out for its regular afternoon airing and showed it to some of his friends with evident pride.

Roy Corhan got back into the game at short. He has succeeded in breaking up the cold in his arm. Bathing it in white pine and tar did the business. Those who have never had congestion of the throwing arm have no idea what Corhan has suffered during the past few days.

Owing to several bitter attacks in the newspapers over the valuable time being consumed each afternoon, the teams yesterday chopped half an hour off the rear end of the game. Such is the power of the press.

AT THE START.

McMullen's beautiful stop and clever digging of his low throw out of the subsoil by Beef retired Meloan in the first inning. Schaller and Bodie then did just one half of San Francisco's batting for the day. Biff was safe on a runt fly over third and took second on Ping's clean hit to right. They got foxy and tried a double steal. Schaller had such a big lead that Boles did not throw to third. Instead he pegged through to McMullen, and Ping, who was not expecting anything like this, was easily tagged. Biff was left at third when Heilman grounded to McMullen. Further hitting by the Seals consisted of safe bunts by Smith and Jones in the fifth and seventh.

Corhan reached first in the second when Zeb made his semimonthly juggle. Two were out. Corhan stole second, and was still there when McMullen threw out Sepulveda. Maggert singled for the Angels in the first and Pat Crowed second. The next three men were floored in rotation.

NEAR TROUBLE.

The third saw Slim in some difficulty, but he managed to wiggle out. Two passes and a wild pitch put Smith on third with one gone. Bodie, in trying to dodge the pill, accidentally knocked it down to Koerner for an out. Hook'em was held at third. Zeb retired Heilman by resorting to a beautiful stop.

Wolter picked a fly by Downs off the rim of the right-field bleachers in the fourth. Otherwise there might have been serious complications.

Hook'em actually beat out a bunt down the third-base line with one out in the fifth. At this critical juncture McMullen, Zeb and Beef staged a sensational double play on Meloan's tough grounder.

RUBE'S CATCH.

Bodie drew a pass in the sixth. He died on first when Rube raced in and picked Jerry's short flow off his shoe buckles. The ladies and gents loudly cheered Rube as he walked in from the field.

Slim staged his sensational double play in the seventh. Jones beat out a grounder to Beef because Slim failed to cover. Slim's feet simply failed to arise to the occasion. A passed ball put Jones on second with nobody out, and Corhan sacrificed him to third. The squeeze was then tried. Sepulveda's bunt was hump-backed and went about twelve feet in the air. Slim promptly tore himself loose from the earth and, leaping into the air, speared the pill with one hand. Jones, almost to the plate, was a gone gosling. Slim started to walk over to third and make an unassisted double play, but just before arriving there it occurred to him that his feet might go back on him and he tossed the ball to Metzger. After that Slim was master of the situation and showed how good he felt by fanning two in the eighth.

NO GOOD.

Zeb and McMullen clicked off singles in the fifth and sixth that didn't stand for anything.

Wolter opened the seventh with a hit that was somewhat cloudy. He drove to Heilman and arrived at first base contemporaneously with Smith, who was covering. Heilman's throw was none too good and Hook'em dropped the ball. It was a mussy play and, while the hit was not chemically pure, it was necessarily scored as such, as Wolter seemed to have the play tied. Koerner sacrificed Wolter to second. Heilman chased back and made a fine catch of Rube's deep foul while running with the ball. Wolter took a desperate chance and lit out for third after the catch. He beat Heilman's throw by a scant yard. It was a bold and dangerous move; likewise it was a game winner. On the next pitch Hook'em heaved the ball no less than eight feet to the right of the plate. Sepulveda fell down on his face in trying to stop it, and Wolter chased in with the needed run. Downs threw out Zeb.

With two gone in the eighth, Slim suddenly reared up and skimmed a grounder past third. Reaching first, he observed that Schaller was taking his time about fielding the ball. Slim's feet then lit out for second and beat Biff's surprised throw. Maggert singled to left, Love going to third. Dillon reproved him for not trying to score. It is feared that Pa expects too much of Slim. Next thing he will be asking him to steal home. McMullen boosted to Bodie.

ALL-WEATHER TREAD GOODYEAR

Not an Excuse

Let us first explain that this is not an excuse for over-price. Our this year's price reduction—made February 1st—will save Goodyear users about five million dollars this year.

And that was our third reduction in two years, totaling 45 per cent. Our matchless output gives you in Goodyears a value never before known in tires.

Goodyear Extras

Goodyear Fortified Tires have five costly features found in no other tire. They combat your five major troubles in better ways than anyone else attempts.

These tires, in addition, have other features not commonly employed.

If we omitted those extras, this year's probable output would cost us $1,635,000 less. That is, we could add to our profits about $5450 per day.

Most of these extras are hidden. Tires that lack them look as strong as Goodyears. And you would never know it, save by months of use, if we left them out.

$500,000 Added

This year's improvements—just our latest additions—cost us $500,000 yearly. Most of it goes into extra rubber—all into extra wear.

And this much is added—this half million dollars—at a time when we save users five million dollars in price. At a time when some makers are skimping to meet competition.

Then our Research Department—to find more betterments still—will cost us $100,000.

Yours for the Asking

These extras are yours for the asking. Tires without them will be offered so long as you will buy them. But any dealer, if you ask him, will supply you Goodyear tires.

Goodyear has for years outsold any other tire. It is gaining new users faster than we can supply them. And those extras did it. (2617)

SLOUFEDS TAKE DOUBLE-HEADER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BROOKLYN, June 19.—Timely hitting, in which home run drives by Ernie Johnson counted heavily, won both ends of today's double-header for St. Louis. Plank pitched great ball in the first, St. Louis beating Brooklyn, 6 to 2. Hartley's batting was a big help to him.

Crandall was invincible after the first inning of the second game, St. Louis winning by 4 to 2. Johnson made a home run in each contest with a man on first, getting three hits in the second. Scores:

First game:
St. Louis, 6; hits, 11; errors, 3.
Brooklyn, 2; hits, 9; errors, 1.
Batteries—Plank and Hartley; Wilson and Land.
Second game:
St. Louis, 4; hits, 10; errors, 0.
Brooklyn, 2; hits, 7; errors, 0.
Batteries—Crandall and Chapman; Lafitte, Marion and Land.

NEWARK WINS FOR NEW MANAGER, 4-2.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEWARK (N. J.) June 19.—Under the leadership of Bill McKechnie, the Newark club braced today and broke up its losing streak. Pittsburgh was beaten in a clean cut game by a score of four to two. Timely hits by Campbell and Rariden were a feature. Score:

Pittsburgh, 2; hits, 7; errors, 3.
Newark, 4; hits, 10; errors, 0.
Batteries—Knetzer and Berry; Ruelbach and Rariden.

PACKERS DIVIDE WITH BUFFEDS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BUFFALO, June 19.—Both of today's games developed into pitchers' battles, Henning taking the first for Kansas City, 2 to 0 and Anderson winning the second for Buffalo by the same score.

Easterly's single in the fifth inning of the first contest sent home the only runs of the game.

First game:
Kansas City, 2; hits, 5; errors, 1.
Buffalo, 0; hits 4; errors, 0.
Batteries—Henning and Easterly; Ford and Allen.
Second game:
Kansas City, 0; hits, 4; errors, 1.
Buffalo, 2; hits, 5; errors, 0.
Batteries—Main, Johnson and Easterly; Anderson and Blair.

WHALES WIN BY SCORE OF 8 TO 1.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BALTIMORE, June 19.—Today's game was played under protest by Baltimore, Chicago winning, 8 to 1. The protest was the result of a play in the opening inning when Umpire Johnston permitted a Chicago player to go to the bench direct from third, then score after a batter struck out with the bases filled and one out. The third strike had got away from Catcher Owens, who recovered the ball and threw to third, the Chicago player going direct to the bench from the plate. He had gone to the bench from the field under the impression that he was forced. Score:

Chicago, 8; hits, 14; errors, 1.
Baltimore, 1; hits, 8; errors, 2.
Batteries—Hendrix and Fischer; Suggs, Bailey and Owens.

STAR QUARTER TO ENTER POMONA.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, June 18.—With graduation next week, Santa Ana High School is going to lose some of its best athletes. Seven members of the football team that won the Southern California High School championship last fall get their diplomas. Four out of the seven are going to the University of Southern California. They are Burkett, an end, Holzgrafe, fullback and captain, Oertly, half, and Winbigler, substitute fullback. Marvin Morrison, known to the game as "Soud" Morrison, premier High School quarterback and field general of the South, is to enter Pomona College, and present indications are that Plavan, halfback and one of the best broad jumpers in the High Schools of the State, will also go to that college. Catland, an excellent lineman, may enter Throop.

STANFORD - CALIFORNIA BREAK ABSOLUTE.

American Football Schedule Nears Completion—Harvard and Yale not to be Induced to Come Here. Syracuse to Meet Oregon Aggies and may Play Here.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18.—The University of California will play a schedule of American football with Western Colleges this Fall and may arrange contests with several eastern institutions. This announcement was made today by John Stroud, athletic manager of the university. His action means the definite abandonment by California of Rugby and marks the break in athletic relations with Stanford.

"California offered Stanford every concession possible with the exception of Freshman eligibility rule, against which we have contended for ten years," said Stroud, "But Stanford did not see fit to accept, and California decided that negotiations would be cancelled. Had Stanford come to us only four days ago and accepted the Freshman ineligibility rule, we would have been glad to continue to play with her. After this break the adoption of American football was the only logical result."

Stroud denied an effort might be made to induce Harvard and Yale to play here next Fall. He pointed out, however, that Syracuse will probably meet the Oregon Aggies next Fall, and indicated that a game between Syracuse and California was possible. Washington and Jefferson is also being considered as a possible opponent.

MINORS MAY CUT BALL SALARIES.

WESTERN LEAGUE IN BAD WAY. OTHERS DO NOT SEEM TO BE WORRYING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, June 19.—It was learned here today that the more radical proponents of economical measures among the higher class minor league magnates have proposed a combined movement by the leading circuits to reduce salaries and even to curtail the playing season sharply this year. The movement would require action by the International League, the American Association, the Pacific Coast League, the Western and the Southern Leagues. Though a proposed meeting of the presidents of these associations was discussed, it is said, at the American Association session here early this week President Chivington said today he had heard nothing of it.

President Johnson of the American League was quoted not long ago as saying some of the minor leagues would better suspend for the season rather than battle against the unusual weather, reported lack of interest and unfavorable times. Certain magnates, taking their cue from this statement, have advocated extreme measures, but others, believing that interest is reviving and that a return of good weather is due, are opposed to radical action.

Discussing the statement made by Hugh Jones, owner of the Lincoln club, who said he would ask the reduction of President O'Neill's salary among the measures of economy in the Western League, O'Neil said today he would abide by any action of the league.

"They can take half my salary, as Jones proposes, or all of it," said the president, "and I will run the business of the league just the same. The league is welcome to use my own money as well as my salary, as it has done before. It has at different times used $10,000 of mine, and is welcome to it again."

ALEXANDER TOO MUCH FOR REDS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CINCINNATI, June 19.—Alexander's pitching was too much for Cincinnati today, and as a result Philadelphia won easily 4 to 1. Alexander allowed only four hits, which were scattered in as many innings. Cincinnati made its one run on a base on balls, a sacrifice and a single. Score:

Judged by Service

The letters here are good evidence of superior quality but you will get still stronger recommendations yourself by talking to users of Savage Tires. Judged by service Savage Plain Tread Tires are unsurpassed.

Alex Jaussund, San Diego, California, says:
"On October 1, 1913, I bought two 33x4 Plain Tread casings for my delivery truck. These cases ran for 11,000 miles through sand and rough roads."

W. E. Hood of Lindsay, California, wrote us a few days ago:
"I have a Savage Plain Tread Tire on my car which has been run over fifteen thousand miles, with no repairs whatever and still good."

Here's what W. L. Robb of the B. H. Dyas Co., Los Angeles, says:
"I have been using your Savage smooth tread tires for the past year. The least mileage I have gotten has been 11,000. I have one on now which has been 14,000 and looks good for several miles more. One I ran 14,000 and had it retreaded by the Savage Company, and I believe it is good for 5000 or 6000 more."

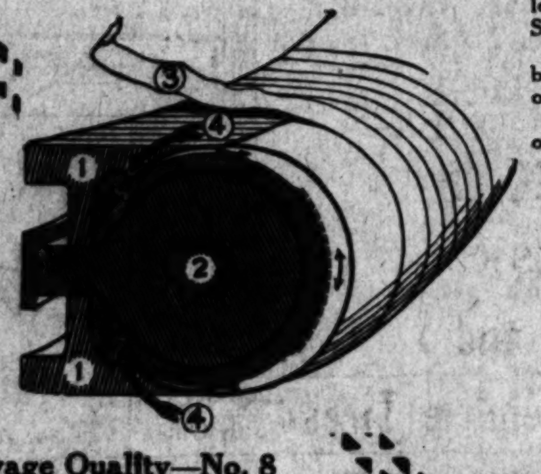
SAVAGE TIRES

Direct from factory to you

We save the middleman's profit so we are able to quote low prices. You can't get greater value than there is in Savage Plain Tread Tires, so why pay more?

Savage tires are made in California, but we ask you to buy them, not because they are a home product, but because of the service they will give you.

Call at our Factory Branch or on a Factory Distributor or send your order in by mail; whichever is handiest.



Savage Quality—No. 8

No Closed Molds Used

When molds are used, there is a tendency to pinch the fabric of the carcass toward the apex of the tire. This is entirely done away with by the Savage method. The carcass while still on the core is placed in side plates that fit the bead and extend nearly to the edge of the tread.

When these plates are pressed together, the fabric is drawn away from the apex toward the bead and all buckling and folding of fabric is prevented.

The tire is then wrapped with muslin tape by a special machine and is vulcanized by the open steam process.

NO ENTRIES.

The Coronado Yacht Club has no yachts suitable for the race and the San Diego Yacht Club, while dubious about the entry at this time, wished to go on record as indorsing the race and intimated that an entry might possibly be made.

The race will be started by a racing committee made up of the Regatta Committees of the clubs participating. It is a sailing race, pure and simple.

Commodore Geo. F. Barber of the Los Angeles Motor Boat Club thought to inject a little gasoline into the race, in the discussion Thursday night, by seeking to make it a combined sail and power race' but he met with no success. His effort to make it a free-for-all was likewise disapproved.

DIFFERENT.

Off-shore racing is an entirely different story from trans-Pacific and new and different rules must govern.

The Racing Committee will also see that any engine, either on the yacht or its tender, is properly sealed before the start of the race, and that the yacht is properly equipped in cruising trim for the hard trip. No restrictions will be made as to amount of sail area or the number of the crew aboard. In case of accident or misfortune the racing yacht may call at any port en route and not be disqualified as she will stop off on her own time.

Commodore Solland left Friday for San Francisco and will there confer with Lieut. C. H. Woodward. The finishing line will probably be the entrance to the Golden Gate at Lime Point but this will be determined by the Yachting Bureau. In case the finish is made at night, a code of night signals will be provided.

THE TIMES AUTOMOBILE AND FLOWER SHOW FEATURES.

THE Los Angeles Times Automobile and Flower Show, which is to be held early this fall in the large store building formerly occupied by the Boston Store, 235 South Broadway, will be featured by many attractions never before seen at an automobile show held in America. Located in the center of the business district of Los Angeles, The Times show will be different from any other motor car exhibit ever staged in this city.

Not only will the season chosen for The Times Automobile and Flower Show permit of a display of all the 1916 models, but Southern California's most wonderful floral attractions will be available at the same time.

The motor car has become a necessity of business and social life and the purpose of The Times Automobile and Flower Show is to familiarize the general public with the remarkable features of the 1916 models, such as increased efficiency, reliability, low cost of operation and upkeep, mileage to be made on tires and the remarkable price features.

While this unique show is to be held in the very center of the great shopping district of Los Angeles, offering extraordinary advantages to the exhibitor and the visitor alike, there will be no charge made for floor space and the exhibit promises to rival even the great motor car display at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Walter Hempel is privately promoting an automobile show at Shrine Auditorium to take place about the same time.

NORRIS WILLIAMS TO PLAY ON COAST.

MAURICE M'LOUGHLIN TO MEET CHAMPION IN FEATURE EXPOSITION MATCH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—Richard Norris Williams, American tennis champion, is expected to battle again with Maurice E. McLoughlin of California, former national champion, in the Panama-Pacific Exposition tennis championships, which will be held here July 10 to 17, it was announced today by the Pacific States Lawn Tennis Association, which will supervise the event.

Seats for 3000 spectators are under construction and the tournament is expected to eclipse all former tennis championships on the Pacific Coast. In addition to Williams the United States National Lawn Tennis Association will send out George M. Church, Watson M. Washburn and Dean Mathey, ranked among the best of the eastern cracks. Church is rated as seventh best, and Washburn as the ninth best among American players.

The Pacific Coast will contribute McLoughlin, who lost the national title to Williams last year; W. M. Johnston, John Strachan, T. C. Bundy, R. L. Murray, Elia Fottrell and Clarence Griffin, among others. Other expected entries are Beals C. Wright, former national champion; Joseph Tyler of Spokane and Melville M. Long. The entry list will close July 8.

W. A. Foreman and wife, and his wife's mother and father, left Los Angeles last Wednesday morning for New York City, via San Francisco and the Lincoln highway. Mr. Foreman is driving his eight-cylinder Cadillac. The party will camp out along the route, and is carrying a trailer in which is their complete camp equipment, tent, cots, cooking utensils, etc., for use along the road.

There are people who can be satisfied with little if they know their neighbors have less.

This is a poor kind of philosophy.

It is not necessary to recommend any such doctrine to those who buy Diamond Squeegee Tread Tires.

They have a right to demand much, no matter how little their neighbors get out of other tires.

Unbeatable mileage economy, unusual freedom from trouble on the road, and unexcelled service under all conditions are some of the things the man who uses Diamond Squeegee Tread Tires has the right to expect.

And he gets them.

Ready—the 1916 Hudson

Yacht-Line Body—Ever-Lustre Finish—$200 Less

This new-type Hudson has won a remarkable following. It has brought to all men new ideals of a class car, changing the entire vogue. It has trebled our output, forced immense factory additions, compelled 31 makers to follow our footsteps. Within 20 months, this lightweight Hudson has been adopted by 15,000 motorists.

Now comes another $200 reduction. Now comes the Yacht-Line Body, with new grace, new luxury, new roominess and comfort. Now comes the fulfillment of your dreams—a finish of lasting lustre. Today this favorite class car starts a brilliant new career.

Remember Its History

Two seasons ago this new-type Hudson came out at $1900. Its announcement startled Motordom. Its price was pronounced impossible in a high-grade Six. Its lightness—under 3000 pounds—was scoffed at as incompatible with strength.

But the car was a Hudson, and Hudson standards are high. Howard E. Coffin was its designer, and he stands foremost in his field. He and his whole corps had spent two years in testing and perfecting it. And men were waiting for a class car which would cut down operative cost.

So our first month's output was sold before anyone saw the car. When the car appeared men flocked by thousands to it. And for one whole year thereafter Hudson buyers waited weeks for cars.

Then a $200 Reduction

The next season the price—which seemed so impossible—was reduced to $1700, because of multiplied output. Thirty-one improvements were made in the car, including still lighter weight. Another year's work by our engineering corps showed in its refinement.

This model was soon 4000 cars oversold. We shipped 1000 cars by express. It became at once the largest-selling car in the world with a price above $1200.

That changed the whole trend in motor car designing. It became evident to all that the day of overtax was ended. Men would not stand for excess in weight, price, size or operative cost. All cars were built lighter, most prices were reduced. And in 31 factories this new-type Hudson became the pattern car.

Now Come Graceful Yacht Lines

Now our designers have spent another year on this car. There was no way to improve the chassis. Fifteen thousand cars, covering millions of miles, had failed to develop one fault. Every part and detail had been refined to the limit.

So in this third model they gave their time to the body. They worked out this stately body, with its graceful, sweeping yacht lines.

Every broken line is eliminated. The top-line of the body and the doors is leather bound.

And they created this luxurious tonneau. The sides are higher than before, the rear seat is much wider, so it doesn't crowd three adults. The car seats seven, with all the room that anybody wants. And the extra tonneau seats disappear when not wanted, doubling the tonneau room.

You have never seen a body so impressive and graceful as this Yacht-Line Hudson body.

Now Comes the Ever-Lustre Finish

And now comes for the first time what you have dreamed of—a lustrous finish which stays new. It is the greatest innovation of the year.

In our new factory addition we have built mammoth ovens, with capacity for hundreds of bodies. Now our body finish is baked on in many separate coats. Each coat of finish is now applied under pressure which fixes it as never before. After each coat the body goes to an oven where it is baked for hours, then rubbed. This is done with every coat—an exclusive Hudson process.

The result is a body that stays new. The finish is smooth and brilliant. It resists sun and rain, washing, rubbing, mud. Experienced motorists who have seen bodies grow old and dull will consider this Ever-Lustre finish the most welcome improvement in years.

We combine it with enameled leather upholstery—better than has ever appeared in a car at this price. And with deep, hair-filled cushions, which means enduring luxury as well. This year's new body features mean much added cost. But it means a revolution in finish, in comfort and appearance.

Now Comes the $1500 Price

And now comes another big reduction. We have built additions which will double our capacity. We have worked out countless new ideas in efficiency.

We are building here now, under ideal conditions, more high-grade cars than were ever built in one shop. As a result, we are giving you now the greatest value ever known in a class car.

Last year we reduced this car $200. This year we reduce it $200 more. We are selling this model 23% below its startling initial price—$400 below it. Yet a hundred makers, when they saw the car, pronounced our first price impossible.

Why This New-Day Type

This Hudson was the pioneer of an entirely new type of car. The type was conceived four years ago by Howard E. Coffin, our famous chief designer. It took him two years, aided by our whole force, to work out his conception.

The idea was refinement—the elimination of crudity—to result in a light, staunch car. The first step was a new-type motor, small bore, high speed. By reducing piston shocks that made it possible to lighten a hundred engine parts.

The next step was aluminum in place of cast iron. The next was special steels. In the next, a thousand parts were re-designed to combine lightness with strength.

The final result was a 7-passenger Six weighing under 3000 pounds. Oldtime Sixes averaged 4500 pounds. That difference—the weight of 11 adults—cut tire and fuel cost in two.

The Vogue of Simplicity

Howard E. Coffin saw years ago that the trend was toward simplicity. Now everybody knows it. Excess and waste are unpopular. Good taste now calls for satisfaction without show.

Thus Hudson has become the class car. Its owners, in large part, are men who have paid two and three times its price. Hudson typifies the ideals of the times. This fact is conspicuous wherever you look about.

All questions regarding this new-type car have been answered on the road. There are 15,000 Hudsons of this type in use. In two years men have driven them many million miles. And every owner vouches that the car is staunch, enduring, faultless, as well as economical.

Hudson now embodies all that any man can want. It is the fine car of the modern type. Only those men who still take pride in some form of excess will find any car more appealing.

Like No Other Car

Bear in mind that Hudson is like no other car. There are many models of this type, but there are scores of ways—important ways—in which Hudson is unlike them. Let us point them out. This is a Howard E. Coffin creation, a finished product, unique and unapproached.

General Venustiano Carranza

Why We Are Fighting in Mexico

By General Venustiano Carranza

First Chief of the Revolution

I WOULD most strongly impress upon the American public the fact that the present struggle in Mexico is a great social strife against the reactionary forces which, for three centuriés, have kept millions of peons and Indians in slavery and submission. It is a continuation of the fight started by Miguel Hidalgo for the independence of our people and the abolition of slavery. It is not, as is supposed by many, a petty fight between ambitious individuals who are trying to place themselves at the head of the nation. It is a great revolution which is shattering the last remains of the Spanish yoke and hopes to bring Mexico into the march of progress and civilization.

The Constitutionalist Party stands for the Constitution of 1857 and the reform laws attained by Benito Juarez, after a three years' war. Those laws marked the entrance of our nation upon the paths of achievement and liberty. In the Plan of Guadalupe, formulated March 26, 1913, the Constitutionalist Party has taken up the banner of freedom and is fighting for all reforms which will be found necessary to insure the happiness, equality and independence of the people.

My ambition, from the beginning of the struggle to the present moment, has been to bring the revolution to a successful ending. No other thought or dream ever dominated my heart and soul than the desire to see peace and liberty established. And it was this supreme aim that caused the break between General Francisco Villa, Chief of the Northern Division, and myself, the First Chief of the Revolution. Unfortunately Villa made the error which men of ignorance usually make. He has been seduced by sweet words of vain flattery, and carried away by secret ambitions to rule and dominate. He has become a tool in the hands of the reactionary forces, forgetting the principles of the revolution for which he was pledged to fight till liberty was achieved. Villa has but added another dark and bloody chapter to the tragic history of our social struggle.

Villa betrayed his true nature and his selfish ambitions when he appointed himself president of the republic, ignoring his former appointee Roque Gonzales Garza.

"I say to the people of the United States that I have absolutely no ambition to become President of Mexico. Furthermore, if Senor Carranza himself came and asked me to be President, I would refuse. It is the only command I would disobey my Chief in—that of accepting office for which I am not qualified." These were the words of Francisco Villa in a message given by him on March 16, 1914. With a great deal of emphasis he repeated his protestations, asserting his unfitness for the Presidency.

ONLY a few months later Villa forgot all his protestations regarding the Presidency, showing the utter insincerity of his words. The farcical manner with which he dominated and coerced his former provisional president, Eulalio Gutierrez, till the other was compelled to flee for his life, shows that while he was trying to convince the American public of his unselfishness and his desire for the pacification of the country, he was in reality acting the dictator and the tyrant. That is Villa! His actions speak, perhaps, much louder than my words.

It is deplorable that the cause of the Constitutionalists is greatly misrepresented and misjudged in the United States. People interested in the failure of the revolution have been spreading falsehoods regarding the cause. The idea seems prevalent that the Constitutionalists are fighting the church in general and the Catholic church in particular. The notion has been spread abroad that we are intolerant of those who seek commercial enterprises in Mexico. We have been portrayed as inconsiderate brutes and the enemy of foreigners. Nothing, however, is further from the truth.

The Constitutionalist Party is not fighting the Catholic church nor any kind of a church. It is merely enforcing the laws of the Constitution of 1857, which has divorced the church from the state, prohibiting it the right to own property or to conduct monasteries. Its object really was to prevent the dignitaries of the church from engaging in politics and mingling into the affairs of the state. The mission of the church is to look after the spiritual needs of the nation and not indulge in political intrigues. No one, however, has under the laws of the Constitution ever been deprived of the right to worship his God. Religious liberty to all is one of the fundamental principles of the Constitutionalist Party.

For centuries Mexico has been the happy hunting ground of foreign investors. From the days of the Spanish domination, through the long Diaz tyranny, till the end of the reign of the dictator, Victoriano Huerta, the natural resources of Mexico were generously distributed among the wealthy friends of these usurpers. Not only the natural resources, but the land,—the great heritage of the common people—has been taken from them and given to wealthy concessionaries. Today the people own nothing, while the incalculable natural wealth, in the form of mines, oil fields and huge tracts of land, is owned and controlled by a very few people.

IT IS against those concessions, illegally obtained, that the Constitutionalist Party is fighting. No one who is conducting a legitimate business has ever been disturbed.

The Constitutionalist Party represents the spirit of the Twentieth Century. It is fighting for the rights of the people, who through the fault of various dictators, have been kept in ignorance and submission. It is fighting for the culture and the education so liberally enjoyed by every civilized nation of the world. It stands for the modern ideas of today and hopes to rescue the country from the deep mire of degradation into which it had been plunged by its oppressors.

Education and enlightenment, that is the guiding policy of our party. For that very reason we have now fifty school-teachers studying the educational system of the United States. We are gradually adopting your institutions of learning. So far we have introduced into Mexico the vocational training school methods as employed in the states of Wisconsin and Massachusetts. In the near future we hope to adopt some of your other methods of learning and culture. That will help bring the two nations to a better understanding of each other.

The program of the revolution may be summed up in the following important clauses:

1. The disintegration of enormous estates, i. e., the vast areas of land owned by the few, so as to promote the formation of small properties.
2. Equity in the taxing of land and real estate.
3. (a) Creation of an all-embracing labor legislation. (b) The establishment of municipal liberty as a constitutional institution.
4. A change in the system of the organization of the army.
5. Electoral laws to guarantee the effectiveness of the vote.
6. (a) Establishment of the independence of the Judicial power in the Federal Government as well as in the States. (b) Revision of laws regarding matrimony and the domestic condition of individuals.
7. Reformation of judicial proceedings in order to render the administration of justice prompt and effective, the revision of civil, criminal and commercial laws.
8. Revision of the laws relative to the exploitation of lumber, waters, petroleum and other resources of the country, with a view to abolishing monopoly.

NOT till those laws are established and the revolution is successful may peace be expected in Mexico. It is a social revolution in which the people are determined to free themselves from the yoke which has fettered them for centuries. The Constitutionalist Party is but an instrument through which the dreams hopes and aspirations of the people will be realized.

Come Sup With Us

One Supper Free

With Every Breakfast This Week

Our Annual 10-Meal Treat

Again we make this offer, to introduce to your home the ideal summer supper, the best-liked dairy dish.

The offer is this: Buy from your grocer a package of Puffed Rice, to serve for breakfast with cream and sugar or mixed with any fruit.

Take this coupon with you. Your grocer will give you for it, at our cost, a 12-cent package of Puffed Wheat. Serve that as a supper or luncheon dish, floating in bowls of milk.

That means ten breakfasts and ten suppers, all for 15 cents. The suppers are our treat.

Puffed Wheat, 12c
Puffed Rice, 15c
Except in Extreme West

Bubbles of Whole Wheat

Compare Puffed Wheat with bread or crackers, served in bowls of milk. Here are toasted kernels of whole wheat puffed to eight times normal size. They are crisper than crackers—four times as porous as bread.

The morsels are airy and flaky and thin. They crush at a touch of the teeth. They have a fascinating flavor, much like toasted nuts. And they supply the whole-wheat nutriment in the daintiest form that's known.

Nothing else that you serve in milk compares in taste or form or fitness with Puffed Wheat.

What Steam Explosion Does

Then Puffed Grains are Prof. Anderson's scientific foods. The process creates in every grain a hundred million steam explosions. Every food granule is blasted to pieces so digestion can easily act. No other process does that.

So, beside their enticements, there are other reasons for Puffed Grains. In this form every atom feeds, and there is no tax on digestion. When these grains are served between meals or at bedtime they should always be served in this way.

Here's a 12¢ Coupon

We want you to know the wider uses of Puffed Grains. They are not mere breakfast cereals, not mere dainties to be mixed with fruit. They are superlative foods, the best-cooked foods in existence. There are daily uses in every home where nothing else serves as well.

To let folks know this we are making this offer to millions of homes this week, and we urge you to accept it.

Buy from your grocer for 15 cents a package of Puffed Rice. Then we will buy a package of Puffed Wheat. Present this coupon and you'll get them both. You pay for one, we for the other. Do this so your folks may know all the delights of Puffed Grains. Cut out the coupon now.

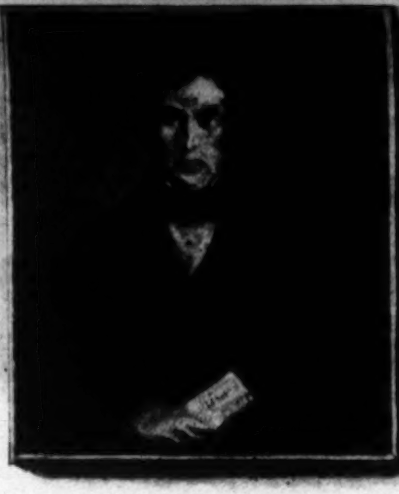
The Painted Letter

By James Hopper

Illustrations by B. Cory Kilvert



IRVING and Hale were the hosts; hence everything was well. The studio, at the top of the old house, was satisfactorily darkened, its one lamp a dim gold moon, its shadows heavy on the couches. On the table, in the circle of the light and reflected in the mahogany as within a brown pool, peace-giving objects were grouped—cigars, invitingly parallel; a jar of Maryland with top askew as a tipsy man's hat; cigarettes, tossed in a bowl; three bubbly blue syphons; a rotund bottle, rich with amber glints. Even the Ancestor, in his gilded frame, holding by his clasped hands the letter upon his caved-in stomach, seemed to obtain from it all a gleam of satisfaction which made his visage less morose. Outside, to him who, shouldering through the heavy curtains, pressed his nose against the frosted panes, the Square was but a white blur of driven snow; the old house, at times, shook to a blast. Being thus assured on the material side, the guests occupied themselves with the immaterial, discussing the ghost.

It was a poor anemic ghost, come upon earth at a period hard upon its kind. They flagellated it with their scorn, ridiculed it with jokes, treated it rudely. But at length Borkmann who, curled like a cat in a big Morris chair, had been listening in silence behind his concave goggles, said: "Come, this leads nowhere. Let each men tell in turn what he really has experienced, eh, what do you say? Then afterwards we can discuss the cause, whether it be escaping gas, as Alcott says, or the vibration of the elevated as Hale suggests."

They looked at each other a bit uncertainly, as boys to whom another has said abruptly, "let's go swimming" when the pool is cold. Then remembering that it was Borkmann's specialty to start entertainments which seldom disappointed, they signified assent by drawing their chairs a little closer.

"You tell us, Hale."

Hale, lighting a cigarette, sent the smoke to the ceiling in a boring spiral. "I've just run the thing over in my mind," he said, "and you know when it comes right down to it, there is precious little to tell. The greater surprise, which lingers within me still, was at the urgent warmth Tom Irving displayed when, my lease having expired, he invited me to share his (these) lodgings. I had not guessed, till then, the place I held in Tom's big heart. I accepted, of course, moved over my few effects, chose the couch over there in the corner, and soon felt at home.

"THERE was, though, a rift to my comfort. It was this. Every morning, as I made the coffee (I always make the coffee) and Tom, sitting on a box, watched me, I would hear him ask: 'How did you sleep last night?' To which I replied politely (being still freshly the guest), 'Excellently, Tom, old boy; excellently!' And then I would feel upon my shoulder the warning tap of conscience, followed by a vague dissatisfaction that lasted the day long.

"One morning, the tenth maybe, as for the tenth time dear old Tom asked me this question, and for the tenth time I answered 'excellently, Tom, old boy,' this slight warning became very clear. I knew what was the matter now. I had not been telling the truth.

"'Yes, no,' I cried to Tom. 'No! No! I've been lying. I don't sleep well in your caboose, Tom. Not well at all, at all!'

"He looked at me owlishly. 'Why don't you sleep, Hale?' he said. 'Why? What's the matter?'

"'Why?' I rushed on, excited at my discovery, and analyzing my sensations as I went, 'why, I keep waking up. Waking up scared. Scared! That's it. With the thumps. I compose myself and go to sleep again. And then again I find myself wide awake with my heart thumping and something like an electric current on my tongue——'

"I INTERRUPTED my analysis and said: 'Good Lord, Tom, what's the matter with you!'

"I said this because, sitting in his bathrobe on his box, he was looking at me strangely; his jaw drooped to his chest. Then he told me what he for a long time had—but he will tell you that himself—my own experience, you want. He told me—and that night it was difficult to go to sleep. But I did, at length. And woke up later with the thumps. And made myself go to sleep again—and again woke up with the thumps. And did so several times.

"Since that—well, the thing continues. Every night, I wake up several times, scared. Badly scared. But I'm getting used to it. It isn't so bad, you know, once you are used to it. And of course, the cause is merely——"

"Never mind the cause," interrupted Borkmann. "We'll see to that later. Now, Irving how about you?"

Irving, who had been sitting uncomfortable while the intimacies of his home were being thus deployed, began awkwardly. "I'll admit to being a bit shaken when Hale told me what he told that morning. It was a—peculiar—corroboration of something I had thought mine alone, which I had thought a personal, subjective phenomenon. Because, I'd been feeling much the same thing. From the first day I moved here, nearly twelve months ago, I began waking up at night, scared. Only after that, the thing went farther. It became more than a matter of waking up in fear. There is, besides, something—all of the time. A sense of presence. Of impalpable, invisible presence. Not quite invisible, perhaps. I'd wake up with a definite sense that—something—had been bending over me. Bending over me as I slept. And then, sometimes, it still was there after I was awake.

"This still goes on, as a matter of fact. And twice things have got so bad that in the middle of the night I've cleared out and passed what was left of the night with Carson, on the other side of the square.

"I THINK that's all. I had kept the thing strictly to myself so far, and so was rather—astonished—at what Hale told me that morning."

Borkmann, huddled in the depths of the chair, his heels drawn up beneath him, squirmed with satisfaction. "Now we're getting somewhere," he said. "Carson, Dramatic Critic, ex-journalist, what do you know of this show?"

Carson shook his head. "I've never been here, except in a crowd; I haven't felt anything. I can tell you about Tom's coming to our lodgings, though, those two times in the middle of the night. The first time, I remember, he wore a mackintosh, a boot and a slipper. He told us—myself, and Rank, who shares my rooms—that he was out of coal and that he was freezing to death in his place. As he was plainly perspiring, we did not believe him, but credited him rather with some romantic adventure—and put him to bed.

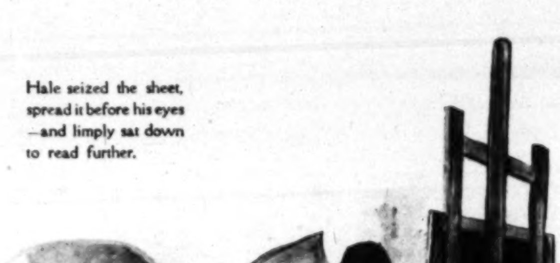
"The second time he was more formal. He wore a top hat and open-worked silk socks. Rank was still out, and I let him in alone. It was again lack of coal that drove him over. I put him to bed and went to sleep. An hour later, I was awakened by a most awful smothered bubbly screaming. Rank (who evidently had just come in) was standing at the door, his finger still on the electric light button, and very much astonished. And Tom, here, was sitting up bold in bed, both arms toward the ceiling, his eyes popped out, his jaw dropped, making that weird noise which had awakened me. It took us a good half-hour, and some whisky, to bring him back to the normal."

Irving was now very pink between his freckles. "I'd been pretty well shaken up that night," he admitted sheepishly, "and Rank's sudden appearance was a climax."

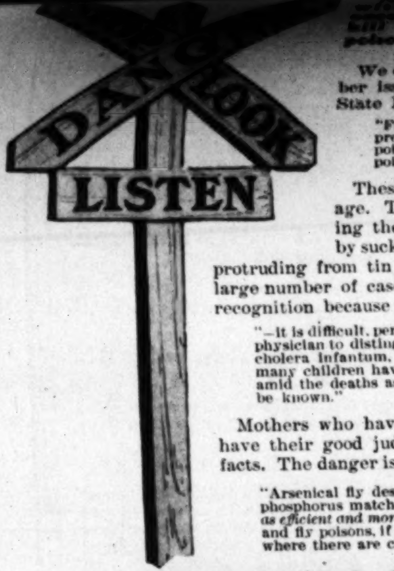
But Borkmann was rubbing his hands, his eyes gleaming behind their glassy fortifications. "Tell us what you know, Alcott."

For some time there had been coming from Alcott's corner preliminary growls of skepticism. He now sprang into the light, his feet apart, his hands deep in his trousers pockets, his jaw belligerent. "What's all this folderol, this mystico-psychic bosh?" he demanded. "All these refined sensations you fellows are describing have a perfectly plain and material cause. It's gas. You're all half asphyxiated right at the present moment. I've told Irving a thousand times that his——" But a general hoot stopped him. "We've decided to postpone the discussion of the cause," Borkmann said. "Have you anything to give us by way of an experience?"

"Naw," bawled Alcott disgustedly, and flung himself back on his couch. He stirred again a moment later in the silence, however. "Since you will play that fool game, there is something," he admitted. "The other night—but of course it was the g——"



Hale seized the sheet, spread it before his eyes—and limply sat down to read further.



[illegible] within reach of little children — except fly poisons. Yet fly poisons kill more children than all other poisons combined.

We quote from an editorial in the December issue of The Journal of the Michigan State Medical Society:

> "From the first of July to October 15, the press of a few states reported 45 cases of poisoning of children from the use of fly poisons."

These children were all under six years of age. The poisoning was caused by swallowing the liquid covering poison fly paper or by sucking the poisoned and sweetened wicks protruding from tin boxes. The editorial suggests that a large number of cases of such poisoning probably escaped recognition because:

> "—It is difficult, perhaps impossible, for even an experienced physician to distinguish a case of arsenical poisoning from cholera infantum, the symptoms being so similar. How many children have been poisoned from these fly poisons, amid the deaths ascribed to cholera infantum, can never be known."

Mothers who have intuitively avoided fly poisons, now have their good judgment complimented by these actual facts. The danger is even greater than most of them knew.

> "Arsenical fly destroying devices are as dangerous as the phosphorus match. They should be abolished. There are as efficient and more sanitary ways of catching or killing flies, and fly poisons, if used at all, should not be used in homes where there are children, or where children visit."

The Yellow Peril

By Edith M. Blanchard

Hotel Idlewild, Sunday.

MY DEAR BETTY:—Are you a suffragist? If not, I want to take your name in. I've belonged for three days—and it's frightfully interesting! I think the idea of women voting and making history, is just too sweet for anything!

It was this way: I happened to see a big suffrage parade—hundreds and hundreds of women with cute yellow banners, turning their ankles over rough cobble stones—and the funniest little thrill ran up and down my spine! I clapped as hard as anything! And the instant I could get through the crowd, I taxied back here and made the management promise to do my boudoir over in yellow. That color always agreed with my complexion, and it will make a becoming background.

Let me know at once whether your name is on the list or not, for I do want you with me in this great movement. Enthusiastically,—Essie.

Hotel Idlewild, Saturday.

My Dear Betty!—I am more than surprised at your letter! I read it to one of the Yellow leaders, and she said you had the usual cradle-mind. Babies and ballots may begin with the same letter, she says, but they are not in the same class at all. Isn't that clever? She says women need the ballot to broaden them—because they are only an inch wide! I'm 42 hip measure, but probably she meant mentally.

I wish you could hear her talk—she is just saturated with politics and other things I never even dreamt of. I never saw anyone so well posted in my life—nor so badly dressed! I do hope I shan't get dowdy now that I've taken up serious things.

My boudoir is almost finished and is going to be just dear! I've got Votes for Women in every corner and over the door, and the general effect is very pleasing. I am so glad I am in this great movement. I never should have thought of all those soft tones of yellow if I hadn't seen that parade.

Am mailing you some literature on Suffrage and want you to promise to read every word. Then you'll understand the subject better, I guess. Hopefully,—Essie.

P. S. Hotel life would do you good for a change. Why don't you come and make me a visit? Don't bring the children, for I am too excited and nervous. Shall expect you soon.

Hotel Idlewild, A week later.

Why, Betty!—Your letter almost took my breath away! Have I offended you? If so, I can't imagine how—or why. I can't understand half the things you said about "petticoat politics" and I don't know what you mean by calling my new interest in life "the Yellow Peril." I don't believe you read any of the pamphlets I sent!

I asked our leader if what you wrote was true—about 200 Kentucky women being tried for selling their votes. She said No!—most emphatically NO!—it is only a newspaper story. But she says 1124 Kentucky men have been indicted for vote-selling, or something. She is surprised to think you didn't see it in the papers.

Regarding children, you would be better off in some respects if you had never had any. It isn't right for a woman like yourself to devote her whole life to raising three children.

Now Betty, do read those pamphlets and write me again. Earnestly,—Essie.

Hotel Idlewild, Another week.

My Dear Betty:—Why don't you answer my letter? I hope I did not write any truths that hurt too badly—but if I did, truth is good for the soul.

I have decided to become a member of the school committee. Of course it isn't a responsible office, but it's the entering wedge, they say—and all we can get until we have the vote. Another woman wanted it—a doctor who hasn't had time to buy a new hat for ten years! It is too bad for such a frump to represent us, so I am going to.

Have ordered a caucus gown, an election frock, an inauguration costume and six swell business suits. Wish you could see them. Shall wear jonquils hereafter, whenever I appear in public.

I hope you have put all petty household drudgery aside long enough to study those pamphlets. It is my duty to make you understand that we women have got to uplift the world and every man in it, by the ballot. Our leader says we've got to entirely remodel society. Then we've got to shoot the army and sink the navy—to put them out of business forever, so peace can come to stay.

Oh, I've got a splendid idea!—a peace-frock of rare old satin—suffrage yellow—richly embroidered with doves of peace! The buckles on my slippers could be little diamond doves!—and my hat could be a real dove with wings outspread! I have been told I have an original mind, and it does seem so!

Must close and find an Oriental who can do exquisite embroidery. Oh, Betty!—you don't know what you are missing by not being in this marvelous feminist movement. Excitedly,—Essie.

Hotel Idlewild, Wednesday.

Betty:—After your long silence, you write that my letters have caused you to join the Antis! More likely someone has flattered you into doing so!—and I can easily guess that it was the father of your offspring! That Yellow leader says men do that when they get afraid. Don't let him dominate you, my dear! You have devoted more than enough time to your family already—the rest of your life certainly belongs to your country.

Betty, dear, my frocks came home last night and they are dreams! Can hardly wait to wear them—especially the one for election-day, which it seems will never come! I don't see the need of so much red-tape, anyway—going through all this for a school committee election is just a matter of form.

My new hats have arrived, so must close. You little know the joy of being interested in public and national affairs, poor girl! In Ecstasy,—Essie.

P. S.—Thanks for that bundle of Anti literature—but of course I shan't read it. Our district leader says it would be time wasted.

SPECIAL DELIVERY

Dearest Betty:—I am suffering more than the men in the trenches—have been publicly insulted by the whole city! I received just seventeen caucus votes while that frumpy female doctor got hundreds! It's in all the papers, too! I resigned from the Club immediately of course, and have joined the Antis. You were right all the time, dear, and I'm ready to work with you night and day to stamp out that dreadful Yellow Peril which threatens the country. Your Dis-illusioned Friend,—Essie.

Too Much of a Good Thing

SENATOR MOSES E. CLAPP, of Minnesota, is a firm believer in the vote-getting ability of the homespun politician. He has seen a good many of that kind win elections in his native state.

But it is possible for even a shrewd campaigner to overreach himself in his appeal to the Plain People. At a public dinner in Washington the other day, the Senator told the following story in point:

When the late John Johnson was nominated the first time for the governorship of Minnesota, his enemies tried to discredit him by raking up facts about the early poverty of his family. His father, they said, had been a ne'er-do-well, and his mother had been obliged to take in washing to earn money for John's schooling. This kind of mud slinging, however, helped the young candidate far more than it hurt him. His managers eagerly seized upon the story. "Vote for John Johnson," they said, "the man who is not ashamed of his mother who took in washing."

This made a great hit with the Swedish-American voters, who were nearly all immigrants or the sons of immigrants; and Jacob Jacobs, Johnson's Republican opponent, realized that he would have to invent a still better slogan or suffer certain defeat.

He cudgelled his brain for a few days, and then suddenly Minnesota blossomed from end to end with posters printed in scarehead type.

"Vote for Jacob Jacobs,
A Man of Your Own Kind.
He Eats Peas with a Knife."

But Jake was defeated.

"Stick to the experience."

"The other evening, I dropped in on Irving and Hale; and very politely, they went off to the theater, leaving me here with a book. I was reading, glad I had not gone with them, when I became aware of someone standing behind me, looking over my shoulder at the book. That's something which comes to everyone at times, I think. I felt someone behind me, but knew perfectly well that if I turned quickly and looked, there'd be nothing there. So I said to myself: 'I'll turn quick and look, and there won't be anything.'

"The trouble was, though, that I couldn't turn quick and look. I'd say to myself: 'Now I'm going to turn quick!'—but wouldn't. And I'd go on pretending to read the blurred lines dancing before my eyes. Again I'd say: 'Now I'm going to turn, quick!'—but wouldn't. And a helmet of ice was slowly settling about my head. Then after a while I thought: 'I won't turn. This book is heavy; I'll simply throw it backward over my head—and there won't be anything. Here goes!' I said 'here goes!' thrice without throwing, but finally did throw. But the book did not leave my hand! I must have been more paralyzed than I knew. My arm made a short, stiff, ineffective movement—and the book slid weakly out of my fingers, down my legs, to my feet, where it lay open, like a gasping fish. Happily, just then I heard the boys, Irving and Hale, tramp up the stairs. The door opened, and they came in. They evidently saw nothing behind me, but I must have looked queer, for they asked me what was the matter. But of course all this is due to——"

"Now, is this all?" Borkmann asked. "Is this all, Tom, about your place?"

Irving nodded affirmatively. But Hale said: "There's the Dalton twins, Tom."

"Oh, that!" said Irving.

"IT'S a small matter. The Dalton twins, as Hale calls them, are two young women; sisters, as you may guess. Both married. They were coming up from their homes in the South to New York for a visit. At the last moment the husbands found that they could not come, so the girls came up alone. Thinking they would be more comfortable here than at the hotel, I offered them my lodgings, and went to stay with Carson."

"Always generous with his lodgings," murmured Hale.

"I fixed them up here, and went to sleep at Carson's. I called here in the morning to see if they needed anything. But they were not here. Nor their valises. They had disappeared bag and baggage, though I found them easily enough at the Graydon, across the Square. They had been there since 4 a. m. The story they told me was confused. But it appears that they had spent the night hugged close, weeping, in the same bed, and that at the first peep of dawn, they had cleared out. They professed to be very comfortable at the hotel—and I left them there. That's all of that."

There was a moment of silence during which everyone looked at Borkmann. He had gnarled himself up more and more in his chair, rubbing his dry hands briskly. "Now see what one can do by the inductive method," he exclaimed triumphantly. "We are getting somewhere. In fact, we have gotten some Thing. Now we'll discuss the nature of that Thing. What is your idea of it, Alcott?"

Alcott, protesting, was already standing by the lamp in an aggressive attitude. "It's the gas," he said flatly. "I've told Tom a million times that his fixtures leak, and a million times he has told me he would see about it, and he hasn't. There is always a perceptible smell of gas here when one enters. And I maintain that this constant slight odor, when one's sub-consciousness is working well, as when one is asleep, or reading, or merely quiet, awakes in one a vague sense of danger, a subtle sense of peril which one cannot analyze and hence becomes that 'sense of presence' and all that bosh. It's the gas, and you can stampede it by calling the plumber."

"It's true," admitted Irving, "that sometimes there is a smell of gas. But it is cursed prevarication to say that I've done nothing about it. I've called in the gas man twice, and he can find no leak."

"What is your theory, Hale," asked Borkmann.

"Earthquake," said Hale. Then seeing that this appeared vague as an explanation, "To me, I mean, it is a by-product of the San Francisco earthquake. I was in it, you know. I'll show you what I mean. Keep quiet, now, all of you." They were silent a minute, two minutes. Hale raised a finger. Beneath their feet there passed a low subterranean rumbling; the house shook slightly from side to side.

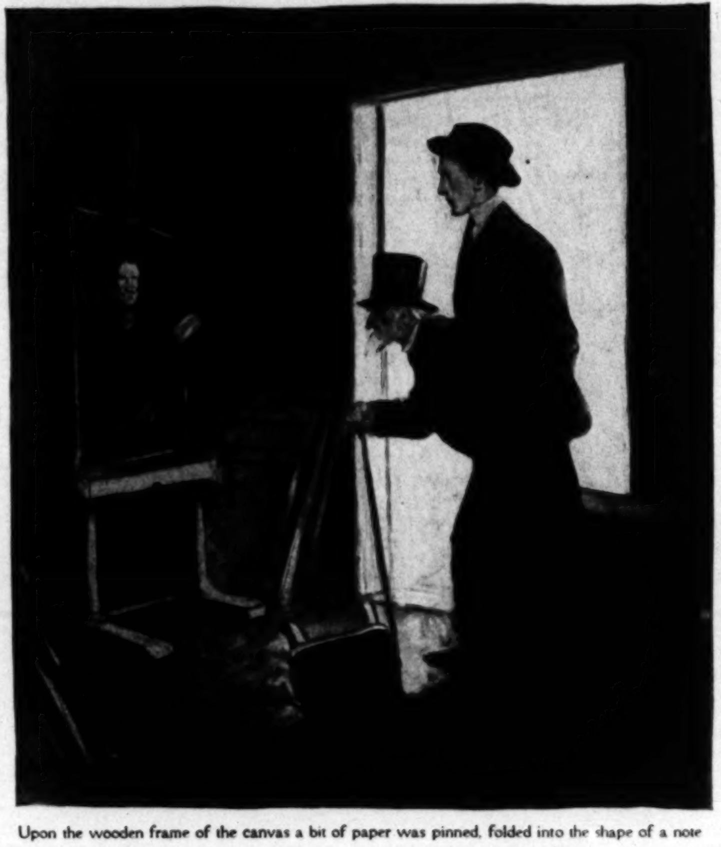
"It's the elevated passing," said Hale. "You see what it gives in the silence. Imagine this at night under one's bed when one is asleep. To one who has been through the San Francisco catastrophe, it stirs old fear-memories. And one wakes with the thumps."

"That's likely enough," said someone.

"And so is the gas," said another.

"And you," said Borkmann. "What do you think, Tom?"

Irving spoke with some reluctance. "I don't believe in ghosts," he began disclaimingly. "But I do think there is something which Science does not explain and which it will explain some day. Think of an old place like this. Think of all that has happened within it. The beings who have lived, the thoughts which have been thought, the acts which have been enacted; the births, the deaths, the joys, the sufferings, the words, the shouts, the whisperings, the plans, the plots, the stresses, the secrets. Why should all have passed, leaving nothing? Why should this old room not be—impregnated, as it were—with it all? Why should not these walls—refract—as it were—at times, an echo of it all? Refract the shadow of a past thought, the whisper of a soul, the plaint of a woe, the—the essence of a personality? Why not, after all?"



Upon the wooden frame of the canvas a bit of paper was pinned, folded into the shape of a note

They were all listening, very much interested. But in a moment they showed a dislike of this theory. "You're a good old talker, Tom, a good old talker," said Alcott, voicing the state of mind at which they meant to hold themselves. They sat immobile, puffing on pipe, cigar and cigarette. At intervals, at the end of an arm invisible in the shadow, a glass rose out of the circle of light as if by levitation. But Borkmann was not satisfied.

"You examine the possibilities," he said, "of leaking gas, of elevated jarrings, and a vague theory of sensibleized walls, and stop there, thinking this course quite scientific. I disagree. All possibilities should be impartially examined. I, for one demand an investigation of the Ancestor here. In this very room we have a painted Ancestor in a gilded frame, holding in his hand a painted letter with something scrawled across it—and you disdain this profoundly troubling mystery and go seeking among gas leaks and shaky foundations. I demand a cross-examination of the Ancestor."

"He's not an ancestor," said Irving deprecatingly. "He's just an uncle. I call him the Ancestor because it sounds more impressive. And not only is he but an uncle, he is also but a grocer, an ex-grocer!"

Someone raised the lamp, and the pseudo-ancestor appeared clearly in the glow, with his lantern jaws, his long sad nose, his fishy eyes, his gnarled hands, holding across his sunken stomach the painted letter.

"It isn't a Da Vinci," murmured Alcott, critically.

"He painted it himself," said Irving, "and he was a grocer."

Borkmann standing on a chair, his nose against the canvas, said: "There is some writing on the letter isn't there?"

"There's a name," answered Irving. "A name: Seth E. Greene."

The lamp lowered again to the table. "Come," said Borkmann, once more knotted in his big chair, "tell me about that Ancestor, and why he painted himself, and why he holds a letter addressed to a person called Seth E. Greene."

Again on Irving's face appeared a certain bashfulness. "But I've already told you boys that story."

"Not to me. Tell it again. Why do you have his picture? Why did he paint it? Why did he paint himself holding a letter? Why is that letter addressed to Seth E. Greene?"

Irving glanced about the circle of faces, blew a ring of smoke heavenward, and resigned himself.

"As a Westerner," he began, "I have no relatives. Or thought I had not. But I had been in New York two years when a letter apprised me of the fact that I had an uncle. The letter came from the public administrator of a little county in Maine. It told me I had an uncle, but that this uncle was dead. Also that I was his heir. It's a bit exciting to be an heir. I took the first train for that little village, dreaming grandfather clocks, carven chests and such things to furnish my den here. But I found no grandfather clocks there, no carven chests. Only a lot of bad painting and—a story. An absurd and yet touching story.

"I LEARNED that my uncle was a grocer, and that for thirty-seven years he had not opened his shop. The door was locked, shutters were all up, as they had been for thirty-seven years, when with the squeaky little public administrator I entered burglariously. That shop was a sight. Skeletons of past hams hung from the beams, and cords, just cords, which probably had once held up flour sacks long since converted to rat meat; on the shelves were tins which had exploded like bombs; in corners, potatoes which had sprouted, flourished, died, re-sprouted and at last decayed into a slimy mold; and I remember spades and shovels which were mere sieves. The little old administrator was telling me the story as I looked, and timidly other squeaky old men who had wandered in after us corroborated it with nods and detached recollections.

"It seems that my uncle had been a model young man. Orderly, thrifty, industrious and pious and—this I surmised—a little morose. His grocery was prospering in a gradual way; he was engaged to Abigail White; he was to marry her when the business reached a certain figure, written in red in his own mind. And one day this brilliant future had been shattered by a bit of black treachery. Seth Greene, my uncle's best friend (they taught in the Sunday School together) had started across the street a rival grocery store!

"My uncle was vanquished from the first. He made his fight in a brooding, ineffective fashion. The business fell away. Seth Greene, with his premiums, his Saturday Night Bargains, prospered amazingly. Thus for five years, Abigail White waited. Then one day Seth Greene announced that he had sold out and was going to New York to make his fortune. He went—with Abigail White, who became Mrs. Seth E. Greene.

"My uncle put up his shutters and 'tuk to paintin'.' 'Tuk to paintin' '—you should have heard the little old men say that. As if they had said: 'Then he took a very sharp axe, broke in the door, and chopped his dear old grandmother in very small bits!' We moved on to the barn to see the 'paintin's.' The large place was full of them; canvas upon canvas, heaped; a crude mess, of course. But touch- (Continued on page 458)

W[illegible] Almost everyone has experienced such dreams, as of falling from a precipice, tree or housetop; but only recently was any special reason for this given by scientists who now explain that it is a quite natural dream, resulting from the habit of prehistoric man of sleeping in tree tops when away from his cave or cliff or lake dwelling.

Whenever night overtook prehistoric man he dare not proceed through the virgin forests and jungles in the dark, for fear some prowling night beast would kill him. He dare not sleep on the ground for the same reason, so he took to the tree tops.

At the same time he took great care not to fall, for it was undoubtedly his dread that during his sleep he might slip from his high perch and fall, thereby standing chances of bodily injury and also of falling near some beast that would promptly kill him. Naturally when such a prehistoric man did fall, he awakened in terror while falling.

And this trait of the days when man was little more than a wild animal of the early world has been handed down through the generations. It is well known that to this day a dog will walk around and around in a circle before he lies down to sleep, whether it be in his kennel, in the yard or in the house on a rug or a hardwood floor.

This is a perfectly natural trait in the dog. Away back when dogs were all wild animals, like the wolves before being domesticated by man, they used to sleep on the great plains, in the shrubbery and various places like that, and before they lay down to sleep it was necessary for them to walk around and around until they had trampled down in the tall grass or bushes or ferns a smooth place where they could lie in comfort.

It is held by scientists that the same old law of heredity that makes the dog do this today also makes mankind dream at times of falling from a great height. There is always terror in such a dream, but one peculiarity in these dreams is that the dreamer seldom dreams of striking, or, if he does, the fall is broken, so that it does not injure him. It is believed the shock of dreaming would prove a great injury to one's nervous system, and that nature, in her own peculiar way, provides against such a shock, even in dreams.

It has also been claimed that mankind has other dreams today that result from habits and experiences of prehistoric man, such as climbing great heights and especially of being chased by ferocious animals. Women are more apt to dream of being chased or attacked by hideous animals than men. Scientists explain this by declaring that prehistoric women were not the fighters then, any more then today, and naturally feared stalking dangers more than the men.

Fortunes in these Accidents

HOW to make starch from corn was discovered accidentally by Thomas Kingsford, a mechanic. One day he threw a mess of corn meal mush into a garbage pail. His wife emptied some lye into the same pail and in the morning when he emptied the pail he was astonished to find a small quantity of starch at the bottom.

Thomas Bolsover, a Sheffield mechanic, was mending the handle of a knife made of copper and silver. He saw these metals fuse together and the idea of silver plating was born in his mind. He laid a thin plate of silver on a heavier one of copper and heated them till the edge of the silver began to melt. He took them from the fire, let them cool slightly, then rolled and hammered them to the desired thickness. This was the origin of "Sheffield plate", all of which was made in this way until electroplating was invented.

Cornelius Dubbel left a bottle of aqua regia (a mixture of nitric and muriatic acids) on a shelf. It fell over; the acid ran down over a window and dropped into a bottle containing an extract of cochineal. This turned to a vivid scarlet. Dubbel found that the acid had dissolved some of the tin of the window casing and the combination had produced the new color. A few experiments added the most brilliant color to the list of dyes.

IMPERIAL GRANUM
Food for Nursing Mothers and for Babies

THE foundation of the adult constitution is laid in infancy and depends on proper feeding. Every mother should nurse her baby and should, herself, take Imperial Granum, at least three times daily, for it increases the quality and quantity of her milk, enables her to bear the strain of nursing and makes baby gain in weight, strength and vitality.

As a substitute for mothers' milk Imperial Granum is invaluable. It modifies cows' milk, forming a food rich in nourishment, easily digested by the most delicate stomach.

Condensed milk alone is dangerous for baby, but may be rendered safe by Imperial Granum as it supplies the lacking elements necessary to make good bone and muscle.

Imperial Granum may be used with water alone, and is thus especially successful in diarrhoea.

MR. HUDSON'S LEFT EYE

BY STEPHEN GUEST

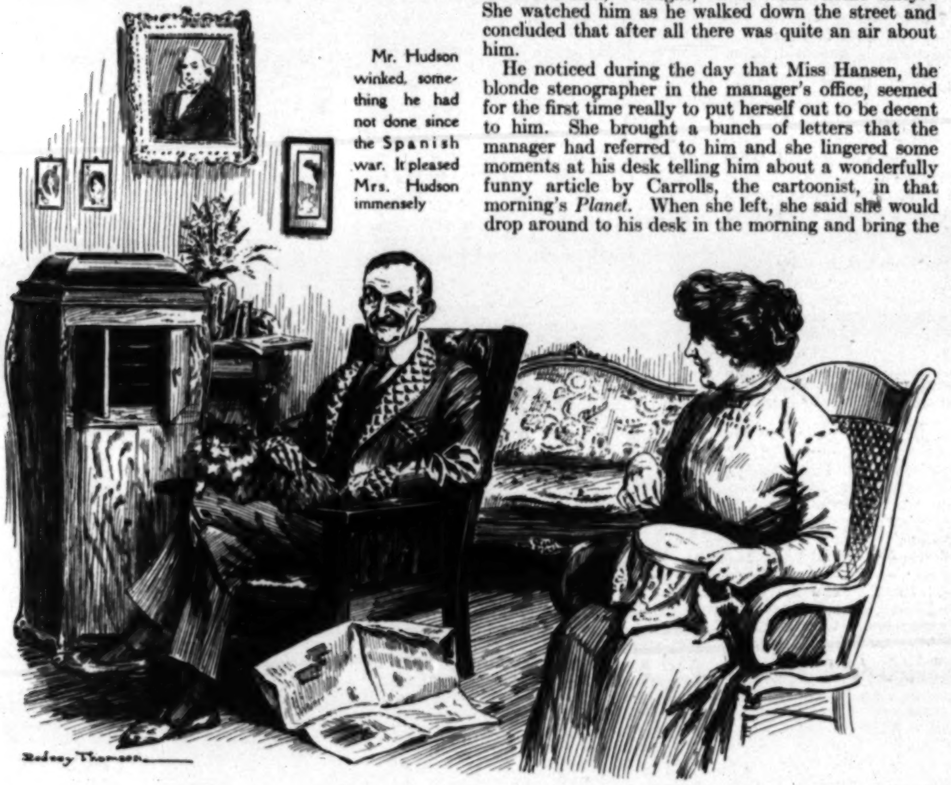
Illustrations By Rodney Thomson

MRS. HUDSON never worried much about Mr. Hudson until his left eye asserted itself. Then she developed a deep-seated fear that Mr. Hudson's left eye might, so to speak, wag the rest of Mr. Hudson and bring disaster.

He was about forty. No one ever remarked that he was good or bad looking; his face was negligible, as was Mr. Hudson until——. But that, of course, is later. He was dapper, which means, in his case, a white waistcoat worn with a suit that never quite fitted.

Mr. Hudson, during the day, transferred stock in a New York Trust Company and at night, after tunnels, railroads and shank's mare had conveyed him to his New Jersey home, he read his paper, played his phonograph and stroked his angora cat until nearly ten o'clock, when he went to bed. It may be said at once that he was a man of good habits.

Mrs. Hudson was devoted to him, to the phonograph and to the angora cat. He provided her with a present living and a retrospect of fond memories; the phonograph gave her pleasure and the cat the affection and devotion which a woman turned thirty-eight has long ceased to expect from her husband. Yet, in their humdrum way they were contented and happy; they were not exciting to be sure, but on the other hand they were not excited.



Mr. Hudson winked, something he had not done since the Spanish war. It pleased Mrs. Hudson immensely

One evening as the faithful phonograph was reproducing Martha, Mr. Hudson turned to his wife, who was embroidering a doily on the other side of the room, and winked his left eye. It was something he had not done since the Spanish war. It pleased Mrs. Hudson immensely and she went over and sat on the arm of his chair and began to stroke his hair.

Mr. Hudson seemed rather surprised but he allowed his hair to be stroked until Martha was finished, when he removed the record, put on the ballet music from Faust and sat down on the sofa. He said the parlor curtains needed cleaning and that he hoped it wouldn't rain in the morning, because he had left his rubbers at the office. When ten o'clock struck, he carefully dusted his records and put them away. He patted his cat a good night caress, bolted the door and went to bed.

Mrs. Hudson spent sometime in getting to sleep that night. The wink of that left eye had fascinated her. She could not comprehend it. Why a man of her husband's home-loving disposition should wink a wink so obviously outside the sphere of the home was beyond her. Before their marriage and for a time after, he had been affectionate and demonstrative, almost at times playful with her—and this she had liked. Long since, however, he had settled down into a routine husband. She had missed keenly for a while those little attentions so dear to her heart and her vanity. Finally she had ceased to expect them.

This wink, however——. It was not at all like New Jersey. It evoked Maryland and Virginia with a suggestion of Broadway; it recalled to her days she had spent as a girl in New York State. It had been fascinating, full of allurement. Yet he had in no way responded when she had gone to him, not so much even as to take her hand. Possibly, however, it was his way of picking up old threads—a wink tonight and tomorrow, she argued, an arm about her waist.

The next night nothing happened. Mrs. Hudson looked up from her knitting rather oftener than usual, but her spouse confined himself so exclusively to Harry Lauder in his alcoholic ditties that she lost hope. The next morning as he was starting for the office, he cautioned her to speak to the grocer about the bacon—it was entirely too lean, he said. And as he spoke he winked—a wink with charm and distinction in it, an altogether irresistible wink. She put her arm about his neck and kissed him. "Pop-overs" she reminded him, "tonight, so do come home early." She watched him as he walked down the street and concluded that after all there was quite an air about him.

He noticed during the day that Miss Hansen, the blonde stenographer in the manager's office, seemed for the first time really to put herself out to be decent to him. She brought a bunch of letters that the manager had referred to him and she lingered some moments at his desk telling him about a wonderfully funny article by Carrolls, the cartoonist, in that morning's Planet. When she left, she said she would drop around to his desk in the morning and bring the paper for him to read—"She would like to get his ideas on it." It flattered Mr. Hudson for Miss Hansen was considered "the best looker" in the office.

On his way to the tube that afternoon he noticed rather curiously an extraordinary yellow hat worn by an extremely independent appearing young woman who was coming in his direction. They were about to pass when, to his astonishment, she bowed and stopped.

"Why, how do you do, Mr. ——" she exclaimed.

"Hudson, Mr. Hudson" he stammered.

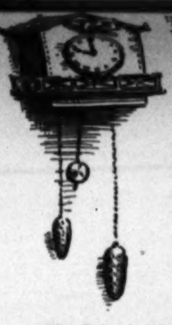
"Surely, Mr. Hudson. And you, of course, remember Miss Lamotte? Just hurrying up town for dinner and—but can't I see you again? Should love, you know, to renew old acquaintance."

"Well, I—isn't there some mistake? I don't think —I—I—I don't believe I know you," he blurted.

"Of course, you don't," the fair one rattled on. "But you must have wanted to for you handed me the sassiest wink I ever got, and I thought I'd give you the chance."

"I winked? I wasn't aware of it. If I did, I apologize."

"Oh, there's no apologies needed," she went on. "There's no apology goes with that wink. But say, it is a shame to waste real genius like that on a boob like you." She jerked the yellow hat threateningly at him and bustled along.



He was tremendously embarrassed. Surely he had not intended to wink at anyone. Winking was such notoriously bad taste. He doubted very much if he had winked. It was all her imagination. He told his wife about it at dinner.

"Good heavens!" she exclaimed. "Don't you know you do it? Don't you know you've been winking the last three days?"

"No, I don't," he affirmed. "Have you noticed it?"

"I noticed it this morning when you were leaving the house, and the night before last when you were playing the phonograph."

"When you came over and sat on the arm of my chair?" he queried.

"Yes," she answered.

"I wondered why you did that."

"Because I thought you wanted me to."

"And this morning you kissed me. I winked then?"

"Yes, that was the second time."

"You hardly could have thought then——"

"No, I wanted to."

"Oh," he ventured. "It was that kind of a wink, was it, Clara?"

"Frederick, it was just that kind of a wink! You say you don't know you do it?"

"I hadn't the slightest idea of it. Never knew I winked at all at anybody."

"Funny you'd wink and not know it. Maybe something is wrong with the nerves in your eye. It'll probably be all right in a day or two. But do be careful, for it is not a nice sort of wink."

He found at the office a note, redolent of scent, filled with a florid dashing hand-writing. It read:

"Dear Mr. Hudson—I never have done anything like this before, for business friends are business friends and all that. However, you've been making eyes at me every time I turned your way and I never saw you act like that with any of the other girls, so if you want to see me, meet me in the Automat this noon and we'll start something. Yours, You Know Who."

THIS was all very well but Mr. Hudson did not know Who. He had not, he was certain, winked at—but how did he know whom he had winked at? In any event, he felt he would like to look at the lady before he met her in the Automat or anywhere else. It was all very flattering. He had read of such things—men who instinctively attract women, lights o' love, and so on. He had been under the impression it was physique or good looks or something which he had not; apparently, however, it was something which he distinctly had—a left eye or rather a nervous affliction in his left eye.

He reached in his desk, took from a pigeonhole a cheap round looking glass and gazed in it, anxiously. He was tremendously curious to see his left eye wink. It did not. He tried to make it wink. He did not care for it a bit—it merely screwed his face up and made him look rather silly. No, he must go through life an involuntary winker. He realized the tragic aspect of it, how powerless he was—raining winks unwittingly on the just and the unjust, flirting unconsciously with the whole of creation and having no choice whatever in the matter. He wondered what Who looked like—could it be Miss Jennings in the manager's office? Or was it Miss Overton, the stenographer—Or who? Who was Who, anyway? His curiosity became herculean.

Miss Hansen brought him the article in the Planet. She had exquisite hands—she was wonderfully attractive. She had, also, lovely hair. He was looking at her hair. Suddenly——,

"You mustn't do that," she said "you—you mustn't be winking at me."

There he was. "You don't mind very much, do you?"

"Oh, well, now that you ask me, I really don't. But you're some flirt, all right."

"You think so, do you? Well, you're the only one I flirt with."

"I can't believe it."

"It's so. Do you know—I—what are you going to do to-morrow night?"

It was done so quickly that he hardly realized what he was saying. He had a momentary glimpse of Clara, of the faithful cat, the expensive, yet enjoyable, phonograph, his home, New (Continued on page 460) people, so the women employed in this commercial secret service work must have finesse and tact as well as taste and a good knowledge of materials and values. And they also must have a good memory, since they can take no notes on the spot.

In accordance with its size or enterprise, a store will employ from three to twelve or more of these shoppers. Usually they are women of good social position who, married or unmarried, must for some reason earn at least a little extra money. If they are to have shown them goods of a costly nature, the more they look the part of a wealthy customer, the better of course it is. One store some-for which they are fitted and their ability in general, they may be paid anywhere from three to ten dollars a day. Some work only a few days a week. Their assignments usually are mailed or telephoned to them at their homes, and their reports usually are written at home, also. For it is considered wise for them to visit their employer's store as little as possible, if only because they must occasionally shop in this store also, not only to compare their employer's goods with his competitors', but to give their employer the benefit of their criticism of his own salespeople and general methods. They are instructed to make actual purchases whenever it is necessary, and especially to buy and buy liberally whenever they may feel themselves under suspicion.

Jersey, far far away—he felt he was losing his grip entirely on New Jersey or New Jersey was losing its grip on him. It was all cluttered, confused, passing, gone and before he could get a grasp on his true and rightful self, he was committed to dinner with Miss Hansen the following evening at Shanley's.

After all, what was there so very wrong about it? He remembered how time and time again in his younger days he had tried to flirt and be a bit gay and how each time he had tried in vain. He had realized he was not cut out for that sort of thing and so he had married and settled violently down and grown old before his time. Now he was forty and never once had he had his fling. Why not now? Why, he asked himself, why have an eye like mine and not use it?

He recalled one unpleasant remark Clara had made "that it would probably be all right in a day or two." Could youth wane so soon? He trusted her hopes were groundless.

He went dutifully home and played his phonograph. After all, home was pleasant. Nothing was said about winks or winking. Clara, however, seemed more than usually attentive; his slippers were where they should have been, where often they were not. Clara disliked mutton chops and he loved them—and mutton chops was the piece de resistance. She had bought as a surprise to him a new Lauder record. Perhaps he winked—he was not certain. In any event, she sat on the arm of his chair most of the evening. Perhaps after all, he did not wink; possibly, very probably in fact, it was some sort of latent fascination that he had.

He noticed the same thing in the office, too. Miss Hinckley, the chief correspondence clerk, tossed him a rose, laughingly, as she passed his desk. He wondered if she were Who. He bought a fancy waistcoat during the noon hour and a rather striking walking stick, both absurdly cheap for their quality, at a closing-out sale. Then he went to telegraph Clara some good reason for not going home to dinner.

MR. HUDSON, during their twelve years of marriage, had appeared punctually for dinner except once when the ferry boat broke a wheel and he had been an hour late. It was therefore some work of art to frame an excuse that would be adequate and yet reasonable. He perspired over the telegraph blank for some minutes, and suddenly thought of his brother Richard who lived in Oklahoma. It seemed reasonable. He telegraphed Clara: "Brother Richard in town until tomorrow. Dining with him tonight. Will bring him home tonight if possible?"

It was done. In five hours he would sally forth, gayly bevested, stick in hand, to meet Miss Hansen at Shanley's. He had decided on a dry Martini to begin with and Sauterne or Sparkling Burgundy to follow. Office work palled.

At 4:30 an office boy announced that a lady wanted to see him. Would not give her name but was waiting in the bond room. "Ginger," he thought, "who can it be? Can it be Who?" He looked in his little looking glass, re-arranged his tie, stuck his handkerchief jauntily in his pocket, went into the bond room and —met Mrs. Hudson.

"Richard, eh? Well, you can't Oklahoma me! I'll wait here until you're through and I'll Richard you home with me, and tomorrow we'll go to an oculist and have the nerve cut? Don't talk—I'll wait right here."

She did. He spent a bad fifteen minutes in writing Miss Hansen about the sudden death of an aunt which would prevent and so forth, very regretfully and politely. And he left the office at five o'clock with Mrs. Hudson bound for New Jersey.

"It's no use, Frederick," she announced after their sad arrival home, "you can't do it and get away with it. You weren't born for a sport and couldn't be one in a dog's age, and I'm not going to let you. It's just that silly eye of yours—that's all. Tomorrow we will go to Dr. Bulcher and have the nerve cut—I guess that's it—and it won't bother us any more."

"I am not going to have any nerve cut," he remonstrated. "My eye is my eye. I never touched it—it just came that way. I never winked it in my life—it just winks itself. And I'm not going to fool with it—my eye is my eye."

"Well, I'm not going to be married to a man and have his left eye making an ass of the whole family. You and your Oklahoma brother dining together! Oh, such rot! It didn't sound like you or your brother Richard and I knew in a minute it was just that skylarking left eye of yours. You were a good husband before and I won't live with anything else, so we'll let the doctor pass on what's best to do."

Dr. Bulcher pronounced it a case of opticoneuralitistwichino. It did no particular harm, he said, but was apt to be permanent. The nerve could be cut—a simple operation—and the winking would stop. There was no risk. It was bound to be successful.

"I think" said Mrs. Hudson "we'll have it cut." It was. Mr. Hudson has never winked since.

• • • • • • • •

YEARS have passed. The cat slumbers on the hearth rug. It is not the same cat—nevertheless the cat slumbers. Mrs. Hudson is knitting. Mr. Hudson, after hearing Bonnie Slithers sing After the Cliquot, a Kiss on the Cheek, Oh, removes the record from his trusty phonograph.

"Say, Clara," he said, "I must have been pretty near the limit during my winking spell, wasn't I? I'm glad you stopped it—it would have got me in wrong surely."

"It would," she answered. "There never was anything wrong with you but that wink."

"Never a thing," he affirmed.

"But that would have made a fool of you. It was making a fool of you. It never was really you; it was just that miserable little nerve. And yet it was attractive. Do you know, Frederick," she said, "I sometimes have been foolish enough to think that if it was safe, we would go and see Dr. Bulcher again."

"What for?"

"To see if he couldn't—well—uncut it—bring it back again. That wink was awfully—yet, maybe on the whole it is better as it is."

"That's My Corn"

What a Confession!

Something hits a shoe. There's a flash of pain, and the victim says, "That's my corn."

"My corn," pared and coddled for years, perhaps. It's as needless as dirty hands.

A Blue-jay plaster, applied in a jiffy, would end that pain instantly. And the B & B wax that's in it would terminate the corn in two days.

No pain, no soreness, no inconvenience. The corn loosens and comes out. It disappears forever.

It's hard to prevent corns while having dainty feet. But it isn't hard to end them. A million corns a month are ended in this easy Blue-jay way. You do yourself injustice when you suffer from a corn.

Half your friends have proved this.

ing. It had never occurred to the poor devil to go outside and compare with reality what he was doing—and yet most of it was landscape! There were portraits, however. One portrait, especially, repeated many times, in furious assaults of resemblance which ever evaded, of a girl in a lawn dress. Also, his later work evidently, there was a lot of obscure red visions—metaphysical things, I should say, perfectly incomprehensible. And then the portrait you see here, before you—the portrait of himself. It stood upon the easel in the center of the room, by the tide of a pier glass. On the floor beneath it was a palette, its thick scales of color still humid, and an overturned stool. It seems that my uncle had died right there, finishing the picture.

"Upon the wooden frame of the canvas a bit of paper was pinned, folded into the shape of a note. I seized and read it. But wait—I have it still, stuck away somewhere; you can read it yourselves——" Irving sprang to his feet and began rummaging in the drawers of a huge bureau.

"He won't find it," said Hale, reassuringly. "Tom never finds anything. Smoke up—you have time."

AFTER a while, Irving came back within the circle, his hair dishevelled, his hands empty. "I can't find it," he panted. "I've got it stuck away somewhere, but I don't know where. Too bad. I wish you'd seen it yourselves. Anyway, this is what the note said. Queer freak of a morbid imagination. 'Within the painted letter,' it said, 'I have placed the knowledge which will avenge me of Seth E. Greene's perfidy.' "

There was a long silence.

"So that is what the painted letter means," murmured Borkmann.

And then: "Good Lord—and you fellows hunting about for gas and railway vibrations and photographic walls when you have this!"

Everyone had been looking sideways at the painted Ancestor as though not liking him; now all these glances turned to Borkmann as though they liked him no better. Rank, at a certain point of Irving's story, had seized the city directory and had begun turning its pages slowly. Now his finger ran swiftly down a column and stopped. "Here it is," he said. "Seth E. Greene. Greene, with an e. The Seth E. Greene Groceries—48 Ann Street; 64 West Twenty-third; 67 West Twenty-eighth; 21 Easy Forty-second; 1001 San Nicholas Avenue, and some thirteen other places. Seth E. Greene, Mrs. Seth E. Greene, residence 2406 Fifth Avenue."

"What!" chorused everybody. "What—you don't mean——"

"I do," said Rank. "It's the same man. I wrote him up when I was on the Planet, two years ago. Occasion, the daughter's wedding to Baron Metisphopheles or something. I found that the family fortunes did not descend from Sir Francis Drake, as they would have it, but had had their origin much later in a little village, on the Maine coast. I had some trouble finding that out. They didn't tell me. But I found it out. It's the same man. The wedding of the daughter was an impressive affair. The police had been called out to club the curious populace. The bride's white veil did not go well with her red hair. Mama Greene, I remember, was a bursting personality. She was bursting out of her violet bodice, out of her gloves, her complexion seemed ready to burst out of her skin. Papa, on the other hand, was lean and cadaverous. He seemed to have in his stomach all the pickles of his twenty-three groceries, and he was scared. Never saw a man so scared. Scared of the mob, scared of the police, scared of the occasion, the pomp, the splendor, the chances of a fauxpas. It was a great affair!"

"But are you sure?"

Rank nodded vigorously. "I looked it up thoroughly. Thirty and some odd years ago, Seth E. Greene, now the Millionaire Grocer, kept a little general store in Maine."

They saw then that Borkmann had capsized entirely in his big chair, and was kicking his heels to the ceiling in fiendish glee. "I've got it," he said, returning to the perpendicular.

"I've got it. Alcott to his gas, Hale to his vibrations, Irving to his receptive walls. I have my explanation. It's the old boy here." He pointed to the picture of the Ancestor, dim in the shadow. "It is incredible to me that you should not understand. It's clear as light. The old boy wants his letter delivered, that's all! Delivered to his dear old friend Seth E. Greene!"

Everyone looked at him a bit uncertainly, like children bidden to a game they did not quite understand. Borkmann sprang to his feet. "And I propose Mr. Chairman and members of this intelligent assembly, that we do this for the Ancestor. That we deliver, for him, to his dear friend, Seth E. Greene, the painted letter he holds so anxiously upon his chest."

"Come, come," growled Alcott, a little scandalized. "You're not going to deliver a painted letter!"

"Why not? We have the address, haven't we? Seth E. Greene, 2406 Fifth Avenue."

Only Irving protested. "You're not going to cut up my picture and leave it with a hole!" he objected. But the idea had them on its wings. "You can paste in a piece of canvas and paint it over again," they decided ruthlessly. Pocketknife in hand, Borkmann was already on a chair, his face against the picture. His short massive body was gnome-like in the shadow; several of the men drained their glasses as if in an effort to keep well upon earth. Abruptly, the keen blade zipped into the canvas and ran a quick rectangle; the letter, heavy with superimposed layers of paint, fell forward into Borkmann's left hand. Irving brought out an envelope. The painted letter was placed within it. Borkmann wrote upon it: "Seth E. Greene, 2406 Fifth Avenue."

"We'll mail it tonight," said Hale.

"Not much," said Borkmann. "We'll send it by messenger. It's eleven o'clock now. He'll get it at midnight. A very proper time for this sort of communication."

With the letter lying all prepared on the table, an impatience possessed them now. Borkmann soon sprang to his feet. "Come, let's be off," he said. Hale, with the lamp, stood at the head of the stair as they spiraled down into the darkness. The muffled bang of the door came to him, he returned and pressed his nose against one of the frosty windows. Below, indistinct in the white blur, they were filing like conspirators toward The Graydon and its messenger boys.

* * * * * * * * * *

WHEN Hale woke in the morning, it was with a sense of pleasant surprise. He kicked off his covers and sprang to the floor. The sun was visible but not warm. A little drift of snow was on the window sill. He bounded to the fireplace, poked the coals to life, and warmed himself, still wondering idly at his gladness. After a while he went through toward Irving's room, but came upon him in the kitchenette between—and Irving's face also glowed with a peculiar content. "What," said Hale, "you, too, without any head, after last night?"

"Feeling bully," answered Irving briskly. "Bully!"

They made the coffee together, wheeled the little table to the side of the fire in the studio, and then, still in their bathrobes, sat down. At intervals, to their surprise, they found themselves smiling at each other over the butter, the rolls, the steaming cups.

"I know!" Hale cried suddenly, pounding the table with his fist. "I know now why I am feeling so good. Why, I slept, man, last night! No awakenings, no thumpings, no nothing. I slept!"

Irving's jaw dropped a little, as it often did when he thought: "It is the same with me," he said, a bit soberly. "I slept — sound! — from the moment I struck the pillow. And woke like a lark at dawn."

They turned together to the Ancestor who now held with affection, against his hollow stomach, a rectangular hole; they burst out laughing.

"It's that Borkmann," said Hale. "You see, we went to sleep on that suggestion of his. That it was this old boy who had been bothering us, and that we had rid him of his torment by delivering

Packer No. 8 Hears from a Pipe-Lover

To insure the complete satisfaction of every smoker of Edgeworth tobacco and as part of the guarantee that goes with every package a small slip is packed into every large size tin or humidor package of Edgeworth. This slip urges a return of the tobacco if it is not satisfactory and bears a number that identifies the packer.

Here is, in part, what one smoker had to say when he read his slip.

Packer No. 8,
c/o Larus & Bro. Co.,
Richmond, Va.

Sir, Madam or Miss:—I have just dug down to the bottom of a one pound can of "Edgeworth" evidently packed by you, and I found the enclosed notice; wherein your boss asks me to notify them in case I found any irregularity in the box in which the notice was packed. As I found no irregularity and as they asked for nothing more I thought I would tell you what else I found; e. g. "The Best Bunch of tobacco I ever smoked." A friend, (I was going to say a true friend, but then I reserve that expression for my old "dudeen" exclusively) gave me this pound box of "Edgeworth"—hence this letter, and now it's time for more as the last smoke was as good as the first, just as moist and held the same quality and flavor—you can tell your "boss" that there was no irregularity—no, it was all regular—yes, a regular find.

Yours in a decent smoke, A. J. M.

Not every man is as fortunate as Mr. A. J. M. He was lucky enough to have a friend who introduced him to Edgeworth by presenting him with a full pound.

"We'll paint him another," said Hale, "tomorrow."

They went to work, each in his corner at his own illustrations. They worked busily, without speaking to each other. At eleven o'clock, the bark of a newsboy in the Square announced the first afternoon extra, and, as they did every morning at this time, they flipped a coin to decide which of the two should go down to buy a paper. Irving lost, put on his cap and coat, and ran down the stairs. Hale, returning to his cardboards, reabsorbed himself in the drawing of a lady's nose. He did not hear Irving return, and was a bit startled to find him standing at his back. "Good Lord, Irving, what's the matter?" he exclaimed.

Irving's face held a singular expression. "The paper," he panted. "Look at that damned paper!"

Hale seized the sheet, spread it before his eyes—and limply sat down to read further. Across the top of the paper, in large red letters, the following appeared:

Millionaire's Mysterious Death

Then,

Is It Murder? Is It Suicide? Or What?

The account stretching over columns [illegible] of his sumptuous Fifth Avenue palace. At midnight, he had been sitting there alive. A package had come to him by a messenger boy. At one a. m., Mr. Greene's valet, entering to see if his master would retire, found him retired for good—dead in his chair.

At his feet lay a torn envelope; in his clenched hand, roughened as though he had tried to rumple it up, was a thing they had not been able to make out at first but which proved, upon further inspection, to be a piece of canvas cut and painted into the shape of a letter. Across it Seth E. Greene's name was painted in imitation of the scrawl of a pen. The physicians had not yet made a diagnosis of the cause of death. The painted letter was in the hands of the police. It was to be analyzed for traces of a possible volatile poison.

Hale dropped the paper. They sat face to face, on the edge of their chairs, and looked at each other. Their eyes, together, travelled up to the Ancestor standing stiff in his frame, the rectangular hole upon his sunken stomach. They came back upon each other, and upon the brow of both, little beads of sweat arose.

Stories of Business Strategy

By Frank Copley

TEACHING A Purchaser To Use What He Buys.—Finding after it had spent much money that it wasn't getting anywhere in particular, a firm manufacturing a household device which sells for several dollars eventually took itself and its troubles to a certain advertising agency.

To the chief of the agency, this firm's article seemed to be as meritorious as it was novel. He also found that the "literature" which had been prepared to exploit it was good, if improvable, and nothing seemed radically wrong with the general selling plan. At length, closeted with the head of the manufacturing business, the advertising man again took up the article.

"Let me see," he asked, "just how do you put it together?"

The manufacturer showed him, and seemed annoyed when the advertising man was slow in getting the knack of the thing.

"Now," said the advertising man, "show me just what you do when you actually make use of it."

As the manufacturer did it, it looked the easiest thing in the world; but again the advertising man fumbled badly when he attempted to follow suit. And now the manufacturer made no attempt to conceal his irritation.

"I'm afraid," he exclaimed, "you are just as bad as the blamed fools who have written in to tell me that my device won't do the work."

"Um!" commented the advertising man; "I begin to see. Where, Mr. Blank, is the circular you send out along with your article? I mean the circular in which you give instructions for using your article."

"Where is it?" repeated the manufacturer. "Why, I didn't think it necessary to bring that!"

"Well," said the advertising man dryly, "I think you would better let us look at that before we go any further."

When, on the following day, the circular was delivered, the advertising man found, much as he expected, that whereas the printed matter designed to sell the goods evidently had been prepared with the utmost care and with a liberal outlay of money, this piece of matter, which was supposed to tell the public how to get the best use from the goods, read as if it had been written by the office boy and looked as if it had been set up by some printer out in the bush. And thereupon the chief of that agency took half a day off to prepare a substitute circular. At the start there was big, black, screaming type which read:

ATTENTION!
IMPORTANT NOTICE!
ATTENTION!
Make No Attempt to Use This Device
Until You Have Read These Few and Simple Instructions

There followed a statement that no mechanical device could be expected to work unless it was used as it was intended to be used; that the user of this particular device must expect to find it a little awkward until she acquired the knack of it; but that for taking pains to acquire this knack she would have the splendid reward which was duly set forth in glowing terms. And then came the instructions, so plain and simple, and so amply illustrated by diagrams, that she who ran could understand. And it had on that business a most stimulating effect.

"Though it would appear one of the most elementary of propositions," said the advertising man, "how many business men have the vision to realize that, just as regular advertising can do nothing in the way of business building unless it is backed up by the mouth-to-mouth advertising of pleased customers, so pains taken to make or keep a customer thoroughly satisfied are just as productive of money as the pains taken to make the sale?"

KEEPING in Touch with Competitors' Methods.—The lady who was examining gowns in a New York department store showed altogether too much curiosity about the prices and extent of the stock, and so aroused the suspicion of the saleswoman. When the lady passed on, the saleswoman confided her suspicion to a floorman. Nodding understandingly the floorman proceeded to trail the visitor around the store, and as she was about to leave, he stepped up to her and quietly advised her not to attempt to come in again.

This lady was not suspected of being a shoplifter; she simply was suspected of being a "shopper" in the employ of a rival establishment.

There are in New York about twenty great establishments of the department-store order. When one advertises a special sale, all the others want to find out the exact facts about that sale. At all times, each store is keenly interested in knowing whether, as regards any item in its vast variety of goods, it is being undersold. If a buyer reports that he has been offered exclusive selling rights in some new article, the store must know what its competitors are carrying which may be more or less of the same order. Then each store naturally is interested in knowing how its competitors are displaying goods, what patronage they are drawing, whether their salespeople are well informed, and so on.

Thus each of these great establishments has what is usually known as a "comparison" office. If business is comparable to warfare—and probably no keener competition exists than is found among these big stores—then these comparison offices may be likened to an army's secret service. And just as in
